ALDRICH DENIES RUBBER CHARGES

In Letter to McKinley He Calls Bristow's Statements Untrue and Absurd.

HIS COMPANY NOT A TRUST

Handles Only Crude Rubber and Is Not Affected by the Tariff—Increase to Simplify Administration.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, in a letter made public to-night, replies to the charges made by Senator Bristow of Kansas in relation to the increased duties on rubber made by the Payne-Aldrich act. Incidentally he pays his respects in caustic language to Senator Bristow and what he calls a "little group of men" who entertain opinions similar to the Kansan's.

The letter is addressed to William B. McKinley of Illinois, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, and was sent to the headquarters of the committee in this city. The explanations of the rubber duties and the denial of the charges made against him by Senator Bristow are based upon the fact that Senator Aldrich was called upon by a Republican candidate for Congress to furnish the facts connected with the changes made in the recent tariff act.

Referring to the charges made by Senator Bristow as "absurd misstatements," Senator Aldrich says their persistent reiteration has impelled him to make a full statement.

Aldrich Enumerates Charges.

Senator Aldrich's letter is in part as follows:

"The persistent reiteration of the absurd misstatements of Senator Bristow with reference to the tariff on rubber furnishes such a characteristic illustration of the nature of the criticisms and the character of certain critics of the Tariff act of 1909, that it seems to me desirable that a full statement of the facts should be made in response to this inquiry.

"Senator Bristow's statements were as follows:

"1. That the Senate Committee on Finance, of which I was Chairman, increased the duty upon certain manufactures of rubber from 30 to 35 per cent.

"2. That during the session, or immediately after the adjournment of Congress, I, in connection with others, had organized a gigantic rubber trust, known as the Intercontinental Rubber Company, in which I was a large stockholder and a Director.

"3. That this huge rubber trust immediately advanced largely the price of crude rubber, 'the supply of which it absolutely controls.'

"4. That this vast rubber monopoly, the Intercontinental Rubber Company, was able, on account of the changes in the tariff referred to, to advance—and did rapidly advance—the price of every rubber product, 'from automobile tires to babies' rattles.'

"5. That the increase in the rate on rubber manufactures from 30 to 35 per cent. enabled the Intercontinental Rubber Company to realize immediately enormous profits, as shown by the large dividends it had paid in the early months of the present year, and that the increase in rates was brought about with this end in view.

"It is true that an increase in the rates took place in paragraph 463, which included certain manufactures of India rubber with other items, and it is also true that I am a stockholder and a director in the Inter-Continental Rubber Company, but none of the other statements referred to contain a single element of truth.

"Neither the Inter-Continental Rubber Company, nor I, nor any member of my family has ever had any pecuniary interest as to whether the rates on manufactures of rubber were 30, 35 or 309 per cent., or whether crude rubber was on the free or the dutiable list.

History of Inter-Continental Rubber.

"The Inter-Continental Rubber Company was incorporated in 1903, with the general powers of a business corporation. There has been no change whatever, either during or after the session of Congress, since that time in the business or control of the company, or in the purposes for which it was organized, these being all established at the time of organization, long before the tariff act of 1909 was ever thought of.

"The company is and has been the owner of stock—the entire amount in every case but one—in subordinate companies organized for purposes of convenience in the conduct of the business of producing crude rubber in various parts of the world.

"Neither the Intercontinental Rubber Company nor any of its subordinate companies have now or ever have had any interest whatever, directly or indirectly, in any business except in the production of crude rubber in countries outside of the United States and in the sale and delivery of its crude rubber product in available markets here and abroad.

"Neither the Intercontinental Rubber Company nor any of its subordinate companies have ever had the slightest interest, direct or indirect, in the manufacture of any article covered by the change in rates on rubber manufactures in the paragraph alluded to, or otherwise, and neither the Intercontinental Rubber Company nor any of its subordinate companies have ever had any part in any combination, agreement, arrangement, or understanding with any company or person with reference to any manufactured product of rubber or the price of any such product.

"The Intercontinental Rubber Company is not in any sense nor of any kind—good or bad—a rubber trust. It was never—and no one connected with it was ever—in combination, or agreement, or arrangement with anybody with reference to the production or control, or attempt to control, the price of crude rubber, or of any manufacture of rubber.

"With reference to my personal interest in the matter, I will say that for ten years I have been greatly interested, financially and otherwise, in the development of plans for extracting crude rubber from shrubs, vines, and trees by scientific chemical and mechanical processes instead of the old-fashioned tapping method now in general use.

Tariff Not a Factor.

"In the success attained the tariff of the United States has played no part whatever. The price of crude rubber is fixed in the markets of the world by the inexorable law of supply and demand. It is governed by auction sales at London and Antwerp. The great increase in the price in recent years is undoubtedly owing to the enormous increase in demand for automobile tires and for electrical and other industrial uses, with no corresponding increase in the available supply. The change in our tariff of 5 per cent. on a very limited number of the manufactures of rubber in August, 1909, had as little to do with it as had the movement of the tides.

"Crude rubber is and has been on the free list of our tariff, and there has been no movement or suggestion from any source to place it on the dutiable list.

MISS EDSON NOT TO MARRY.

Her Engagement to Marshall R. Kernochan Canceled by Mutual Consent.

The engagement of Miss Constance de Clyver Edson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Tracy Edson, and Marshall Rutgers Kernochan, which was announced on May 6 last, has been dissolved by mutual consent. The engagement was much talked of at the time, Mr. Kernochan being prospectively one of the wealthiest young men in society and a member of many fashionable clubs. It was said then that the wedding would take place in the Fall.

It was learned last night that Miss Edson, who has spent many years of her life abroad, will continue to prepare for her musical début as a violinist under the direction of Dr. Frank Damrosch and Frank Kneisel at the New York Institute of Musical Arts, of which she is a graduate.

Mr. Kernochan also possesses musical talent and is considered one of the best amateur pianists and composers in New York. It was this common taste which was said to have led to their engagement.

Miss Edson is a granddaughter of the late Prof. Elie Charlier of this city and a grandniece of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Curtis. Her father, Dr. Tracy D. Edson, served in the Spanish-American war as Lieutenant under Capt. Wainwright on the Gloucester. During that period he met with an accident and has since retired from active practice.

Mr. Kernochan is a grandson of Mr. de Gasquet of New Orleans and a grandson of the late John Rutgers Marshall of New York, a nephew of Mrs. John C. Wysong and J. Frederick Kernochan.

The differences which led to the cancellation of the engagement could not be learned last night, and the only statement forthcoming was to the effect that "the engagement was dissolved through a mutual understanding."

ROB A TOMB, THEN A TOWN.

Thieves Take Diamonds Buried with Body, and Loot a Jewelry Store.

Special to The New York Times.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 11.—Thieves have robbed a vault containing the body of John Mandlice, an eccentric and wealthy capitalist, who died some time ago and was buried with his diamonds and jewels, worth several thousands of dollars. The robbery took place at Enid, Okla., at an early hour this morning, and was discovered by a farmer, who sounded the alarm just before daybreak.

All the officers of the town, with posses of citizens, gave chase, leaving the town practically unprotected. During their absence the town was invaded, supposedly by the same band of diamond thieves, and looted. The entire countryside was notified to be of the outlook for the footpads, and, headed by the Sheriff, more posses are scouring the country.

The thieves entered a jewelry store and with drawn guns covered the proprietor, clerks, and a number of customers while they secured a sack full of watches and jewelry. The men, still masked and with guns pointing, backed out of the door, warning their victims to make no outcry. Outside they brushed aside their masks and hurriedly rode off.

The town is aroused, and the officers fear for the safety of the robbers, should they be caught.

STREET OPENS; HOUSE SINKS.

Mysterious Chasms in Taunton, Va., Menace Residences and Buildings.

Special to The New York Times.

TAUNTON, Va., Aug. 11.—Two large cave-ins have occurred here from mysterious causes since 10 o'clock this morning, and occasioned much apprehension for the safety of life and property. A house and two trees, one a hundred feet high, have been completely swallowed up by the chasms. The public school building and one of the fire hpuses which are near the opening are threatened with imminent destruction. The walls of the former are badly cracked and threaten to fall.

Two boys discovered the sinking street while playing and told their parents. The family fled from the house and shortly after the hole widened and the house and trees disappeared.

Residents are working hard to save their property. One hole is unfathomable and apparently has water at the bottom. Some think the chasms to be a large natural cavern, which are plentiful in this section, while others fear Lewis Creek has undermined the city.

YOUNG MILITIAMAN SHOT.

Quarrels with a Bartender Who Refused to Sell Him More Whisky.

Frank Cusick, 22 years old, of 403 East Thirty-third Street, a member of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, National Guard, who returned from the Pine Plains camp yesterday, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded last night in a saloon at 317 East Twenty-fifth Street.

Joseph Hickey, the bartender, living at 324 East Twenty-fifth Street, was locked up accused of shooting Cusick. Hickey had refused to give Cusick more whisky, and Cusick, according to Hickey, became abusive.

There was a scuffle in an attempt to put Cusick out of the saloon. The militiaman snatched up a bottle from behind the bar, and Hickey caught up a revolver. According to the bartender, Cusick started for him with the bottle upraised. Hickey fired two shots into the air, but this did not scare Cusick. Then, Hickey says, in self-defense he fired three times, each bullet hitting Cusick. Hickey's seventeen-year-old sister Gertrude heard the shooting and thinking her brother had been shot ran into the saloon. She found Cusick on the floor and held his head while her brother tried to staunch the flow of blood.

TROOPS OFF TO FOREST FIRES

Forester Hopes They Will Soon Check Seven Raging in Montana.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The Forest Service has called on the War Department for aid to fight the forest fires in Montana. Gen. Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff of the army, has directed that a battalion of the Fourteenth Infantry, now in manoeuvres at American Lake Camp, Ore., be ordered immediately to Missoula, Mon., for the work.

Serious forest fires are raging again on the Flathead Indian reservation in Montana, and the situation of the Coeur d'Alene National Forest in Idaho continues extremely critical.

A telegram received to-day by Acting Secretary Pierce of the Interior Department from Supt. Morgan of the Flathead Indian reservation reported that seven distinct fires were burning beyond control.

Associate Forester Potter takes an optimistic view of the situation, and said he thought with the help of the army the flames would be checked within a few days. The conditions of the other National forest reserves have materially improved, according to advices received by the Forest Service.

CAPTURE PROMOTER; $1,300,000 STOCK LOSS

W. T. Wintemute Accused by Lady Tankerville of Swindling Her in a Mining Deal.

WARSZAWIAK HIS AGENT

Deposed Missionary Handled London End of Scheme—Wintemute Ready to Sail for Europe When Arrested.

Post Office Inspectors and Headquarters detectives made a raid yesterday on the offices of William T. Wintemute, 17 Battery Place, accused of using the mails to project a mining stock deal which is held to be fraudulent. Wintemute is credited with having made about $1,300,000 in the last ten years. He was arrested just on the eve of a trip to Europe, ostensibly to establish European branches for his enterprises, but the Post Office authorities believe really to leave this country.

Among the half ton of mining stock and prospectuses seized and carted off to Headquarters were letters which show that one of Wintemute's London agents was Hermann Warszawiak, who went into bankruptcy after obtaining large subscriptions for his paper, The Jewish Christian, and a mission for converting Jews to Christianity. Warszawiak's dismissal from the Presbyterian Church after conviction of public gambling and immoral character while applying for ordination as a Presbyterian minister and his subsequent reinstatement made him a conspicuous figure in the Presbyterian Church throughout the world in the latter nineties.

Among those whom Warszawiak interested in Wintemute's Gold Run Mine and Tunnel Company in London were Lady Tankerville and Miss Henrietta Elout of Glendale, Tunbridge Wells, England, who took $45,000 of the stock. Their suspicions were aroused when Wintemute insisted on keeping £500 ($2,500) they had sent him by mistake, and allotting them 2,500 more shares of stock. The authorities have in their possession letters written by Wintemute attempting to persuade the women to keep the stock and not ask for their money back.

Wintemute Taken by Surprise.

Chief Inspector W. W. Dickson of the Post Office Department, Inspectors E. L. Kincaid and T. M. Ready, and Headquarters Detectives Wilber and Talp participated in the raid. They had a warrant from United States Commissioner Shields. Their arrival was a great surprise to Wintemute, who made a vigorous protest against the seizure of his papers. He sent for his lawyer, Joseph M. Davis, when he arrived at Police Headquarters, and wanted to give bail right away. He was informed that he would have to wait until this morning, when he will be arraigned before Commissioner Shields.

Wintemute begged that the news of his arrest be kept from the reporters.

"This will ruin me. I am an innocent man. This will kill my wife."

Wintemute said he lived at 133 Hobart Street, Summit, N. J. The detectives said his home there was a mansion. Wintemute gave his age as 39 years, and said he was a banker by profession. The Post Office authorities have been collecting evidence against him for over a year. There are 700 complaints against him, they said.

The Gold Run Mine and Tunnel Company, of which Wintemute is the Eastern representative, is an Arizona corporation, capitalized at $3,000,000. According to Wintemute's prospectuses its officers are E. A. Austin of Boulder, Col., President; H. J. Burgheim of Boulder, Vice President; L. M. Sawyer of Boulder, Treasurer. S. V. Tiffany, formerly of Brooklyn, and now of Colorado Springs, Col., is mentioned as the company's counsel and its secretary.

Stock at 5 Cents a Share.

Among the seized documents is an agreement between the company and Wintemute by which he was empowered to sell the stock of the company at 5 cents per share, or as much more as he could get. Its par value was $100 per share. The authorities say he sold no shares lower than 25 cents per share, and many shares at $1 a share. Wintemute and Tiffany, the authorities say, obtained control of the company a year ago, and since that time there is no record that Wintemute made any accounting to the company of his sales of stock. He had the stock books of the company in his safe and the certificates all ready to be marketed done up in bales about his office.

One of the complainants against him, John A. Callicott of Boston, turned over to the Post Office Department, a letter from Wintemute. In this letter Wintemute told Callicott that there had been recently taken from the Gold Run mine ore which assayed $20 a pound, or about $40,000 a ton. The Post Office Inspectors said last night that at the time this letter was written the structures of the mine had been destroyed by fire and have not been replaced since.

After Warszawiak had obtained $45,000 from Miss Elout and Lady Tankerville he returned to the United States. By some mistake he had received $2,500 too much. Wintemute promptly sent the women stock certificates to cover this amount at the rate he was then selling them. The women wrote to Warszawiak for an explanation, but he did not answer. Wintemute, however, wrote them several letters, which showed such a disposition to retain the money that the Englishwomen put the matter in the hands of lawyers. One of Wintemute's letters to Miss Elout explained that Warszawiak was out of town, and said:

Urged to Take the Stock.

I am aware that sometimes a misunderstanding engenders distrust unjustly, and consequently might mislead to misjudge the motive which prompted me at Mr. Warszawiak's suggestion to grant you the additional 2,500 shares. But let me assure you, Miss Elout, that but for the urgent appeal of Mr. Warszawiak, in view of the dividends which are imminent, you could not possibly have secured this allotment.

In this letter he advised her to hold the stock till January of 1910, when he said that it would rise greatly in value. This failed to convince the women, and they sent the stock certificate back. Wintemute returned it, saying that it had not been properly indorsed, and failed to refund the money. With the certificate Wintemute sent a letter which contained this passage:

In fact, I am willing to offer your stock after January for sale, and if I had known your wishes in the matter before paying for your stock to the company I would no thave had the stock issued to you at all, but would have immediately refunded the money to you. You are probably aware that the company is not allowed according to law to buy back its own stock.

Wintemute went on to explain at great length that the Gold Run Mine and Tunnel Company was a "close corporation," and that the women should consider themselves fortunate to have been let in on the ground floor. At the same time he was sending out circulars to a mailing list of 12,000, principally ministers and doctors, throughout the United States offering Gold Run stock in exchange for "worthless mining stock" if accompanied by 10 cents a share.

His "Straight in the Eye" Plea.

Quantities of these circulars were seized yesterday. They are ornamented with

AMERICANS MOBBED BY CZECH PEASANTS

Mrs. Harry Sulzer of Chicago Hit by a Stone in Bohemia and Rendered Unconscious.

AUTO COLLIDED WITH WAGON

A Child Thrown to the Ground but Not Badly Hurt—German Flag on Car Partly Accounts for Riot.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—Four disheveled and excited American automobilists were arrested yesterday by gendarmes at Wlaschin, Bohemia, after being attacked by an infuriated Czech mob.

Harry Sulzer and E. M. Miller of Chicago were touring with their wives from Vienna to Dresden, and were proceeding at a leisurely pace when their car collided with a country wagon the driver of which obstinately refused to make way. A child sitting on the load of hay on the wagon was thrown to the ground by the collision.

The automobilists stopped immediately to render aid, but were relieved to find that the child was suffering more from shock than from injuries. When the Americans were preparing to depart a crowd of peasants who were working on neighboring farms gathered and, taking a hostile attitude, surrounded the car, barring its passage. The peasants, having seen the German flag flying side by side with the Stars and Stripes in front of the automobile, assumed that the occupants were Germans and welcomed the opportunity of giving their sworn foes a drubbing.

From threats the peasants proceeded to blows and stone throwing, a heap of stones lying conveniently in the road.

Mrs. Sulzer was hit by one of the missiles and was rendered unconscious. With their blood up, Messrs. Sulzer and Miller drew revolvers and commenced firing, with the object of attracting the attention of people in the vicinity and intimidating the peasants.

They were keeping their assailants at bay with their firearms when a posse of gendarmes rushed up at the double. Seeing the state of affairs and the impossibility of rescuing the Americans from the violence of the mob otherwise, the gendarmes arrested the party, whereupon the crowd calmed down.

After the Americans had been conveyed to a place of security and sufficient time had elapsed for the crowd to disperse, the gendarme officer demanded security of 1,000 kronen ($200) before allowing the automobilists to proceed. Reluctantly the sum was paid.

Messrs. Sulzer and Miller have appealed to the Consul General for redress, but most probably it will not be obtained until wearisome proceedings have been gone through and a long time has elapsed.

The Czech authorities naturally sympathize with the peasants' attack on tourists traveling under the German flag.

AMERICAN IN AUTO SHOT AT.

Man in Another Motor Car Fires at Dr. Jefferson and Speeds Away.

PARIS, Friday, Aug. 12.—Dr. G. O. Jefferson of Portland, Ore., has reported to the police that while motoring with his wife near La Ferte-sous-Jouarre he was shot at, for no apparent reason, by one of four men in a passing automobile.

The bullet whistled close to the doctor's cheek. His assailants speeded away.

ACID THROWN AT AUTO PARTY

Minneapolis Knight Templar Badly Burned at Chicago—Others Injured.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—J. C. Lewis, Eminent Commander of the Minneapolis Knights Templar Commandery, while riding in an automobile, was severely burned by a bottle of sulphuric acid and phosphorus which was thrown into the car on Michigan Avenue to-night.

Other occupants of the car were also burned, but not so severely.

They were Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. J. F. Boeke, wife of the Minneapolis meat dealer, and Albert Nathan, President of the Illinois Casing Company of Chicago. The clothing of all four was ruined. Mr. Lewis's hands and his left knee were severely burned.

The open bottle of the burning fluid was tossed into the car by some one hidden in a row of seats occupied on Tuesday as the grand stand for the Knights Templar parade.

The attack is believed to be a result of a strike of automobile drivers.

MISS WARDLAW DIES; STARVED HERSELF

BROTHER PRAYED IN VAIN

Miss Virginia O. Wardlaw, aunt of Mrs. Ocey W. M. Snead, whose body was found in the bathtub of an East Orange, N. J., house on Nov. 29, died yesterday in the House of Detention in Newark, N. J., where she was awaiting trial for the murder of her niece. Her sisters, Mrs. Mary Snead and Mrs. Caroline B. Martin, mother of the bathtub victim, are in jail in Newark, also awaiting trial on the same charge.

Miss Wardlaw died of starvation. For some weeks she had partaken of food sparingly, and for the last few days she had eaten nothing at all. The woman insisted that food would not remain on her stomach; that she was ill. Her jailers are convinced, however, that she died a suicide, having starved herself to avoid being placed on trial.

The woman was put in the House of Detention on last Monday by order of Chief Justice William S. Gummere after Dr. Walter S. Warrington and Dr. J. Henry Clark of Newark had examined her. It was hoped that the pleasanter surroundings in the House of Detention, with the opportunities it provided for more careful nursing of the woman, might prove beneficial to her. Her jailers believe now that it would have done so had she not been following a well-defined plan to take her own life.

Warden McGuinness provided food for Miss Wardlaw from his own table, and the matron sent her delicacies in the hope of tempting her appetite. Miss Wardlaw thanked them for these kindnesses, but pleaded that much as she might want to, she was unable to eat food. At last buttermilk was given to her, and for about three days she drank copious quantities of this. Then her taste for it seemed to leave her, and until her death she had taken practically no nourishment.

Miss Wardlaw became unconscious on Wednesday, and she did not regain her senses yesterday. Shortly after 4 o'clock she began to breath heavily, and she sank rapidly then until the end came. Her sisters were not with her at her death, for the jail officials would not allow them to leave the jail for the House of Detention without notification from the attending physician that Miss Wardlaw actually was dying. This could not be obtained in time.

With the dying woman, however, were her sister, Mrs. Richard Spindle; her brother, the Rev. A. G. Wardlaw; Franklin W. Fort, former counsel for the three sisters, and ex-Judge Chauncey H. Beasley, their present attorney. As the end drew near Dr. Wardlaw knelt by his sister's bedside and prayed while tears streamed down his cheeks. All others in the room knelt, too, while the minister prayed. When he concluded his words Miss Wardlaw was dead.

Miss Wardlaw's death revived the stories told at the time of her arrest that she, her niece, and the latter's husband, Fletcher W. Snead, had been parties to a suicide agreement which the girl alone had kept. The same rumor mongers suggested yesterday that now Miss Wardlaw had kept her pledge also.

The trial of the three sisters had been set for Aug. 29, but owing to the illness of Miss Wardlaw and also of Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott, who suffered a slight sunstroke a week ago in Nantucket, the trial was postponed until Sept. 29 by Justice Gummere.

What effect upon the fate of her sisters Miss Wardlaw's death will have none of the county officials were prepared to say yesterday. There seemed to be an impression, however, that the State now would give up its attempt to convict the remaining sisters of Mrs. Ocey Snead's murder.

Miss Wardlaw was, apparently, the strongest willed of the sisters, and it was she who directed the affairs for all three while they were in jail, consulting almost daily with counsel and planning with him her own defense and that of her sisters. She was a graduate of Wellesley College and had been Principal of an academy.

JOSEPH RITER NEAR DEATH.

Young Head of Great Pittsburg Concern Very Ill at Amsterdam.

Special to The New York Times.

PITSBURG, Aug. 11.—Joseph Riter, aged 28, head of the great Riter-Conley Company of Pittsburg, is lying at the point of death in Amsterdam, where, at the Hotel Asrel, on Aug. 1, he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Riter, the widowed mother of the young man, cabled for assistance on the evening of Aug. 2, saying the operation had not gone well, and President Gilbert Fletcher of the Riter-Conley interests at once started for Europe.

He caught the last train out of Pittsburg that night and caught the Caronia next morning by just as narrow a margin, reaching Queenstown yesterday and Amsterdam early to-day. On the vessel Mr. Fletcher received news of Mr. Riter's condition twice daily from Pittsburg by wireless, the news being cabled direct from the sickroom to Pittsburg twice each day.

Joseph Riter, who holds the modest position of Secretary in the Riter-Conley Company, owns the great concern almost entirely. His wealth is estimated at $10,000,000. He is the only son of Thomas B. Riter, who died some years ago.

Young Riter came into prominence immediately after his father's death, by announcing that he was not yet ripe for the Presidency of such a great concern as the Riter-Conley, but that he would become Secretary and permit other and older heads to run the business for some years, until he became more familiar with it. The young man, however, insisted on choosing his own men to head all departments, and he has gathered in since then some of the world's largest contracts. He is a member of all the Pittsburg clubs and of several New York clubs.

NEW HAVEN HAS 133,605.

Kansas City Nearly 250,000 in Census Returns—Both Show Big Increase.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The population of New Haven, Conn., according to the figures of the new census, just announced, is 133,605.

The increase in the last ten years is 25,578, or 23.7 per cent. gain over the figures of 1900, which made the population 108,127.

The census figures show that the population of Kansas City, Mo., is 248,381, an increase of 84,629, or 51.7 per cent., as compared with 163,752 in 1900.

Bulkeley Among Passengers Shaken in Clash with Cars—Engineer Dead.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 11.—In a collision to-night between a passenger train and three freight cars loaded with ties at Maromas, five miles south of here, Frederick B. Osworth, the engineer, was killed.

The passengers, among whom were United States Senator Morgan G. Bulkeley, were shaken and bruised. An open switch caused the wreck.

Landlady Finds Child Crying in Room After Boarder Disappeared.

Mrs. Annie Buckley, who keeps a furnished-room house at 521 West Twenty-third Street, appeared at Bellevue Hospital last night with a girl baby about a year old. She said that a fashionably dressed woman with the baby came to her house last Monday and took a room. She gave no name.

On Wednesday the woman left the house without the baby, and last night Mrs. Buckley heard faint cries coming from the room. She investigated and found the baby alone.

Dr. Hooker, at Bellevue Hospital, said the baby was suffering from lack of nourishment and might not live.

ACCAMAC BREAKS PADDLE.

Glen Island Boat Towed to Port and Passengers Return by Rail.

The port paddlewheel broke on the Glen Island steamer Accamac at 9:40 o'clock last night when the steamer was off Beldon's Point in the Sound on her last trip to Glen Island. The fifty passengers on board at first thought there was danger, but the crew reassured them, and they sat quietly while the steamer sounded its whistle for help.

Capt. Dutton, in the tug the Hugh Burrett, came alongside and, passing a rope to the Accamac, towed it to Beldon's Point, where the passengers were landed and conveyed to City Island, where they boarded a special train in which they were returned to town.

EARTHQUAKE IN ALASKA.

Ship Felt the Disturbance—Several Volcanoes Seen in Eruption.

SEATTLE, Aug. 11.—The steamship A. D. Lindsay, which arrived last night from Bethel, on the Koskewill River, brought news of a severe earthquake in Alaska on June 14.

The shock was so heavy that it jarred even the Lindsay as she was passing the west side of Unimak Pass, and made a considerable disturbance in the waters surrounding the islands.

According to those on board the Lindsay, the peaks on Akutan Island, Mount Pavloff, on the mainland near Unga, and peaks near the Chignik were all in eruption. Mount Pavloff in particular was vomiting a dense pall of black smoke, and Peak 1892, near Chignik, was very active.

ASHOKAN CLERKS TO GO.

Gaynor's Reforms Will Eliminate Special Counsel Also by Sept. 1.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 11.—As the result of Mayor Gaynor's reform in the Ashokan condemnation proceedings, which were begun three years ago in May, the work will be advanced so far by Sept. 1 that all the special counsel, clerks, and other place holders will be dropped on that date, according to an announcement made here to-day.

One clerk will be retained to look after the records and attend the two commissions which have not completed their work. Counsel from Corporation Counsel Watson's office, who have been in charge of the condemnation cases since March 1, will come to Kingston as occasion requires to close up unfinished cases.

PARALYZED, HE DRIVES TEAM.

Boy Is Injured by Lightning Bolt That Kills His Brother.

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 11.—After driving with one hand a team of bronchos for forty miles on a stormy night Alfred Villa delivered the body of his dead brother to his parents near this city last night.

While they were driving through the storm the buckboard in which the two boys were riding was struck by lightning, killing the younger boy instantly and paralyzing one side of the other. Regaining consciousness, the elder boy headed the team for home, driving with his unaffected hand.

Several other persons were stunned during the same storm.

VEIL FAD AT NEWPORT.

Blue and Brown Coverings Hiding the Face Are Now Worn.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 11.—Single and double veils of brown and blue colors is a fad in Newport, especially with the tennis set. The wearers presented a unique appearance as they came from the Casino to-day. It is difficult to recognize the veil wearers, who are wearing them up to their foreheads, with large soft hats and long brown woolen coats. Last Summer the veils were worn up to the nose, but now the entire face is covered, so no one can tell whose features are hidden.

Mrs. Reginald Brooks introduced the custom of hiding the entire face. Other ladies playing tennis with their veils lowered beneath the eyes include Mrs. Frederic C. Havemeyer, Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., Lady Granard, and Mrs. Henry C. Phipps.

THE OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

10:30.—Mayor Gaynor has had a comfortable day. He has taken sufficient nourishment, is cheerful and stronger and is now resting quietly.

Completed radiographic examination made by Dr. E. W. Caldwell shows definitely that the bullet is lodged in the vault of the pharynx. It is easily accessible, but it is not considered wise to attempt its removal at present.

Blood examinations are also satisfactory.

WILLIAM J. ARLITZ,
GEORGE D. STEWART,
CHARLES N. DOWD,
JOHN W. PARRISH.

12:30 A. M.—The Mayor is sleeping quietly. There has been no change since the last bulletin.

W. J. ARLITZ, M. D.
CHARLES M. DOWD, M. D.

Considerable relief was expressed last night by the friends of Mayor Gaynor at the result of a consultation of the physicians attending him. It stated that the bullet had been definitely located in a portion of the head where it could be easily reached as soon as it was deemed advisable to operate.

The consultation was the first which had been held during the day and came soon after a day full of rumors of trouble. It effectually dispelled them. It showed that the Mayor was not only resting comfortably but also had none of the symptoms which to the physician are signals that danger is at hand.

At the same time it is fully recognized at St. Mary's Hospital that the risk of infection is really only beginning. Now that more than forty-eight hours have passed since the shooting there has been time for blood poisoning to set in if the bullet was foul. So far the Mayor's temperature has remained at about the same figure—a little above 100—that it has been at for the last twenty-four hours. This is considered low for a man as severely wounded as he is, and as long as it keeps down it is certain that septicaemia has not set in, according to the physicians.

Physicians Are Encouraged.

The physicians arrived at the hospital about 8:30 o'clock last night. Dr. Brewer was unable to be present, but Dr. E. W. Caldwell attended with the X-ray plates, which he had developed, showing the Mayor's injuries. During the day Dr. George F. Sullivan of the hospital staff, who is also an assistant to Dr. Arlitz, had twice taken specimens of the Mayor's blood and was ready with the "blood count" to submit to the consultants.

The vault of the pharanyx, in which the bulletin announces the bullet is lodged, it was explained afterward by a doctor for the benefit of the layman, is the portion of the mouth that may be touched by thrusting a finger straight in as far as it will go. To extract the bullet from this part it will be necessary to avoid with care a certain number of arteries, but there is nothing in the operation that cannot be accomplished with safety by such skilled surgeons as are attending the Mayor.

When Dr. Arlitz came down from the consultation, he stated that the bulletins might be interpreted in the most hopeful way, and that he and his colleagues were well satisfied with the progress of the Mayor.

It was also learned that the "blood count" showed that the white corpuscles, whose increase is a sign of danger, were not unduly numerous. On each of the occasions on which this test was made yesterday, the Mayor's powers of resistance were found to be maintained satisfactorily.

Drs. Arlitz and Dowd, after the 12:30 A. M. bulletin, settled down to spend the night with the Mayor. Dr. Arlitz, when asked about the first reports that the bullet had been split, said:

"In the 10:30 bulletin the location of the bullet has been named by the doctors officially. The bulletin speaks for itself."

This was taken to mean that the bullet remains whole.

Obedient to His Orders.

All day long Dr. Stewart and Dr. Arlitz, the physicians left in charge of the Mayor, kept an anxious watch on their patient. As far as could be seen superficially, everything was progressing satisfactorily. The Mayor was quiet and concentrated all his great energies on the task of getting well. No thought about his assailant or the city government seemed to disturb him.

He lay quiet hour after hour, fretting wonderfully little over his confinement and cheerfully doing all that his medical advisers suggested. He took more nourishment with evidently less distress than on Wednesday, and his pulse, respiration, and temperature remained at figures which, in the circumstances, made everybody hopeful.

Yet the doctors were anxious. More than forty-eight hours had elapsed since the shooting, and it is reckoned that in the case of a gunshot wound, from which the bullet has not been removed, it will take at least forty-eight hours for any blood poisoning to pervade the system.

It was five days after McKinley was shot, when the consulting physicians were preparing to go home, that the first of the fatal symptoms appeared, and Mayor Gaynor's doctors know full well that however gratifying it is to find him resting easily and able to take nourishment, these symptoms are almost worthless in showing what chance of infection there is.

If blood poisoning sets in, it will manifest itself first by a rise in temperature, and will come suddenly. The danger will exist for weeks, if the bullets are not removed, and little can be done, short of a delicate and dangerous operation, to ward it off. They can only watch their patient for the first sign of trouble and hope that the condition of the bullet and his own sturdy constitution will keep him safe from complications.

Patient Slept Well.

The Mayor awoke yesterday morning about 6 o'clock, and then dropped off again about 7. He slept for an hour, and this was really as much sleep as he has been accustomed to get continuously, even when he is in good health. At 6:30 o'clock this bulletin was issued:

> Mayor Gaynor is getting along well. He spent a comfortable night and slept most of the time. His temperature and respiration are normal.
> GEORGE D. STEWART, M. D.

Forty minutes later this more specific statement was given out:

> 7:10 A. M.—The Mayor spent a comfortable night. His temperature is 100 1-5; pulse 76; respiration 17.
> W. J. ARLITZ, M. D.,
> GEORGE D. STEWART, M. D.

The Mayor said he was hungry and wanted his breakfast. He did not appreciate the coffee and said it was not like what he got at home. Robert Adamson, his secretary, went in search of Mrs. Gaynor, and she hurried to the kitchen and prepared coffee just as she knew the Mayor liked it, and also cooked an egg to his taste.

This incident is characteristic of the way the Mayor leans on his wife. He looks to her for help in his trouble; he accepts her suggestions as always right, and he listens to her encouragement as fraught with some power to make them of avail.

"He's just like a child," said Mrs. Gaynor.

She on her part has spared no pains to do all to make him comfortable. As soon as she had had her breakfast she returned to the Mayor's bedside, and stayed there all the rest of the day, except for brief intervals.

Drs. Stewart and Arlitz dressed the wound externally soon after 8 o'clock, and found no sign of hemorrhage or infection. They felt encouraged, and said there was no necessity for Drs. Brewer or Dowd to come over from New York, in fact Dr. Stewart felt justified in going away for a few hour to attend to another case.

The Mayor saw no one but Mrs. Gaynor, Mr. Adamson, and Dr. Lederle. He had expressed a desire to see Miss Gertrude Gaynor, who had remained at St. James, L. I., in charge of the younger children. She was telephoned for, and his son, Rufus Gaynor, went to meet her at the Long Island City Railway Station in the Mayor's automobile.

Didn't See His Daughter.

Miss Gaynor reached the hospital accompanied by her friend, Miss Lilian Hyde, about 10 o'clock. Miss Gaynor went upstairs, but found her father was dozing, and to her disappointment could not see him. She stayed with her mother for a time, and then went back to her Brooklyn home to get some things her mother needed.

Evidence of the returning confidence of the Mayor's family was afforded by the departure of Thomas L. Gaynor, his brother from Springfield, Ohio. He left in the morning on a business trip to Baltimore, to be gone two days.

Whenever he was not asleep the Mayor chatted freely with his doctors and nurses. He asked Dr. Arlitz and Dr. Parrish how they put in their vacations and what would be advisable for him as soon as he is convalescent. His mind turned often to the Maine woods and Canada, and he became quite interested as he spoke of moose hunting.

Of Gallagher and the shooting he said nothing, and never once did he speculate on its motive. In fact, not yet has the Mayor learned that his assailant has been identified or that he is a discharged city employe. The only reference he has made to municipal affairs is to the coincidence that his last official act before leaving the City Hall on Monday was to sign a paper dealing with the incorporation of a hospital at St. James, L. I.

His Latest Official Act.

Just as he was leaving his office he remembered the paper had been brought to him by one of his country neighbors. He turned into Mr. Adamson's room with his hat already on and signed it there before one of the public notaries attached to his office. The hospital is to be erected on the former home of the late Father Ducey.

The Mayor is beginning to feel the confinement and was restless during the day. He wants to get home and would like more food. He asked for a second egg at 10 o'clock in the morning, but received only milk and vichy. Of this he daank a good deal during the day. The doctors were pleased to find that he could drink a glass at a time, and that there was none of the struggle to get nourishment down which had been marked on Wednesday.

Mr. Adamson, in speaking of the Mayor's frame of mind, said:

"His attitude is that of a man whose only business it is to get well, and puts his mind to it. He cuts out everything irrelevant to the one issue."

"Is he conscious of all around him?" a reporter asked.

"He's alert every waking moment. I can tell you he's bossing his job. His personality is just as marked now as ever it was, and he has his own little ways: He is curious about everything, and was particularly interested in the X-ray apparatus and process."

Food Every Two Hours.

Throughout the day the Mayor was fed at intervals of two hours with chicken broth and milk and vichy. He also ate a second egg. About 2 o'clock the wound was dressed once more, and this bulletin was issued:

> Pulse, temperature, and respiration remain unchanged since 8:30. Everything is satisfactory.

In the absence of definite news the usual rumors began to fly around, often associated with the names of doctors not connected with the case. From the first the Mayor's throat has been sprayed, but when a new atomizer was sent for, this was interpreted to mean that inflammation had set in, a most unfavorable sign. This was authoritatively denied.

Again it was rumored that there was a split among the physicians on the advisability of an immediate operation. Dr. Arlitz declared in the afternoon that they were fully agreed on every point of the case.

At 8:30 P. M. it was decided to make it plain that no information purporting to proceed from any but the regular doctors was to be credited. Accordingly this statement was issued:

> The surgeons in attendance on the Mayor are Dr. W. J. Arlitz, Dr. George E. Brewer, Dr. George D. Stewart, and Dr. Charles A. Dowd. During their absence on Wednesday afternoon Dr. Charles H. Peck attended the Mayor. The Mayor's family physician, Dr. John W. Parrish, is also with him.
> No other surgeon or physician has at any time been connected with the case. This statement is made because of unfounded reports and statements by those pretending to be associated with the Mayor's physicians.
> ERNST J. LEDERLE,
> ROBERT ADAMSON.

Yesterday was visiting day at the hospital, but the authorities did their best to preserve the Mayor from any annoyance. Children were kept off his floor. His own visitors, who were only able to leave their names, included George B. Cortelyou, John S. Whelan, Commissioners Edwards, Baker, Waldo, Charles White, Thompson, Tomkins, B. F. Cressen, Jr., Magistrate John J. Freschi, and Antonia Astoreta of the Board of Tax Assessors.

Edwards's Wound Healing.

Dock Commissioner Tomkins had come all the way from Canada on hearing of the shooting, and Commissioner Edwards appeared in the double rôle of inquirer and patient. Dr. Arlitz dressed the flesh wound on his left arm and said it was healing nicely.

Flowers were sent to the Mayor in such profusion that they could not be all placed in the Mayor's room and were distributed through the ward.

The usual cranks were in evidence. A man came a long distance specially to spray the Mayor's throat, another announced that he had a cure for throat-poisoning which could not fail to eradicate it in twelve hours.

A third arrived with a bullet set with a diamond mounted as a stickpin. He said that he had been shot in the right side of the jaw just as the Mayor.

COURT DELAYS INDICTMENT.

Judge Swayze Thinks It Best to Hold Gallagher Pending Gaynor's Recovery

It was thought at first by the prosecuting officers of Hudson County, N. J., that if John J. Gallagher was indicted merely for assault in its various degrees and the Mayor died afterward the charge of murder could later be preferred against him. This, however, was not the opinion of Justice Swayze, and he charged the Hudson County Grand Jury yesterday that it would be dangerous to indict Gallagher at present for the lesser crime for fear that he might plead guilty to them and so escape prosecution for murder if at any time it should be necessary, or that he might apply for bail and jump his bonds. The Judge said:

"Gentlemen of the Grand Jury: The thought which is uppermost in your minds, as in mine, is that suggested by the shocking attempt of Tuesday to assassinate Mayor Gaynor. The temptation to act speedily is great, but justice requires that you avoid haste in a case like this and to refrain from action until the final result of the injury is ascertained. For if the result should be death the indictment ought to be for murder, while if there is a premature indictment before the ultimate result of the wound is ascertained it might interfere with the indictment for the higher offense, and a premaure indictment for the lesser offense and a conviction would bar a conviction for the greater.

"My associates this morning have called my attention to the fact that if you should indict the assailant of Mayor Gaynor for assault with attempt to kill, or atrocious assault, which is all for which he could at present be indicted, it would be within his power to plead guilty to that indictment and that plea of guilty would bar a substitute indictment for murder.

"Moreover, he would be entitled to bail upon an indictment of that character, whereas now he is held without bail. You will, therefore, see the importance of taking no action at present.

"Unless, therefore, what we all trust and hope may be diverted, shall happen during the course of your deliberations you ought to take no action. If, however, our hopes should be disappointed and death should result, it would be your duty upon the evidence to be submitted to you by the prosecutor to indict the assailant of Mayor Gaynor for murder, while though for certain purposes the State of New York has jurisdiction over waters of the Hudson River under the treaty between New York and New Jersey, this State has exclusive jurisdiction of and over all vessels fastened to any wharf or dock on our shores, and the jurisdiction of the State of New Jersey is to be properly exercised by this court and the Grand Jury of this county."

So as to render the Hudson County authorities every assistance in their power, Acting Mayor Mitchell, Executive Secretary Miljan B. Melo, Police Commissioner Baker, and Lieut. Kennell of the Mayor's office took over to Assistant Prosecutors Vickers and McCarthy copies of the five letters which Gallagher had written to the Mayor and his Honor's replies. They held a long conference with the New Jersey officials. The strong desire of the New York authorities was expressed that Gallagher's case should be treated as that of any other man and that nothing should be done that savored of persecution.

The plea of insanity will be interposed by Gallagher's counsel if Mayor Gaynor fails to survive. The defense has retained Dr. E. Styles Potter, who visited Gallagher yesterday afternoon in the County Jail at Jersey City.

"Why did you shoot Mayor Gaynor?" was the abrupt interrogatory of Dr. Potter in a commanding tone. Gallagher trembled and wept and sobbed as he replied:

"I had to do it to get justice."

During a long stay in examining and questioning the prisoner as to his family history he stated his mother was a lunatic. Dr. Potter was accompanied by Lawyer Samuel Jacktoff of Manhattan and Counselor Alex Simpson of Jersey City, who has been retained to defend Gallagher. The prisoner is exceedingly nervous and melancholy. He sleeps little, weeps frequently, and eats sparingly. He is kept under close surveillance by order of Jail Warden Sullivan.

PROSECUTORS NOT AT ODDS.

Mr. Moss Annoyed at Such Reports—Didn't Claim Jurisdiction.

Acting District Attorney Frank Moss has been annoyed by the published statements that his office was trying to assume the right to prosecute John J. Gallagher, and that a conflict had ensued between it and the authorities of Hudson County, in which the shooting took place. He issued a statement yesterday explaining the action of his office and saying that all he had done was to ascertain that he was not responsible, and to offer to Prosecuting Attorney Pierre P. Garven and his assistants all the aid in his power.

"Several news articles," said the statement, "indicate a misunderstanding of the attitude of this office in the case of the shooting of Mayor Gaynor. We did not claim jurisdiction, and there was no dispute of authority.

"The first stories of the shooting were contradictory. One was that the Mayor was on the dock when shot, another that he was on the ship, another that the ship was in the stream. It was said that Mrs. Gaynor was with her husband and in distress.

"It was our duty as officials and our privilege as friends to ascertain the facts and to render assistance. I requested Mr. Turnbull and Mr. Hamill to go at once to Mrs. Gaynor and report the facts, to convey our sympathy and proffer assistance to her; to see what, if any, steps had been taken for prosecution and to render our help in New York to the New Jersey authorities. That was done, and no more. Had we done less we would have been blameworthy.

"The matter of jurisdiction is simple. The State division line runs through the middle of the river, but by State agreement New York has jurisdiction for certain purposes up to the low-water line, except on docks and vessels tied to docks."

MORE CHEERING MESSAGES.

Carnegie Cables His Sincere Good Wishes from Scotland.

Telegrams of sympathy from many parts of the world continued yesterday to pour in for the Mayor and Mrs. Gaynor. Among the most interesting of these were:

> Greatly shocked. Heartily hope quick recovery.
> THEODORE A. BINGHAM.

> Am shocked and grieved at murderous attack upon you. Anxiously hoping for your speedy recovery. May you be spared to your country for many years.
> W. J. BRYAN,
> Lancaster, Ohio.

> Best wishes speedy recovery.
> DAVID LEVENTRITT.

> Words fail to express our horror and grief. May your precious life be preserved.
> ANDREW CARNEGIE,
> Clashmore, Sutherland, Scotland.

> Deepest sympathy at your honored husband's injury. May God preserve his life.
> BISHOP T. S. SUTHERLAND.

> I regret exceedingly the dastardly attempt upon the life of your dear husband, and earnestly hope for his speedy recovery.
> PATRICK McGOWAN.

> I am greatly shocked by the news of the dastardly attack made upon the Mayor, and fervently express the hope that his so valuable life may be saved to his family and his fellow citizens, who need him so much. May God give you the strength to sustain yourself in this hard trial.
> JACOB H. SCHIFF,
> Quebec.

> Your hosts of friends in Carlsbad were shocked at attempt on your life, and are now rejoicing at your favorable prospects of recovery.
> LOUIS STERN,
> Carlsbad.

> Inexpressibly shocked. Fervently hope speedy recovery.
> JACOB RIIS.

Erman J. Ridgway also wrote placing at the disposal of the Mayor and his family his country place at Elizabethtown, N. Y.

Commissioner Edwards was the recipient of a number of congratulatory letters and telegrams on his prowess in disarming and capturing Gallagher and his escape from a serious wound. One young lad came to his office in the Street Cleaning Department to ask for a piece of the coat he was wearing at the time he was shot as a souvenir. He was also called upon the telephone from Stamford, Conn., to know if he would like to receive a telegram of congratulation "collect." He replied that he would not.

WHERE DANGER LIES.

Surgeon Gives His Views of the Wound Inflicted on the Mayor.

A well-known New York surgeon who has had considerable experience with gunshot wounds, in discussing the condition of Mayor Gaynor last night, said that it had been impossible from the bulletins issued by the attending surgeons for any other surgeon to determine closely what was the exact nature and extent of the Mayor's injury.

Nothing had been said in any of the bulletins to show whether or not the wound inflicted by Gallagher's bullet had affected the mouth. But a picture taken immediately after the shooting showed bleeding from the mouth. From this fact the surgeon inferred that the wound had affected the mouth.

No more dangerous wound could be inflicted, he said, than one which causes a lesion there, for the reason that it is impossible to keep such a wound clean. It may not be infected, but if not it is luck, and not the result of surgical care. The special danger in such a case arises from the bacteria always present in the saliva which are constantly taken into the mouth with food and water, and even with the air which is breathed.

If the injury to Mayor Gaynor is of this character, said this surgeon, the first thing which the attending surgeons would do, would be to let it alone in the hope that the mucous membrane which develops very rapidly would grow over it and stop the danger of infection from bacteria. With that done, the way would then lie open to operate on the other wound and clean it thoroughly. After that it would be comparatively a simple case.

CLERK SHOT IN A BANK.

Comrade Was Showing How Gaynor Was Wounded When Shell Exploded.

Five young clerks in the Colonial Bank's branch at 116th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue were discussing the shooting of Mayor Gaynor after hours last night. Jean Richard Bonnamy of 100½ West 130th Street got a revolver from the cashier's drawer, extracted all the bullets, and then illustrated with the unloaded weapon just how the shots had been fired at the Mayor.

Bonnamy had loaded the revolver and was about to return it to the cashier's desk when it exploded, and a bullet struck George F. Wing of 182 West 135th Street in the abdomen. The clerks were thrown into a panic. Doorman Anthony of the West 125th Street Police Station was passing, and he called a surgeon from the Harlem Hospital.

Wing was taken there, and his condition was said to be critical. Bonnamy was arrested, although Wing said that the shooting was accidental.

Patrolman Hock to be Tried.

Patrolman Joseph P. Hock of the Madison Street Station, who was suspended on Wednesday pending an investigation of the charges that while intoxicated he predicted the assault upon Mayor Gaynor during a conversation with two young women, will be brought to trial next Monday at Police Headquarters.

Wintemute's picture, and are printed in red ink. They are headed, "Straight in the Eye," and read in part:

> I am looking you straight in the eye when I say to you, "Exchange your worthless mining stock for Gold Run." Don't cringe or squirm or dodge my glance, but look at me straight in the eye and tell me why you don't exchange your worthless stock for Gold Run at 10 cents a share.

George Craig of 124 Willoughby Street, Brooklyn, one of the investors in Wintemute's company, received one of the "Straight in the Eye" circulars and immediately saw a great light. He brought the circular around to the Post Office authorities. The Post Office men said last night that Wintemute had sent more than 200 pieces of mail to each of the 12,000 names on his list.

The Post Office authorities gave out last night a list of enterprises which Wintemute has promoted. These include the Conchiula Gold Reef Mining Company, the Nevada Exploration Syndicate, the Redmond Mine, Milling, and Smelting Company of Sonora, Mexico; the Nevada Oil Company, the Founder's Pool, the Redmond Extension Mining Company, and the Peanut Cerec-Coffee Company. They said Wintemute operated in Wall Street in 1906 under the name of Norman W. McCloud & Co., with offices at 68 Wall Street. McCloud, they said, was a clerk of Wintemute.

Warszawiak's Career.

Warszawiak has also figured in the newspapers before as sales agent for Western stocks of a speculative character. This was in 1902, three years after his case had split the governing bodies of the Presbyterian Church into two warring factions. At that time Warszawiak flooded England with circulars and letters on behalf of the Texas Oil Pipe Line Company. He had not yet given up his mission for the conversion of Jews to Christianity at 182 Grand Street, in this city.

POLICEMEN BLIND TO ATTACK ON MAN

Stand Idly by and See a Fruit Dealer Beaten and a Shopkeeper Held Up.

CAPTAIN STARTS INQUIRY

Three Men on the Force May Face Serious Charges Before McDermott Gets Through.

The story of an assault on an Italian fruit vendor, which aroused a neighborhood, the appearance of a policeman on the scene, and the subsequent hold-up of the assaulted man for $1, with the policeman standing within a few feet and not interfering, is being investigated by Acting Capt. McDermot of the West 125th Street Station. Before the investigation is concluded it is said that three policemen may be involved in the affair.

On Monday evening, about 9 o'clock, three men were drinking in the saloon of P. J. Nevins, 567 Lenox Avenue. One of the trio is said to be a policeman of the East 104th Street Station. Another of the men, described by the saloon keeper as about twenty-two years old, sandy hair, light complexion, and wearing a brown suit, went out to the sidewalk, where there is a fruit stand kept by a man named Mulano.

The man had been drinking and was in a quarrelsome mood. He bought a pear from the man and received in change some small coins. This angered him and he began to abuse the Italian. This continued for some time, and then he turned and went into the saloon. Nevins last night admitted that he had had some trouble with the man over a drink. He said he thought he used to "hang out about 130th Street and Amsterdam Avenue and was a bartender."

After a short stay in the saloon the man again appeared on the street and went to the stand. By this time his actions had attracted some attention. Again he demanded larger coins as change for his purchase. The Italian vainly endeavored to pacify him, but the man worked himself up into a perfect tempest of passion.

Policeman Looks On.

"I no gota bill," said the fruit seller, and he pulled out a handful of small change to prove that he was telling the truth.

As he extended his hand the other struck him across the bridge of his nose and knocked him down. The man lay on the ground with blood streaming down his face, and he shouted for help.

A crowd gathered. At 561 Lenox Avenue is the delicatessen store of S. Levin, next is the barber's shop of Jerry Currish, then the butcher's shop kept by M. Geisman, and next and between that and the saloon is Joseph Reitker's stationery store. All these men were among those who were attracted to the street by the cries of the fallen man.

There are many witnesses to what happened after that. The fruit seller's assailant was still threatening him when Policeman Gordon of the West 125th Street Station, who was on post, strolled along. He became an interested spectator of the scene. The Italian was still lying on the street crying out with pain, and the man who struck him stood apparently unconcerned a few feet away. Gordon made no move to interfere, and several went up to him and asked him to make an arrest. They told him what had happened, but he did nothing.

One woman protested that he ought to make an arrest. Others pointed the man out to him. Gordon would not be moved. He was still standing there doing nothing when the trio turned and with a short laugh from one of them turned and entered the saloon again.

Some of those in the crowd assisted the Italian to his feet and took him to a nearby store, where his face was washed and an attempt made to doctor his hurts, which some say looked as though he had been struck by brass knuckles. He was attended to and went back still crying to his stand.

Returns to the Attack.

Things quieted down somewhat, though every window contained one or more heads, and Policeman Gordon strolled some distance away. It was about half an hour after the men had re-entered the saloon when the Italian's assailant lurched through the doors again. He stood and looked at his victim for a few moments and then walking over to him said roughly:

"I want a dollar, and if you don't give me one I will kill you."

The now thoroughly frightened man turned and ran.

"I'll kill you," shouted the man in brown, lurching after him.

The Italian sought refuge in Levin's shop. He and his pursuer had to pass Gordon on the way, and, according to Levin, Gordon stood outside the door, a witness to what happened. The young man grabbed the Italian, and holding him by the throat, back against the wall, repeated his demand for a dollar.

The Italian was protesting that he did not have a dollar bill when Levin interfered.

"You shut up," replied the other, "or I will kill the both of you."

Levin, afraid that the man would attempt to carry out his threat, turned to his cash drawer and gave the man a dollar bill. The fellow took it and walked jauntily out of the store.

According to witnesses, he said to Gordon, who stood outside: "Come on around the corner and I will introduce you to some of my friends."

The policeman said nothing and the man turned and walked around to the saloon again. There he joined his friends, including the man said to be a policeman, and their drinking bout was continued. In this, however, Nevins says the story is wrong. He declares they did not return to his saloon.

Another Policeman Saw It.

While Gordon was standing outside the delicatessen shop another policeman, who was from the East 126th Street Station, crossed the avenue, which is the precinct dividing line, talked to Gordon, and then turned and went back to his own territory.

The fruit seller went on Tuesday morning to the Harlem Court and there told his story to the Magistrate. The latter gave him a letter to the Acting Captain of the West 125th Street Station, telling him if nothing was done there for him to come back to court and he would look further into the case. This started the police investigation, which last night did not seem to be going vigorously.

The whole affair had aroused great indignation in the neighborhood, where it is said many know the name of the policeman who was one of the trio in Nevins's saloon.

Acting Capt. McDermott of the West 125th Street Station said last night that he could not discuss the case. He admitted, however, that an investigation was being made.

Appraiser Names Cutlery Examiner.

Henry M. Clapp, Acting Appraiser, announced yesterday the appointment of William V. Bunting of Ellenville, N. Y., as examiner of cutlery in the ninth division of the Appraiser's stores at $2,500 a year in the place of the late George W. Thumm. Mr. Bunting has been connected with the Ulster County Cutlery Company of Ellenville.

Gresser Denies Charges.

Was Stockholder in Memphis Car Co., Now Turned Over to Illinois Central.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 11.—Disclosures of a sensational nature involving high former officials of the Illinois Central Railroad in the conspiracy by which the Memphis Car Company is alleged to have defrauded the railroad of hundreds of thousands of dollars were made to-day when a decree was entered in Chancellor Heiskell's court. By this decree every dollar's worth of property in the Memphis Car Company's plant and a sum in cash will be turned over to the Illinois Central Railroad. Deeds were filed from the entering of the decree.

Prosecutions will immediately begin, it is said, against a number of the former officials implicated, probably in the Illinois courts first and later in the Tennessee courts.

The stockholders mentioned in the decree, besides E. H. Ward and H. C. Osterman, the organizers of the Memphis Car Company, and their official positions at the time of the issuance of the stock, were:

Ira G. Rawn, formerly Vice President and General Manager of the Illinois Central, who lately died by a shot from a revolver held in his own hand, as the Coroner's jury put it.

Frank B. Harriman, General Manager of the Illinois Central.

Hugh McCourt, General Superintendent of the southern lines of the Illinois Central.

W. S. King, General Superintendent of the Yazoo City & Mississippi Valley Railroad, operating also the Memphis terminals of the Illinois Central.

William Renshaw, until May 1, 1908, Superintendent of Machinery, having charge of repair and equipment.

Joseph E. Baker, Assistant Superintendent of Machinery.

John M. Taylor, general storekeeper, Burnside shops, Chicago.

Renshaw is said to be in France, but as soon as a true bill is secured efforts will be made to bring him back.

It is known that the Illinois Central refused offers of large sums in a settlement to include immunity, declaring that the road would rather lose the millions of which it had been defrauded than to have the officials who had been parties to the alleged fraud escape punishment.

Two of the officials, it is set forth, have returned to the Illinois Central the amounts received by them as dividends. These are H. McCourt and W. S. King, each of whom made voluntary restitution of $13,000 in cash.

ASSAILED BY TWO GIRLS.

Felled Philadelphia Conductor With Baseball Bat and Left Him Dying.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—Two girls, one of whom was armed with a baseball bat, and the other with a hatpin, held up Harry Hamell of Trenton on Vine Street, west of Ninth Street, early this morning, rifled his pockets and left him dying on the sidewalk. Two suspects are under arrest.

According to Hamell's story, the girls leaped on him from a dark alley on the south side of the street. Before the startled man was aware of the intentions one of them bagged him, and the other hit him over the head with a baseball bat, felling him. His assailants then jumped on him and scratched his face.

A motorman on a Ridge Avenue car noticed a man lying on the pavement and notified a policeman, who found Hamell unconscious. He was taken to the Hahnemann Hospital, where an examination disclosed that his skull had bee fractured.

When Hamell regained consciousness he told his story to a nurse. From Hamell's description of his assailants the police arrested Anna Schuman and Marion Wright at their home, 1,012 Winter Street. Both girls girls are 20 years old. They answered fuly the description given by Hamell even to their wearing apparel. Both women are well known to the police. Hamell is a passenger conductor on the New York divivsion of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad. He was on his way to the Reading terminal at the time of the attack.

A wave of crime stretching over a period of three or four weeks has caused the police of this city growing concern. Roberies nave been more frequent and daring hold-ups have occurred from time to time.

A Fireproof Railway Station.

The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad has begun the construction of a new type of passenger station, all fireproof. It is at Towaco, N. J., and is built of hollow terra cotta blocks. In its effort to make the structure completely safe, the company has used materials, inside as well as outside, which have undergone strength and fire tests. The partitions, like the walls, are of terra cotta blocks, while the floors are granolithic—a preparation of cement and sand. The roof is slate.

FORMER CLIENT CITED IN RICE MURDER CASE

John Hartness Brown, Real Estate Promoter, Is Called to Testify.

NAMED BY DR. PHILLIPS

Latter Says Brown Came Up Soon After Body Was Found and Asked What the Trouble Was.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 11.—As a result of testimony given to-day at the Coroner's inquest into the murder of William L. Rice, John Hartness Brown, a real estate operator and promoter, has been summoned to appear to-morrow as a witness. This action followed the testimony of Dr. W. H. Phillips, who found Rice's body and carried it in his automobile to St. Luke's Hospital.

Dr. Phillips testified that Brown was one of the first persons on the scene, and that he arrived just after the body had been placed in the tonneau of the car, and inquired what the matter was.

Brown refused to-night to discuss the case.

"In view of the fact that I am to testify to-morrow," said Brown, when asked what his testimony would be, "I don't think I should say anything now."

That portion of Dr. Phillips's testimony relating to Brown was brought out by Prosecutor Cline after Attorney Garfield of Rice's law firm, Bladin, Rice & Ginn, had led the direct investigation. Garfield was aided all through his questioning by William Nelson Cromwell, the New York attorney, and by Mr. Ginn.

Prosecutor Cline questioned Dr. Phillips about the position of the body when found, and the examination proceeded as follows:

Q.—What Mr. Brown was it that you spoke to when you were starting away with the body? A.—John Hartness Brown.

Q.—Where did he come from? A.—From the pavement near the corner.

Q.—What conversation did you have with him? A.—He only asked what the trouble was.

Q.—Did Brown look at the body? A.—No.

Q.—How near did he come? A.—Two feet.

Q.—Which way was he facing? A.—Facing me on the front seat of the machine.

Q.—Where was the body? A.—Behind me.

Q.—What was Mr. Brown's manner? A.—Simply that of a neighbor inquiring.

Q.—Did he ask who the man was? A.—No.

Q.—Did he show any desire to look at the body? A.—I could not say.

Q.—Were the blood spots discernible on the ground. A.—Yes.

Q.—Could Brown see them? A.—I don't know.

Q.—How far was he from the blood spots? A.—Fifteen or twenty feet.

Q.—Was the blood spot under the glare of the light? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you seen Brown since the murder took place? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know him? A.—Only by sight.

Q.—Can you describe his appearance that night? A.—Not his clothes.

Q.—Can you tell how Brown was dressed? A.—Only that I believe he had on house slippers.

Q.—Now repeat all of what Brown said. A.—It was either "What is the trouble?" or "What is the matter?"

Q.—Were you close to Mr. Brown? A.—Yes.

Q.—Would you have heard him if he had spoken to anyone else? A.—I think so.

Q.—Where did Mr. Brown go? A.—I don't know. We put the body in the machine and went away.

John Hartness Brown about six years ago erected an eight-story building on Euclid Avenue, near East Ninth Street. The building was never completed, and for several years the lease has been the subject of litigation. Rice was Brown's attorney, and appeared in court personally, one of the very few cases in which he did so.

PIPE FOUR FEET HIGH.

Has a Bowl Nearly a Foot in Height—Seized for Customs Duty.

A marvelous pipe was added yesterday to the assorted collection of articles at the Appraisers' Stores. It was seized by a vigilant customs watchman on Pier 35, Brooklyn. He said in his report that he had detected J. C. Hendricks, a steward on the Uranium liner Volturno, attempting to take it ashore under his coat.

The pipe stands about four feet high. It is of German design, with a porcelain bowl nearly a foot high. On this is painted a scene and an inscription in German. The stem is of black and gray horn, elaborately carved from bowl to mouthpiece.

Hendricks went to the Custom House and explained that he had no intention of smuggling the pipe. He was bringing it ashore, he said, to find out where he must go on the pier to pay duty when the watchman pounced upon him. He said that he bought the pipe for $3. Some of the officials offered to give $3 for it and pay duty besides. Hendricks did not take the offer.

ALDRICH DENIES RUBBER CHARGES

If this important raw material, which competes with no domestic product, should be placed upon the dutiable list the duty would clearly be added to the cost of the rubber to the manufacturer or the consumer, and would not affect the producer, whose price would still be controlled by the market price of the world.

"Of all the ridiculous statements made by the Kansas Senator, none is quite so ridiculous as that in which he states that the Intercolonial Rubber Company absolutely controls the crude rubber supply. The world's production of crude rubber in 1909 was about one hundred and seventy-five millions of pounds, of which the United States took about ninety-three millions of pounds. The production of the International Rubber Company and its subordinate companies was about ten millions of pounds, or less than 6 per cent. of the whole.

"To say that the advance which took place from month to month in the price of crude rubber throughout the world from 70 cents in 1902 to $3 in 1910 was owing to an unimportant increase of from 30 to 35 per cent. in August, 1909, on importations affecting less than 1 per cent. in value of the total product of rubber, displays a depth of ignorance which has rarely been reached.

Dividends Had Been Deferred.

"As to the dividends paid by the Intercontinental Rubber Company on its preferred stock in the early months of this present year, I will say that these were deferred payments of cumulative dividends; deferred, as the earnings of the company had theretofore been used in the development of its business. Not one mill of the earnings from which dividends were paid could be attributed, as I have already stated, to the tariff of the United States, or to any change in tariff rates.

"The change in the tariff on manufactures of rubber not otherwise provided for, from 30 to 35 per cent., in Paragraph 463, was not made or recommended for protective purposes or at the instance of or for the benefit of any domestic manufacturer. It was made upon the recommendation of the Treasury experts, solely for administrative purposes.

"When the Tariff bill reached the Finance Committee, it was stated thus by the Treasury experts who had been assigned by the President to assist the committee in the preparation of amendments, that it was extremely desirable that the rates of duty imposed by Paragraphs 140, 427, 455, and 465 of the House bill on the miscellaneous manufactures of various materials should be uniform with the rates imposed on similar manufactures in other parts of the bill."

Senator Aldrich says the statements of fact that led to the unanimous conclusion of the Finance Committee and the Conference Committee to recommend an increase of duty on the articles named are clearly set forth in a letter to him from Gen. Thad A. Sharretts, a member of the Board of General Appraisers.

Changes Urged by Sharretts.

In the letter, which Senator Aldrich quotes in full, Gen. Sharretts said:

> Under instructions from President Taft I was in Washington and gave such aid as I was able to the Finance Committee of the Senate in the preparation of the tariff act of 1909.
>
> Regarding paragraph 463, I urged that the rates of duty specified therein should be made 35 per cent. instead of 30 per cent., as in paragraph 449 of the Dingley act. In support of that recommendation I gave the following reasons to the committee:
>
> Under the act of 1897 there were in excess of 5,000 cases litigated before the courts, due to the fact that paragraph 449 imposed 30 per cent. ad valorem on manufactures of bone, chip, grass, horn, India rubber, straw, &c.; while manufactures of wood, under paragraph 208; paper, under paragraph 407; hard rubber and leather, under paragraph 450; dolls, under paragraph 418; and hats, bonnets, and hoods, untrimmed, for women and children, composed of chip, straw, grass, or palm leaf, in paragraph 409, were all subject to a duty of 35 per cent. ad valorem; and these litigated cases involved the almost hopeless task of determining which of the materials was the component of chief value.
>
> Hard rubber was provided for in paragraph 450 at 35 per cent., while India rubber was named in paragraph 449 at 30 per cent. Then, where hard rubber ended and India rubber began was another prolific source of controversy.
>
> "To avoid expensive litigation, delay, and uncertainty in classification, leading importers urged that the duty on manufactures of India rubber be made 35 per cent., the same as toys. Inasmuch as Paragraphs 208, 407, 409, and 450 all imposed a duty of 35 per cent. on substances of a kindred nature, or those which had to be combined with those enumerated in Paragraph 449, to avoid future litigation, and to accord with the wishes of the importers and the officers of the Government, solely for purposes of administration, I urged that the rate of duty should be made 35 per cent. to correspond with that specified in the other paragraphs of the act. Had the numerous other paragraphs of the act provided a lower rate of duty than Paragraph 463 I should have recommended that the rate be changed to conform thereto.
>
> "The wisdom of this change has been fully demonstrated by the fact that, although there were many thousands of cases litigated under the act of 1897 for the reasons set forth, under the present act there has not been a single case.

Higher Rate Adopted.

Senator Aldrich's letter to Congressman McKinley continues:

> "The committee found that if the desired uniformity was secured by making all the rates 30 per c

FALL OF BROOKINS DUE TO HIS DARING

Wilbur Wright Says the First Rule of Aviation Forbids an Ascent Until Field Is Cleared.

JOHNSTONE'S DARING FLIGHT

Rises to Nearly 1,500 Feet in the Air and Lands Gracefully—Big Events for Governor's Day To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 11.—The fears of the Asbury Park promoters of the aviation meet that the fall of Brookins and his biplane into the crowd on Wednesday would cut down the attendance, proved unfounded this afternoon. Instead of scaring people away, the accident seemed to increase the sale of seats more than 100 per cent. There were 10,000 persons in the grandstands to-day, and they saw an exhibition of what airmen can do aloft when on their mettle, that has not been equalled at any previous exhibition.

Wilbur Wright was here to watch his fledglings and see that no more of them came to grief by taking chances. He informed the promoters that his brother Orville would be on from Dayton to-morrow and would make a flight.

Some of the committeemen begged Wilbur to ascend, but he said he had too many lawsuits hanging over his head involving his patents to make him care to take a risk in unnecessary flights. The fact that one of three machines on the ground had been reduced to kindling wood and bent wire, put extra responsibilities upon Ralph Johnstone and Archie Hoxsey, the only two of the Wright fliers whose wings were in condition. They were in the air two hours, and Johnstone performed successfully the feat of alighting on a prearranged mark, in attempting which the Hon. C. S. Rolls lost his life at Bournemouth, England, on July 11. In addition there were three ten-minute efforts, one conspicuous for the height attained, and another for the beauty of the aeroplane's evolutions.

Bulletins received from Brookins during the afternoon announced that he was on the way to speedy recovery. He sent word that he hoped to fly again on Monday in a new machine which Wilbur Wright ordered from Dayton a few minutes after he heard of the accident. Wright said he would not allow Brookins to fly on Monday, however, as he had important work for him later in the Summer and wanted him to be fully recovered from the shock of his fall before taking the air again. In the Long Branch Hospital George Burnett, the 14-year-old boy who was struck by Brookins, was reported still alive but unconscious, suffering from concussion of the brain and a dislocated hip.

After watching Johnstone and Hoxsey perform for an hour or more, Mr. Wright left for the home of Mrs. Abercrombie Fell at Bayhead, where Brookins is a guest.

"The youngster was overambitious," he said, "and he had to learn what an older man would have known offhand, never go up from the field while the people were passing over it. I had to learn that in my early efforts in France. Every time I got ready to fly and the field was not clear I simply wheeled my machine back into the shed and waited. Pretty soon they learned they had to keep off the field or see no flying, and they learned how to act."

The promoters took great heart from to-day's success, and threw themselves into the task of making Governor's Day to-morrow a gala day. Secretary of the Interior Ballinger and Gov. Fort of New Jersey, Gov. Stuart of Pennsylvania, and Mayor Reyburn of Philadelphia are expected as special guests, as well as the Mayors of all the larger Jersey cities, and the Jersey Legislature.

The National Guard will erect a wireless signal station on the ground by which it will attempt to flash bulletins about the aeroplanes as it might in war. The events of the day which, with fair weather, are expected to prove the most diverting of the meet, include a duration flight, in which an effort will be made to break the world's record for length of time in the air, and there will be flights with two machines in the air at the same time.

There were many incidents which brought the spectators to their toes to-day, expecting to see a repetition of yesterday's accident. After climbing up 1,500 feet, Johnstone lunged toward the earth, whirled his craft around almost in its own length, and then swooped down in front of the grand stand with all the grace of a giant bird.

Johnstone landed facing into the wind instead of turning tail to it with his motor shut off, as Brookins did just before he fell. Hoxsey after his flights did the same as Johnstone, and both admitted afterward that what happened to Brookins had taught them the lesson of never trying to alight tail on to the wind.

Fred Owens, in the baby dirigible in which he flew over New York until he became entangled in the architecture of the Hall of Records, tried to fly against the ten-mile breeze which was blowing, but his effort was chiefly notable in showing how the aeroplane has passed the dirigible in achievement and interest. Facing the wind, he was forced backward in spite of all his paddle wheel could do, and when he tried to tack crosswise to it he was drifted far out of his course. He finally landed by dropping a rope to his assistant.

Twice parachute jumps were made from Johnny Mack's gas balloon just to let the people know that the balloon has not yet wholly passed from the heavens. The second jump was a startler, as the aeronaut seemed falling hopelessly through the air after one parachute had broken, when he flashed out a second one and showed that what seemed a catastrophe was really a part of his act.

Clifford B. Harmon, it was announced, will bring his big Farman biplane to the grounds next Thursday, and on Amateur Day will attempt to break his own amateur flight record of 2 hours and 3 minutes.

CLOSE CALL FOR AVIATOR.

Aeroplane Propeller Narrowly Misses Head of Mechanic.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Aug. 11.—An accident which escaped by a hair's breadth of being a fatal one varied the flying routine at this place to-day. The Eldridge engine of the Snyder biplane belonging to Fred H. Snyder, and which he built for Louis Strang, was being tried out near the shed of the Aeronautical Society. It was held down, and was making about 1,000 revolutions when suddenly the propeller bolts gave way. The tail of the propeller was cut completely off and went crashing over the head of E. F. Gaswell, a mechanician, missing his head by about six inches. Gaswell had been standing near the machine, and had only just stepped back to a greater distance.

E. S. Willard, who has been working for some time on his Curtiss biplane, took the mcahine out for the first time to-day. His flight was a success. Instead of making several small trials he was in the air for seven minutes, in which he made one seven-mile lap. It included Garden City, Westbury, and Mineola. There was a twenty-mile breeze blowing, and flying in the face of this was difficult. But Willard made it easily, keeping an almost standard attitude of 150 feet.

With the memory of yesterday's accident at Asbury Park fresh in mind Clifford B. Harmon kept anxiously watching the crowd which gathered on the aviation field. Repeatedly he waved them back and begged them to remain at the side of the field. Mr. Harmon intended to fly to-night, but his mechanicians had difficulty with his engine, and by the time that it was adjusted it was too dark.

There is talk here of offering prizes for the best feats of skill in bombarding the warship and two submarines painted in outline on the field here. It is expected that Capt. Baldwin and J. J. Frisbie will both be ready to fly to-morrow.

Flies with 462 Pounds Extra Weight.

JOHANNISTHAL, Aug. 11.—The aviation contests were continued to-day. Thelen, in a Wright machine, made a flight in which he carried 462 pounds extra weight. Thelen also competed for the altitude prize, reaching a height of 1,236 feet. Wienczlers, in making a flight with a passenger, landed too suddenly, smashing his Antoinette machine. Neither he nor the passenger was hurt.

MEET AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY.

Glenn H. Curtiss and Other Aviators Will Fly Next Week.

Glenn H. Curtiss, J. C. Mars, Charles F. Willard, Eugene F. Ely, and J. A. D. McCurdy is the list of professional aviators who have already entered their names in the Sheepshead Bay aviation meet, which will take place at the racecourse three days, beginning on Friday, Aug. 19. While the negotiations for the holding of the meet have been pending for several days, the arrangements were only concluded yesterday, prior to the departure of Mr. Curtiss for Hammondsport, N. Y.

While the plan for the gathering of aviators for the purpose of giving to New Yorkers their first view of a real aeroplane contest was conceived by Mr. Curtiss himself, it has for an object something which is of vast interest to all those associated with aviation. It is stated by Mr. Curtiss that he has been desirous of learning the extent of the interest manifested by the public generally in the flying machine with a view to establishing a permanent aviation field within a short distance of the metropolis.

"I believe such a meet as the one proposed will act as a barometer and will determine the nature of the interest taken by the public," said Mr. Curtiss in discussing his plans. "In France the public has become enthusiastic over the regular aviation events that take place at the permanent aviation fields which have been established near Paris and other large cities. I want to find out if the same interest will be taken here."

Several of the aviators are already on the grounds, prepared to begin preliminary flights. Charles F. Willard has just assembled a new Curtiss machine with a high-powered motor, and expects to fly from the Mineola aviation grounds to the Sheepshead Bay track, and a special prize is contemplated for this event.

Since the meet is to be a test of his plan, Mr. Curtiss will assume all risks and responsibilities. It is announced, however, that the meet will be open to all aviators who wish to participate. With this understanding, Clifford B. Harmon, President of the National Council of the American Aeronautical Association, who favors Mr. Curtiss's plan, yesterday gave assurance that the meet will receive the sanction of the council in order that any records that may be made will become official. Records of all the flights will be taken by a representative of the council, which will have direct supervision of all the contests.

Mr. Curtiss, accompanied by Mr. Harmon, Eugene Ely, the California aviator, and Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, has made a personal inspection of the Sheepshead field and pronounced it a most desirable site for this event. Besides being easy of access from New York, all the aviators declared that the place is an excellent one for flying, and Curtiss is hopeful that some present world's records may be broken.

A new machine will be used at Sheepshead Bay by Aviator Charles F. Willard. For more than a week Willard has been busily engaged at Mineola assembling his new Curtiss flyer. His biplane, which is larger than the one in which he made a cross-country flight of twelve miles over the Hempstead Plains a year ago, while still a novice, is not designed for speed, but Willard expects that it will prove capable of carrying off endurance or height records.

NEW AVIATION FIELD.

Fort George Being Prepared for School of Aeronautics.

Aviation took a long jump forward in New York yesterday when it became known that active work is being done on a large aviation field in the middle of the city. For the last six weeks a force of carpenters, machinists, and laborers have been rebuilding old houses, assembling the parts of aeroplanes and clearing off trees and rough places on the heights of Fort George preparatory to the establishment there of an aviation park that will include shops for building and repairing aeroplanes of all sorts, a club house, a place for parking automobiles, facilities for designers and constructors of air craft, quarters for aviators and their helpers, and, incidentally, an aviation school, where beginners may be taught every phase of air control.

Frederic Thompson is head of the plan, and T. T. Lovelace, a practical aeronaut, has charge of the practical work.

WANTS CURTISS ENJOINED.

Hamilton Alleges That He Is Prevented from Making Contracts.

Charles K. Hamilton yesterday secured an order in the United States Circuit Court to show cause why Glenn H. Curtiss should not be enjoined from preventing him from making contracts for aviation exhibits. In the papers Hamilton states that he has been associated with Curtiss since Nov. 27, 1909, but because of the recent break between them Curtiss has openly expressed his displeasure, has instituted suit, and has embarrassed him. The papers were served on Curtiss at the Hotel Astor, and a motion for the preliminary injunction on Aug. 24.

Hamilton alleges that Curtiss has "attempted to forestall my entrance into the field of marketing and selling aeroplanes and exhibiting the same in competition with him, and has endeavored to prevent me from flying in aeroplanes of any construction other than his own."

Hamilton says that after he had entered into a contract with James V. Martin for an exhibition to be given under the auspices of the Harvard Aeronautical Society of Cambridge, Mass., and for which he was to receive $10,000, Curtiss induced Martin to break off the negotiations, and when on July 26 he protested to the National Council of Aviators against the wrongful and unsportsmanlike conduct of his rival in a resolution passed on Aug. 1 Curtiss was censured.

In support of the motion for the preliminary injunction Hamilton, in addition, asserts that Curtiss "is continuing his interference with the tender of contracts with me and offering inducements for the withdrawal of such offers as have been made to me and is threatening to continue his interference with the making of said contracts and is notifying others that I am not a free agent, but am under contract with him."

ROUGH AIR FOR FRENCH RACE.

Le Blanc Still Ahead and Likely to Win—Others Caught in a Storm.

MEZIERES, Aug. 11.—M. Le Blanc's good fortune in the cross-country aerial race continued on the third leg of the course to-day. Although he experienced great difficulty, he was again the first to arrive at the post.

The day's flight was from Nancy to this town, a distance of 99.36 miles. The leader's time was 1 hour 58 minutes 3 seconds.

Le Blanc, barring accidents, is practically sure of winning the race, although M. Aubrun and M. Legagneux, who completed the first two laps in single flights, still have a chance.

Aubrun reached here to-day two hours after Le Blanc had landed. M. Lindpainter descended and abandoned the race at a point twelve miles from Nancy.

All the aviators experienced the roughest sailing thus far encountered. Le Blanc had the best luck. He came to town just ahead of a violent storm, which caught his pursuers soon after the start. After leaving Nancy a gust of wind blew away his chart, and for a time he was lost in a thick haze. He finally recognized the Meuse River, which he followed over the towns of Mouzon and Sedan.

Aubrun, who was the next to get away, received the force of the storm and later ran into thick weather and lost his course. Eventually he found himself over Chalons, where he got the direction for Mézières.

M. Lindpainter, who started third, was caught in a heavy downpour of rain after he had been in the air but a short time, and was forced to alight.

The others who started in the race of six stages from Paris to Troyes, Nancy, Mézières, Douai, Amiens, and back to Paris, a total distance of 485 miles, continue to participate in the local meetings that alternate with the racing days.

Several officers in military aeroplanes, one of which carried Gen. Maumoury, effected reconnoisances in the vicinity of Nancy at daylight. They, too, met with bad weather, and the pilot of the machine occupied by the General lost his direction and finally brought up at Metz, Germany. From that point the return to Nancy was made.

Paulhan Flies 200 Miles.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Louis Paulhan to-day made two round trips by aeroplane between Brou and Chartres, with stops. He covered in all a distance of about 200 miles.

BANK CASHIER WIDER IS INDICTED AGAIN

INVESTIGATION CONTINUED

Probably Will Be Indicted Separately for Each Time He Abstracted Securities from Russo-Chinese Bank Vault.

The first of a series of indictments against Erwin J. Wider, the cashier of the Russo-Chinese Bank, who embezzled $680,000 of securities intrusted to his care and who has already pleaded guilty to grand larceny, was found yesterday by the Grand Jury. Acting District Attorney Frank Moss said that the Grand Jury will continue to consider the Wider case until it has gone into all the ramifications of his thefts and losses on the stock market.

The new indictment has four counts and charges two specific acts of theft on June 15 last. It is taken as an indication that Wider will be indicted separately for each time that he abstracted securities from the bank's vaults. The penalties, if he is found guilty on each, will aggregate about 200 years imprisonment and several thousands of dollars fines.

It was rumored at the District Attorney's office that indictments against other persons for complicity in Wider's thefts and for receiving the proceeds of his embezzlements will be found later.

The bank's attorneys and Acting District Attorney Moss are not satisfied that Wider is telling the truth. It is their opinion that Wider's story does not ring true, and they doubt that he has disposed of all the securities he took and that he was absolutely wiped out by speculative losses. A searching investigation is being made of all of Wider's transactions with a view to testing his story.

Wider was arraigned yesterday before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions, and pleaded not guilty to the new indictment. He seemed alarmed at the turn affairs had taken, and refused to see visitors at the Tombs, to which he was returned. In spite of his alarm, Wider's bearing was more composed than it was when he surrendered.

Leon Ginsburg, Wider's counsel, who lived in the same apartment house with Wider before his disappearance, was present at Wider's arraignment, and was indignant at the new indictment and at the turn of affairs it indicated. He had pleaded with Mr. Moss and Judge O'Sullivan for leniency for Wider. Ginsburg said:

"I am going to try to have the original plea of guilty made by Wider to his first indictment withdrawn. I expected the District Attorney's office would meet us half way. Wider has given a list of the securities he took and a very complete statement of how he disposed of them to help the bank to get them back. He certainly was entitled to leniency.

"Now the District Attorney's office has broken faith. It is trying to pile up charges against him to keep him in prison for the rest of his life. It forgets he surrendered himself voluntarily and pleaded guilty to the first indictment because it was understood no more would be asked. I intend to have Mr. Wider plead not guilty and fight this matter to the end."

Ginsburg did not state how he would make the fight, in view of the fact that his client had written a confession of his thefts to the officers of the bank just prior to his disappearance. He indicated that his client had some mysterious and powerful backing which would work to save him. Ginsburg indignantly denied the suggestion that he knew any more about Wider's affairs than he has told.

Acting District Attorney Moss said that the stocks and bonds, the theft of which is charged against Wider in yesterday's indictment, were delivered by the cashier to Dick Brothers, a stock brokerage house with which Wider had his principal account. He said he had not traced the securities further than that.

The securities consisted of two certificates of twenty-five shares each on the Southern Pacific, and twenty-five bonds of the Southern Railway of a face value of $1,000 each.

SAY WOMAN WAS MURDERED.

Body of Mrs. Hall Found in Ohio River —Ex-Policeman Arrested.

CATLETTSBURG, Ky., Aug. 11.—The body of a woman about 40 years old and well dressed, identified by the police authorities of Huntington, West Va., as that of Mrs. Henry Hall, was found in the Ohio River at the foot of Broadway this morning. A rope several feet long was tied around the body.

The Huntington police stated that Mrs. Hall disappeared a week ago from that town, having with her $415. No money was found on the body, and it is the opinion of the police that the woman was robbed, murdered, and her body thrown into the river.

HUNTINGTON, West Va., Aug. 11.—Elbert Arliss, a former member of the Police Department, was arrested to-day in connection with the investigation of the death of Mrs. Henry Hall, whose body was found at Catlettsburg, Ky. It is said Arliss was seen talking to Mrs. Hall last Tuesday.

ARMOUR OFFICIAL ARRESTED.

T. G. Lee Is Indicted for Perjury by Jury Investigating Packers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Thomas G. Lee, of the dressed beef sales department of Armour & Co., was indicted on the charge of perjury to-day by the Federal Grand Jury, which is investigating an alleged working agreement of the big packers. A bench warrant was issued and Mr. Lee was arrested late to-day by a Deputy Federal Marshal. He gave bail in the United States District Court for $5,000.

It is charged that Lee made false statements to the jury in denying that he had attended meetings where the output was discussed and prices fixed, and stating that prices were not fixed.

In a special report to Judge Landis the jury stated that stenographers' notebooks of Armour & Co., which had been demanded by the jury, had been destroyed. After reading this report Judge Landis issued an order directing A. R. Urion, chief counsel for the packing company; George M. Willitts, assistant office manager, and two other employes to appear before him on Monday morning.

TWO HELD AS SHOPLIFTERS.

One Woman Said to be the Wife of a Downtown Politician.

Rose McCormack, detective in a Sixth Avenue department store, was following a woman who, she thought, had taken a maribou boa from a counter, fashioned it into a muff by winding it around her right wrist, and then stuck into it three large ostrich plumes, when her attention was attracted to a handsomely gowned young woman at a jewelry counter near by yesterday afternoon. Miss McCormack was wondering how she could follow both women when she saw Detectives Rein and Becker of Headquarters enter the store.

She explained her predicament to them, and Rein followed the woman with the feathers, while Becker and Miss McCormack followed the younger woman. Rein arrested the woman he had trailed and locked her up in the Mercer Street Station for a hearing to-day in Jefferson Market Court on a charge of grand larceny, the stuff she is charged with taking being worth about $80.

Miss McCormack and Becker accosted the younger woman as she was leaving the store. Later they told Magistrate Murphy in Night Court that they found on her three small pieces of jewelry worth about $10. The prisoner was hysterical, and declined to give her address. She said her name was Margaret Howard, and that she was 29 years old. She looked much younger.

The woman obtained a lawyer, who had her case adjourned till this afternoon, and then a bond of $500 was provided for her by a Sixth Avenue tailor. The police said afterward they were certain she was the wife of a politician in Twenty-first Street, but they wouldn't tell his name.

TESTIFY AGAINST FIREMEN.

Chief Howe and Fire Marshal Kelly Tell of Their Visit to Brewery.

Chief of Battalion Howe and Fire Marshal Kelly gave testimony yesterday at the trial of Fireman Andrew C. O'Neill of Engine 38 and Engineer Joseph J. Paul of Engine 47, who are alleged to have been in a brewery at 128th Street on the night of July 28. The charge against them was conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline.

Howe and Kelly swore that they had seen O'Neill and Paul come from the brewery. Howe said he stopped O'Neill and inquired of him where he had been, and that O'Neill denied having come from the brewery. Howe said the fireman then said he had family trouble, admitted he had been in the brewery, and begged to be let off.

O'Neill, according to Howe, told him that Paul was in the brewery also, but Paul denied this, saying he had been on relief duty at another engine house. The case was adjourned until Tuesday.

KILLS FAMILY THEN HIMSELF

Shooting Gallery Keeper with Four Shots Slays Four Persons.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—W. J. Meyers, keeper of a shooting gallery, shot through the head and killed three members of his household to-day and then took his own life. Just four shots were fired.

The dead are W. J. Meyers, aged 40; Mrs. Grace Meyers, aged 25, his wife; Ralph Meyers, aged 7, their son, and F. S. Bouton, aged 55, father of Mrs. Meyers.

Policeman Dennis O'Neil was passing the Meyers home when he heard the four shots in rapid succession. Breaking into the apartment he found the dead where they had fallen. A revolver with four chambers empty lay beside the body of Meyers. Death in each case had apparently been instantaneous.

Meyers and his wife separated recently after she had had him placed under bonds to keep the peace. There are no living eye-witnesses to the tragedy.

SHELLS DESTROY BALLOONS.

Brilliant Results Obtained in an Experiment in Germany.

RUEGENWALDE, Prussia, Aug. 11.—The men behind the field guns demonstrated their ability swiftly to destroy moving balloons to-day. Several batteries of field artillery were pitted against the aerial craft, which were towed by the cruiser Undine.

The results from the point of view of the marksmen were brilliant. In every instance the shells reached the balloons, tearing them to pieces, and frequently the gasbags exploded and were burned in mid-air.

Major Gross, the aeronautical representatives of the Krupps, directed the practice.

OIL BROKER KILLS HIMSELF.

Henri Werlemann Puts Bullet Through His Head in His Office.

Henri Werlemann, a broker in oils, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in the temple in his office on the eighth floor of the Morris Building at 68 Broad Street. The bullet passed entirely through his head.

David Frank of 338 West Fifty-eighth Street, his clerk, entered the office shortly after 10 o'clock to find his employer sitting dead in a chair near his desk with a revolver still clutched in his right hand. Frank telephoned to Police Headquarters, and called an ambulance from the Hudson Street Hospital. The surgeon found that Werlemann's heart was just ceasing to beat as he reached him.

Frank refused to give any information concerning Werlemann, but soon a man named La Marche, a brother-in-law of the dead man, reached the office. He informed the police that Werlemann lived at 249 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, but that he and his family had been spending the Summer at Locust Point, near Atlantic Highlands, N. J. When asked if he knew of any reason why Werlemann should have taken his life La Marche declined to say.

From Secretary Howe of the Produce Exchange it was learned that Werlemann had been a member of that institution since Jan. 1, 1907, and was in good standing and well-known in the cottonseed oil trade. One man, who would not disclose his identity, said that up to two years ago Werlemann represented the Krupp works in the country, and had an office in Chambers Street.

William H. Ford of 2 Rector Street, who was Werlemann's attorney for about thirty years, and was also an intimate friend of the family, said that Werlemann had spent Wednesday night at his Summer place with his wife and four children. He said that Werlemann was in good health, and that his home life was ideal. He also said that the broker's business affairs were in good shape so far as he knew.

Word was sent to the family at Locust Point, and Mrs. Werlemann started for the Brooklyn house immediately. Coroner Winterbottom issued a permit for the body to be removed to the Brooklyn home. The suicide was 54 years old. He was born in Belgium.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Aug. 11.—The suicide of Henri Werlemann in his New York office to-day is attributed here to financial troubles. He had a fine home on Riverside Drive, just outside of Locust Point.

The great new novel by the author of "The Inner Shrine"

THE WILD OLIVE

The Bookman, whose figures are recognized as the national authority, now declares "The Wild Olive" to be the best selling novel in the United States. The success of "The Wild Olive" is even greater than that of "The Inner Shrine" because the story is greater, better, finer. "The Wild Olive" has a broader basis of plot, a nobler conception of character, a higher idealism. It is, above all else, a remarkably human story.

CARLISTS AWAITING A WORD FROM ROME

Say They Are Certain of Victory if Vatican Tells Catholics to Support Them.

JUNTA IS ALSO CONFIDENT

Declares a Moment of Resolute Decision Will Put an End to Premier Canalejas's Programme.

ROME, Aug. 11.—The Vatican is receiving reports from Mgr. Vico, Papal Nuncio at Madrid, and the Spanish Cardinals and Bishops which were forwarded after they had received Cardinal Merry del Val's instructions to abandon the demonstration at San Sebastian planned for last Sunday.

According to these reports, the Catholic organization in the Peninsula is perfect, and it will be impossible for Premier Canalejas to repeat in Spain what the French Ministry did in France, and bring about the separation of Church and State.

Some of the reports state that only a word from Rome would be necessary to have the whole population rise and sweep away all of the enemies of the Church and religion.

On the other hand, the Carlists declare that they are ready to intervene, with the certainty of carrying the day, if Rome will order the clergy and Catholics generally to support them.

The Holy See, it is said, is most reluctant to take any such step as is suggested, as it does not wish to bring on civil war, which, it believes, would not benefit the Church.

The Vatican, in a semi-official communication, says the idea of making new proposals to Spain is so far from the intention of the Holy See that some of the officials support the suggestion that no further answer to the last Spanish note be sent, on the ground that this note is a reply to that addressed by the Holy See to the Government, and therefore requires no new answer.

The Observatore Romano, the Vatican organ, says it is impossible to speak of the freedom of the press in Spain, when Premier Canalejas persecutes Catholic papers.

"It is reported," continues the paper, "that Canalejas is now working for a bill looking to the neutrality of the schools. If this is true, even the blind can see the real intention of Canalejas and how he prevaricates when he says he wishes to reach an accord with the Holy See. Canalejas's policy is not only anti-Vatican and anti-clerical, but anti-Catholic."

The Gionale d'Italia publishes an interview with the Spanish Premier, who says he has done nothing that could be construed as interference of the State in Church affairs.

"But," continues the Premier, "I am determined not to allow the development of clericalism in Spain. A rupture of relations with the Vatican does not exist; the disagreement is momentary. It deals with a fixed question. I have no desire to extend it, and I do not wish war. The Vatican must intervene to modify the behavior of a portion of the Spanish clergy. Otherwise, if the clergy are allowed to conspire against the Government, then, without consulting Rome, I will do what my duty commands. The Vatican insists upon the withdrawal of a bill already presented, but this I cannot and will not do, as it would mean a diminution of the power of the State."

BILBAO, Aug. 11.—The Catholic Committee explains the abandonment of the San Sebastian demonstration in a manifesto issued to-day.

After stigmatizing the Government's actions as arbitrary, the manifesto declares that the Catholics fear neither prosecutions nor threats and are ready to offer their lives in the defense of the Sovereign Pontiff.

It is set forth that the manifestation was was given up at the solicitation of the Catholic Junta at Guipuzcoa, but Biscayans are adjured not to forget that they come from an indomitable race, which has never submitted to tyranny.

The committee announces that it has not finished its mission, and concludes:

"A moment of resolute decision will suffice to put an end to the Government's programme."

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The Temps, under reserve, reproduces from the Madrid paper the Epoca a statement attributed to M. Briand, who is at Rambouillet. The French Premier is said to have strongly advised King Alfonso against breaking with Rome, and is quoted as saying:

"We slid down hill further than we intended. But for the clumsiness of the Vatican the Papal Nuncio would be still in Paris and the Ambassador of France at Rome."

Premier Briand's secretary regards the Epoca's statements as fantastic.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Aug. 11.—Garcia Prietro, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, denied to-day that the Queen Mother had asked the Emperor of Austria to intervene with the object of settling the difficulties between the Spanish Government and the Vatican.

Since the majority of the King Señor Prietro added, the Queen Mother had abstained from taking part in affairs of State.

TO RECEIVE MADRIZ ENVOYS.

State Department to Hear Them To-day—They Brought Letters to Knox.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Modesto Barrios and Sebastian Salinas, the envoys sent to this Government by Dr. Madriz, President of Nicaragua, will be received at the State Department to-morrow morning. Huntington Wilson, acting Secretary of State, to-day fixed the hour.

The Commissioners will be received on the same footing as have the representatives of both Nicaragua factions since the trouble began.

The ambassadors paid an official call at the State Department this morning and presented their credentials.

Three letters in Spanish addressed to Secretary Knox were also presented. These were turned over to translators. The contents are not known. The envoys declined to say whether the letters contained peace proposals.

GEN. CHRISTMAS CAPTURED.

Guatemala Prevents the Projected Raid in Honduras.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The Guatemalan Government has formally notified the State Department of the capture of Gen. Lee Christmas and a party of revolutionists, who were projecting an uprising against Honduras.

Announcement of the capture of the revolutionists was received at the Guatemalan Legation last night.

The men will not be confined in jail, the advices state, but will be kept under surveillance at the Guatemalan capital under the terms of the Washington conventions.

NEEDHAM'S ALIMONY UNPAID.

Magazine Writer's Wife Appeals to Court—Hasn't the Money, He Says.

Counsel for Henry Beech Needham, magazine writer and former member of ex-President Roosevelt's tennis Cabinet at Washington, who was divorced by his wife a year ago, informed Justice Putnam in Special Term of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday that his client was comparatively poorer to-day than when he moved in the political and social circles around the White House, and was therefore unable to pay his wife $40 a week alimony, as ordered by the court.

The proceedings came up at the instigation of Mrs. Needham, who wants her husband punished for contempt of court for failing to pay her the alimony.

Lawyer Frank Hendrick represented Needham. He asked the court to reduce the alimony to $15 a week. Lawyer De Witt Bailey, counsel for Mrs. Needham, was surprised that Needham appeared to be in such dire financial straits. Needham is at present in Europe, and Lawyer Bailey said he thought his sojourn indicated that his income was sufficient to pay the original alimony. But counsel for Needham insisted his income amounted to only $2,000 a year, and that $15 a week was all he could afford to pay Mrs. Needham.

Justice Putnam reserved decision.

ROOT'S MONUMENTAL SPEECH

One Question Has Occupied Five Days—Question No. 2 Now Taken Up.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 11.—Senator Root, who is arguing the American case before the Arbitration Tribunal which will decide the Newfoundland fisheries dispute, having occupied five days with Question No. 1, to-day opened Question No. 2. This has to do with the significance to be attached to the word "bays."

The Senator contended that the word must be taken in its legal sense, and that "bays" the entrances of which are more than six miles wide were clearly not included in the renunciation clause of the treaty between Great Britain and the United States of 1818.

He cited statements by Lord Kimberley and Lord Aberdeen, in which they recognized this construction.

FEAR FOR ANTARCTIC SHIP.

The Terra Nova Long Overdue—Eminent Scientists on Board.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Considerable anxiety is felt for the British antarctic expedition's ship, the Terra Nova, which is now eleven days overdue at Cape Town.

The vessel has not been spoken since she left Madeira on June 27.

Those on board the Terra Nova include a number of eminent officers and scientific men. These number 28, and the crew, all picked men, number 27.

Capt. Robert F. Scott, commander of the expedition, which set out on June 1 from London in an attempt to reach the South Pole, is not yet aboard the Terra Nova, but sailed on July 16 to join the vessel in New Zealand.

The Terra Nova stopped at Cardiff to coal, and arrived on June 15 at Madeira, from which port she sailed twelve days later for Cape Town. She should have reached Cape Town not later than Aug. 1.

Mrs. McCaughan Dies from Injuries.

BELFAST, Aug. 11.—Mrs. William John McCaughan, who was injured by jumping from the window of a burning hotel here on July 26, died to-day. Mrs. McCaughan's husband, pastor of the May Street Congregation in Belfast, and formerly pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of Chicago, was a victim of the same fire, and died from his injuries on July 31.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BOGOTA, Aug. 11.—Maxwell Blake, American Consul General at Bogota, and Mrs. Blake started for their home in the United States to-day. Their departure is a matter of general regret here, where Mr. Blake's work has been most successful and the popularity of both him and his wife has been great.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 11.—William W. Rockhill, American Ambassador to Russia, and Mrs. Rockhill returned to-day to the capital after a visit to the United States on leave of absence.

PROOF THAT VICTIM WAS BELLE ELMORE?

London Police Said to Have Found a Definite Clue in the Crippen Case.

SEEK FOR TRACES OF POISON

Prof. Pepper Is Reported to Have Found Enough to Prove the Victim Was Crippen's Wife.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—It is reported that the authorities have discovered a clue to the certain identity of the body unearthed in the Hilldrop Crescent home of Dr. Crippen.

The hopeful clue was obtained in the course of an exhaustive examination of the body made by Prof. Pepper, the Home Office expert, who had previously given many hours to the problem.

During the five hours that he worked Prof. Pepper obtained conclusive evidence that the sex was feminine. He then continued with the purpose of determining the manner of death, having in mind the possibility that poison was used. The analysis, so far as the poison theory is concerned, was not completed to-day, but it was reported that the physician found evidence that at some period the woman had undergone a surgical operation. If this can be established the authorities assert that they will have gone a long way toward proving that the victim was Belle Elmore.

The inquest will be resumed on Monday, and as that day approaches interest in the case is revived. It is doubtful, however, if anything beyond the scientific evidence is brought to light before the return here of Dr. Crippen and Ethel Clara Leneve.

QUEBEC, Aug. 11.—Miss Leneve will return to England wearing one of the best wigs found in Quebec. The girl today gave the matron of the Provincial Jail $20, all that was left of the $60 she brought from Antwerp on her flight with Crippen, and told her to buy a "peruke" that would repair to the best advantage the ravages inflicted by Crippen when he sheared off his companion's light brown tresses to help disguise her as a boy.

The matron brought back a wig that is said to work a wonderful transformation in the girl's appearance.

VAIN SEARCH FOR SHIP AFIRE.

Lake Cities Startled by Mysterious Wireless Report—No Steamer Found.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 11.—The following mysterious wireless message was received in four cities and on many lake boats to-day: "Steamer afire. Standing by."

The message purported to come from the Christopher Columbus, a big excursion boat which was bringing a party of 5,000 excursionists from Chicago to this city.

The message was received simultaneously at Milwaukee, Chicago, and two intermediate cities, and by eight steamers in Chicago Harbor, as well as by two boats in Milwaukee. Fire tugs and life saving crews started out from each city, but no steamer on fire was found.

The belief then was that it was the Columbus itself which had been afire. The steamer was an hour late arriving here, and this added to the fear that there was a great catastrophe.

When the steamer arrived its Captain said that his wireless room had been unoccupied all through the trip, that he had sent no word of a fire, and that his wireless apparatus was not even working. His passengers, however, when they came ashore, declared they heard rumors from some mysterious source of a fire on the lake. The Columbus itself seemed not to have had any fire.

Leaky Boat Upsets, Two Youths Drown

Five youths rented a rowboat at Rice's Dock, Broadchannel, L. I., yesterday afternoon to visit a houseboat in Jamaica Bay. After they had rowed 150 yards from the dock the boat began to leak, and in bailing it out the boat was overturned.

Henry Heydell of Devoe Street, Brooklyn, and Conrad Oates of Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, were drowned. The other three swam back to the dock.

DELAY IN CHARLTON CASE.

Extradition Proceedings Put Over Till Sept. 20.

Porter Charlton, the young American whom the Government of Italy wants extradited to that country, there to stand trial for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton, was not arraigned in the Hudson County Criminal Court yesterday, as had been expected. Since his arrest in Hoboken several weeks ago on the charge of having murdered his wife at Lake Como, Charlton has been in jail, but so far there has been no hearing in regard to extradition.

As it is known that the ground on which the extradition will be fought will be that he was insane when he killed his wife, and is now, it was thought probable that this evidence, based on the reports of alienists employed by Charlton's father, would come out in court yesterday. The case was called before Judge Blair, and immediately a representative of the Italian Consul General in New York appeared with Assistant Prosecutor George T. Vickers and handed up what is said to have been a transcript of the evidence that the Italian Government possesses against Charlton.

The transcript was in Italian, and Judge Blair glanced at it a moment and then handed it back with instructions that it be translated into English and the translation, accompanied by the proper affidavits, submitted to him. It was said that several days will be necessary to translate the document.

Charlton was not brought to the courtroom and the hearing was very brief. The arraignment proceedings were postponed until Sept. 20, at which time the evidence as to Charlton's mental status will be submitted.

WANTS SECOND EXAMINATION

Test for Bellevue X-Ray Operator Unfair, Says Dr. Darling.

Supreme Court Justice Goff was asked yesterday for an order declaring null and void the recent examination held by the Civil Service Commission of candidates for the place of X-ray operator at Bellevue Hospital and setting aside the list of eligibles made up by the commission as a result of that examination.

The application was made in behalf of Dr. Byron C. Darling of 622 West 137th Street, who declares in his papers that for a year prior to the civil service examination he was the X-ray operator at Bellevue, but that, after taking the examination, he found to his surprise that his name was not on the eligible list. He avers that false and erroneous statements as to their own ability and experience were made to the commission by candidates whose names did get on the eligible list, and that these statements tended to keep him off of the list.

The Corporation Counsel, through an assistant, opposed the granting of the order, arguing that the examination had been regular and legal and that Dr. Darling had no cause of action. Justice Goff reserved decision.

DYNAMITE NEAR A LINER.

It Was Aboard a Launch That Steamed Close to the Bretagne.

A thrill was provided for the passengers on the French liner Bretagne yesterday as she was drawing out from her North River pier. As the vessel was backing slowly into the river a New York Central tug crossed her stern. The tug was so close that the passengers were speculating on the chances of collision when to the surprise of all another craft dashed between the Bretagne and the tug.

It was a little launch, and it flew the red flag which denotes that her cargo was dynamite or some other explosive. For an anxious moment the officers on the bridge watched the launch dash by, and then there was relief at the escape of the liner from hitting the daredevil craft.

CHAMBERLAIN NOT WORSE.

His Son Denies Rumors of a Change in His Condition.

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 11.—Inquiry at his Highbury home to-day elicited an explicit denial of alarming rumors which had been current here concerning the condition of the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, who has been in feeble health for a long time.

His son stated that Mr. Chamberlain's condition was quite normal and that there had been no change in his health recently. The veteran statesman contemplates remaining at Highbury for some time.

SUGAR STRIKERS BAFFLED.

Havemeyer Works Resume with a New Force of 1,500 Men.

With an entirely new force of men numbering more than 1,500, operations on an extensive scale were resumed yesterday in the Havemeyer sugar refinery in Williamsburg. This step on the part of the American Sugar Refining Company was a great surprise to the strikers. All the new men were brought to the refineries in boats which landed at the South Third Street dock. Soon after they landed and were marched into the refineries, where they were distributed in different departments, the men who had been working on the night shift were taken away in boats.

When the strikers realized that their cause was seemingly lost many of them hurried to the South Fourth Street office of the concern to get back their jobs, but all were informed that their services were not required.

Henry C. Morgan, cashier of the refineries, who was arrested two weeks ago on a charge of homicide in having, as alleged, fired the bullet which killed Walla Nobolowsky, one of the strikers, was arraigned yesterday in the Bedford Avenue Court. A Coroner's jury exonerated him on Tuesday night, but as the papers in the case hadn't reached the court yesterday Magistrate Higginbotham again adjourned the case for two weeks.

The Giants were up on their toes, full of snap and dash, waiting for the Cincinnati Reds at the Polo Grounds yesterday. McGraw's men had to scrap for everything they got, but Griffith's redlegs were baffled in two games, the first by a 5-to-4 score and in the second by a score of 3 to 2. After two days of rain, the crowd was hungry for some excitement, and 10,000 of them got it in plenty yesterday. There was never a time when either team got so far ahead as to be safe, and there was something always cropping out to stir the populace to the point of distraction.

That New York got the first game from the threatening Reds is due to a sterling flash of pitching form by Mathewson in the ninth inning. Cincinnati started a dangerous rally, filling the bases with no one out. One run would tie and two would win. There's a situation to test a pitcher's nerve. With three Reds hugging the pillows impatiently ready to sprint through on anything, Matty made Clarke, a pinch hitter, send a grounder to Bridwell, and McLean was cut down at the plate. Bescher slammed a hot grounder at Matty and Downey was forced at the plate, but the bases were kept full all the time. Egan was the Reds' last chance, and Matty puzzled him so badly that he was called out on strikes.

The second game was just as stubbornly played as the first, and the Giants had all they could do to grab the victory. Cincinnati always hovered closely behind them, ready to trip them up if the opportunity presented itself. Red Ames had his usual bad inning, but he settled down before the damage became serious.

Downey, the first man up in the second inning of the first game, sent the ball into the left field bleachers for a homer. McMillan died, Doyle to Merkle. Rowan then doubled to left, but was too anxious to stretch it into three bases and was nailed in the effort. Cincinnati kept right at it, and got another run in the third. Egan walked and went to second when Meyers made a wild throw to first to capture him off the bag. Hoblitzel struck out. Egan went home on Mitchell's single to left.

New York retaliated after this upishness on the part of the Reds in the very next inning. Meyers flied to Hoblitzel and Matty was safe on a scratch hit near short. Devore singled to left and Larry Doyle cleaned up with a drive into the right field grandstand. In the fifth, Devore beat out a bunt and went home when Snodgrass propelled the ball into the bleachers for a trip around the circuit.

The Giants got after Suggs in the first inning of the second game. Devore hit a hard single to left and scored on Doyle's triple between right and centre. Snodgrass flied to Downey. Doyle went through while McMillan was throwing Murray out at first.

It was a big round tally that Josh Devore got in the fifth inning by slamming the leather into the right field grandstand that really won the game for the Giants.

The sixth was a bad inning for Ames. Bescher opened the round by striking out. Egan was safe on a hot grounder through short. Hoblitzel forced Egan at second. Mitchell singled to right, sending Hobby to third. A wild pitch by Ames allowed Hobby to romp home. Paskert singled to right, scoring Mitchell. McLean singled to left. Murray grabbed Downey's high fly for the third out, and saved the day.

Both infields displayed a tendency to gobble everything in sight, hits or no hits. It was the kind of baseball the crowd likes and they all stayed until the last man was out.

Pittsburg Shuts Out Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 11.—Pittsburg shut out Brooklyn in their first clash of the present series to-day, 3 to 0. It was a brilliant fielding contest, in which the outfielders carried off the honors; Leach especially starring with sensational catches.

Neither side scored until the seventh, when Clarke singled, Wagner tripled, and Miller hit safely, two runs counting. Byrne also tallied in the eighth on his double and Clarke's single. Five double plays shut off prospective runs on both sides, Hummel taking two line drives from Byrne for double killings. The score:

Ehrlich Refuses to Fight.

Nathan Ehrlich, who was scheduled to meet Kid Alberts last night in the star bout of the Long Acre Athletic Association, refused to go on, owing to the small house, and Jimmy Carter was substituted. The bout was of six rounds, during which time Alberts landed at will, but not having the necessary punch he was unable to finish his opponent. Carter knew little about boxing, and used a peculiar side pose, making it necessary to turn half way around before he could land a blow, and the contest dragged through to the limit with all the work favoring Alberts.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 11.—The Yankees won to-day's game from the St. Louis Browns in the tenth inning, by a score of 3 to 1, after tieing the score in the ninth inning, when the game appeared to belong to their opponents.

O'Connor sent Joe Lake to the mound to-day to oppose his old teammates. Warhop pitched for New York. Killifer and Criger caught, the latter being retired in the eighth inning for Mitchell. Charlie Hemphill was indisposed and Manager Stallings sent Wolter to right field in his place. Wolter made the only sensational play of the game and probably saved the day for his team by making a long run to right centre and taking a triple away from Hartzell.

Hits were scarce, the Highlanders collecting six and the Browns five. Up to the seventh inning not a man scored. Then the Browns got a man over for a run. Newnam hit for a triple over Daniels's head. Griggs lifted to Cree, Newnam holding third. Warhop let the run in by a low throw to Austin trying for Newnam at third. The ball went wild and Newnam counted.

The score was unchanged until the ninth, and after two men were out, Daniels was thrown out. Wolter walked and stole second, and went to third on Killifer's bad throw. Cree fouled to Newnam for the second out.

Then Laporte hit a single and scored Wolter. While the spirit was in them, the visitors came right back in their half of the tenth, after holding the Browns runless in their half of the tenth, and won the game with one to spare. Foster started it with a single to left. Austin sacrificed, and when Hartzell threw wild to Truesdale, covering first, Foster went to third and Austin took second. Both scored on Mitchell's single to left. To-morrow's game closes the series.

Walsh Fans Fifteen Red Sox.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Walsh came within one strike out of equaling the American League record to-day against Boston, fanning fifteen batters and allowing three hits, the White Sox winning, 1 to 0, on Dougherty's triple in the second, followed by Purtell's sacrifice fly. Smith allowed but three hits. Walsh is out for a record. In the last 35 2-3 innings he has pitched he has blanked his opponents, struck out thirty-nine batters, and given but eleven hits. The score:

Detroit Checks the Athletics.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 11.—Morgan's wildness was fatal to Philadelphia to-day, and Detroit was the victor in an uphill fight by a score of 5 to 4. Only one hit, that a bunt, figured in the scoring of the home team's first four runs. Singles by Mullin and D. Jones and Delehanty's double scored the winning run in the ninth. The score:

ROSS WINS OVER SMITH.

Bronx Heavyweight's Arm Goes Back on Him in National Bout.

Tony Ross, the Italian heavyweight, won over Jim Smith last night at the National Sporting Club only because it was reasonably certain that he could have put Smith away eventually. The bout went the stipulated distance, ten rounds, and at the end Ross had nothing to be proud of and Smith had a disabled left arm, which was put out of business and which went back on him again last night.

Smith fought the last three rounds with only his right hand, and Ross, who had fully twenty pounds advantage in weight and an inch or so of height, could do nothing but push and haul Smith around, being absolutely incapable of landing a straight punch or an effective one.

The bout on the whole was rather unsatisfactory. Neither one of these men knows anything about the scientific side of pugilism, so that they pushed and hauled and missed pretty much all the time.

Both Smith and Ross are handsome samples of physical manhood, but they should never be matched except to finish. Their styles are clumsy, and while it might seem that they should be able to furnish an interesting go they are so similar in action and intention that the result must be a mediocre go when they come together in the ring.

On the go-off it looked as though there might be a few interesting rounds with a quick finish, because they were both strong and willing, but their leads generally produced clinches, and as they were exceptionally anxious the clinches lasted too long for the crowd's satisfaction.

As the show turned out the preliminaries were more interesting than the wind-up. Particularly was this true of the semi-final, in which Jumbo Wells and Jimmy Nitchie engaged. It was a six-round affair, with advantages rather even at the finish. The bout pleased so well that the two were re-engaged on the spot to furnish the semi-final at next Friday night's show when Frankie Burns and Young O'Leary will go on for ten rounds in the final bout.

PERROQUETS WIN AT POLO.

Defeat Cooperstown Four In Contest for Narragansett Cups.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 11.—On the old polo field of Wildfield Farm to-day the Point Judith Country Club polo tournament was continued, when the first round of the Narragansett cups was the attraction. There was a large attendance. In the first event Mr. Prince's Perroquets crossed mallets with the Cooperstown four.

The match was won by the Perroquets by a score of 13½ to 8½ goals. By handicap the Cooperstown players received five goals. The second match was also played on the old field between the Freebooters and Point Judith, and resulted in a tie—7¾ to 7¾ goals. The Earl of Rocksavage again played back for the Freebooters, and won much admiration for his dashing riding and effective back strokes. The handicaps and summary:

STILL GROWING.

The most surprising thing about the census figures now published daily is the disclosure of growth in sections supposed to be full grown if not decadent. It may not be cause of unalloyed pleasure to find the percentages of growth in Eastern cities rivaling those in sections where growth was supposed to be more natural and vigorous. In this there is no disclosure of any "back to the land" movement which would restore vitality to our abandoned farms, and it would seem that the regrettable disposition to flock to the cities is still strong.

While these considerations apply to the East generally, there is special interest in the growth of this immediate neighborhood. Hoboken has increased 18 per cent. in ten years, and Jersey City 27 per cent. The largest percentage of gain in any suburb of New York outside its limits is in Bayonne, 69 per cent. Any inference that New York is losing population to New Jersey as the result of recent transit developments is not justified by this substantial growth for two reasons. The percentages offer no unfavorable comparisons with the incomplete figures of the growth of New York's portion of the metropolitan district which are as yet available, and the growth of New Jersey districts is no larger than in the previous census. In the decade 1890-1900 Jersey City grew almost 27 per cent., and Hoboken 36 per cent.

The inference is that any disclosure of disproportionate loss of population by New York to New Jersey must await the next census, with the expectation that the balance will rather be in favor of New York than against it. Great as are the attractions across the river, and large as have been the improvements in transit accommodations, the attractions and the accommodations remain greater on this side and can be made to continue so. The construction of other tunnels and bridges to New Jersey is such an enormous task that its accomplishment, and results from it, cannot enter into any calculation by mere decades. On the other hand there are existing several unused bridges between Manhattan and eastward boroughs whose continued idleness would be an unnecessary calamity.

And in one respect the New Jersey communities can never hope to rival New York's outer boroughs. There never can be more than an irritating inadequacy of supply of inter-State five-cent fares. New York already enjoys a considerable supply of interborough five-cent and three-cent fares, and has the capacity of enlarging them almost indefinitely. The difference in fares between five-cent and ten-cent zones of residence would pay the interest on the price of a lot for a modest suburban home, or would pay the taxes on an average wage earner's residence. This point is as well worth attention as the expenditure of huge sums of tax money in supplying transportation routes so costly that the fares must be raised, or the deficit from operation carried in the city budget.

There is nothing dazzling about the suggestion of the utility of availing ourselves of unused transit facilities now existing, but there is an ample field for multiplying the routes between homes and offices giving short rides without change for a single fare, after the manner of some now in operation. This is the quickest and most practical way of competing with New Jersey for the citizens who will go where homes are cheapest and most attractive. Their preference will depend upon a combination of all factors—fares, time necessary for the journey, cost of investment in an owned home or a rented one, taxes on one or rent of the other. There is ample reason to feel confidence in New York's superiority in all or any respect, but sinking tax money on a wrong conception of the transit problem would be a step in a direction away from that designed by its promoters.

THE STUDY OF DISARMAMENT.

The Peace Congress at Stockholm suggests in its resolutions that, following the example of the United States, the other great Powers appoint commissions to study and report upon the question of limiting their armaments by the establishment of an international police force.

The cause of disarmament must succeed. Even now matters involving "delicate questions of sovereignty and national pride," of such gravity that they have repeatedly brought Great Britain and the United States to the verge of war, are in course of settlement at The Hague. The militant nations are turning to the conquests of nature and disease, forces of savagery and cruelty that have slain more men in the wars than human weapons. They may ultimately throw down their arms and join in a mighty onward march of civilization. The expedient of disarmament will bear, we think, successful examination and study.

SPAIN AND THE VATICAN.

If the report is true that Cardinal RAMPOLLA has emerged from the comparative retirement in which he has dwelt thus far during the pontificate of PIUS X., to act as the Vatican's adviser in the adjustment of the dispute with Spain, there may yet be an amicable settlement of a situation which has been daily growing more alarming. In the opinion of good political judges in Europe the Spanish Government has been "exhibiting the greatest possible moderation in the legitimate defense of sovereignty which it is vindicating." The Vatican, or the Papal Secretary of State, Cardinal MERRY DEL VAL, has rejected conciliatory proposals and demanded the enforcement of a policy Señor CANALEJAS could not possibly pursue.

Cardinal RAMPOLLA, it is said, will not succeed Cardinal MERRY DEL VAL as Secretary of State, but will provisionally dictate the Vatican's policy. It is to be hoped that the report is true. Cardinal RAMPOLLA is probably the ablest and wisest counselor in the Vatican's service, clear sighted and exerting great personal force. Austrian antagonism has lately kept him in the background, but he is the statesman in Rome best equipped by nature and training to deal with the present situation, perilous alike to the Vatican and to the peace of Spain.

PRECAUTION UNAVAILING.

One of Mayor GAYNOR'S secretaries denies the rumors that the Mayor was frequently annoyed by threatening letters before the attempt was made on his life. If he had received many such letters he could not have changed his course. Written threats to kill do not often alarm men in public life. They rarely have any significance. GALLAGHER had not threatened to shoot the Mayor. The murderous impulse seems to have seized him suddenly.

There is a good deal of needless talk about Mr. GAYNOR'S disregard of precautions in his daily comings and goings. People say he ought to have had a bodyguard. He practically had a bodyguard when he was shot. He was standing, in the bright morning light, on the spacious deck of a big ship with affectionate friends clustered about him and detectives near at hand. President MCKINLEY was supposed to be well guarded when he was assassinated. One of the detectives stood close by him. Kings are often killed by assassins while they are surrounded by armed soldiers.

After such a public calamity as the attempted murder of Mayor GAYNOR there is always an outcry for some means to prevent such occurrences. But an assassin who is willing to take the consequences of his act is always sure to find a time and place for its consummation. Assassins rarely advise their victims beforehand. Assassins can defy the strongest bodyguard. This outrageous attempt upon the life of a zealous public officer, striving to do only his duty to the people, was made without warning and in spite of many obstacles. It is folly to suppose it might have been prevented by any precautions.

THE TAXICAB TRUST.

Most people do not ride in taxicabs, and have no particular tenderness for those who are able to do so, or pretend to be able to. Accordingly there is likely to be a certain amount of grim satisfaction at the news that a trust has been formed to amalgamate the management of nine taxicab companies. At last these little popular customers of the purveyors of this luxury are likely to learn something enlightening about the cost of high living, will be the most general comment.

But the alleged motive of this trust—as of other trusts—is to enable economies, and to share them with the customers whom they will attract from taxicabs outside the trust. It is planned, for example, that when a taxicab makes a long trip with a fare it shall report at a nearby station, and be sent back with another fare. Under present conditions it goes empty one way, at the cost of much wear and tear, and of good gasoline burned for nothing. Moreover there will be but one cost of administration, instead of nine, and so on through the usual list of alleged economic advantages through harmonizing and standardizing competitive units.

The interest and significance of this extends beyond taxicab circles. One of the greatest advantages of large scale organization is just that asserted by this little $2,500,000 trust. The greatest problem of the railways is to load their cars both ways, and to substitute profitable for expensive "backhauls." One of the greatest advantages of the Steel Trust is that it makes its goods near the consuming market, and thus avoids freight charges. One of the anomalies of the present situation is that the most hated and prosecuted trusts are noted for the moderation of their charges. As examples may be cited railway rates, and the price of steel, sugar, and oil. Taxicab riders may therefore really profit by the forming of a taxicab trust, and perhaps those who have maliciously hoped that now taxicab riders would "get theirs" may be disappointed. Whatever the result, it will be another argument against the trusts, of course. It is impossible that there should be any argument in their favor in the present state of the popular mind.

A GOOD WESTERN OPINION.

Good New Yorkers will feel encouraged by the opinion of the comparative decency and cleanliness of their city formed, after investigation, by the Rev. M. A. MATTHEWS of Seattle, and grateful to him for so strongly expressing it. Mr. MATTHEWS is a sociologist and criminologist who pursues his work in these fields methodically and intelligently. He has lately been examining the larger cities of the United States, and he has found New York "the cleanest city in the world, taking everything into consideration." Of course, we should expect him to take everything into consideration. His qualified approval is all the more agreeable to our pride because Mr. MATTHEWS does not hold to an optimistic view of this era. He calls it a bad era. Our National vitality has been lowered, he thinks, by bad habits, lack of sleep, and general nervous exhaustion.

It is unusual for a visitor from the West to find anything to praise in New York. Westerners come here by car loads and find plenty to like, judging from their manifestations of enjoyment. But they reserve their praise, and generally go home to tell their neighbors what a bad place New York is. Mr. MATTHEWS, a serious man of large repute, comes here systematically to hunt for badness, and frankly avows that he has found less of it, comparatively speaking, than he has found in some Western cities. We never mind the harsh criticisms of European visitors. Their point of view does not interest us. But the unjust denunciations of Western Americans sometimes annoy us. Wherefore, we tender our thanks to Mr. MATTHEWS.

DEBASING AMERICAN SUFFRAGE.

Three millions of farmers are about to imitate the bad example of some other large classes of citizens and organize for action in politics according to their class interests. Nobody could object to any body of citizens, of whatever numbers, organizing for the betterment of their interests in any laudable manner. The adoption of the methods of the blacklist and boycott for the attainment of political ends does not fall within that description.

These farmers propose to establish a Domesday book to be ready for use in the approaching Congressional elections. The object is to "defeat such members of Congress and other public officers as are deaf to the demands of agriculturalists for laws advancing their interests."

This puts politics frankly on a basis of selfishness, instead of patriotism. It is too true that the farmers have distinguished if not admirable exemplars for their conduct. It is also true that there is growing remonstrance against such mercenary motives in politics. Laws are for all. Their application should be universal. There can be no such thing, rightly speaking, as a "law" to advance any interest except the public interest. When farmers or unionists or Socialists or any other class of citizens seek any other object than the universal good they debase American citizenship.

Any party which seeks support on that basis is practicing bribery through forms of law, instead of with its own means. Liberality at public expense is vicious. It is more insidious than other forms of depredation because it defiles government at its source. Good faith is the basis of government, and it is a violation of the good faith of all our social arrangements to divert any public thing to the use of any section of the community. No party is worthy of support which offers any such disguised bribe to the electorate, or which threatens any lawmaker elected on a platform of public issues.

SMALL FLATS AND BAD BOYS.

From that veritably Athenian seat of learning, the University of Chicago, comes the grave announcement that small flats make bad boys. Prof. ALLEN HOBEN, whose favorite lay is homiletics, says boys are bad when they cannot find room to empty their pockets, Yet the fathers of boys whose pockets are always nearly empty must continue to bring up their broods in small flats, if they dwell in cities, and the tendencies of modern life are largely toward the cities. We do not believe, personally, that the race of bad boys is increasing, speaking comparatively. There have always been bad boys. The first boy born to our common parents, after the first recorded moving day, was bad. His motto was: "I want what I want when I want it." That is the sign of inherent badness. Our consolation is that bad boys often grow up to be fairly good men.

Prof. HOBEN'S theory of the atavistic tendencies of bad boys is illuminatingly sociological. They fill their pockets with odds and ends of animal, vegetable, and mineral origin because of their inherent sense of proprietorship, and the instinct of construction. We like the professor's theory better than the long-established one that boys fill their trousers pockets with things they do not want through inherent perversity. But beyond the fact that the great congestion of life in big cities tends to evil influences, we see nothing in his theory of bad boys and small flats. All the good and great men the world has known were not born in the country and permitted to develop in the wilderness. There are good as well as bad influences in great cities. The goodness and badness of boys depend more on the quality of their environment than on its size in square feet.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Gallagher's Defense of Insanity.

The lawyers who have assumed the distasteful task of defending GALLAGHER announce, as was to be expected, that "insanity appears to be the only logical plea." It seems logical, in a measure. GALLAGHER had his fixed idea, his "grievance," and he had had delusions of persecution (supported, however, by his having incurred enmities) which induced him to purchase and carry his weapon long before he formulated his plan to use it on Mayor GAYNOR. His contentious and overbearing spirit, his struttings about, his writing to the newspapers, his complaints to high officials, and his growing self-importance, which finally induced him to attract to his case by an overt act the attention of the whole world—these circumstances will doubtless be cited to show that he is a megalomaniac. If he were rich and could retain expert alienists, possibly some of them could be persuaded by fat fees to say that he is really insane.

This theory would be very beautiful were it not for the fact, admitted by all alienists, that perfectly responsible persons may exhibit temporarily all these symptoms of insanity; that every man who broods over real or fancied wrongs and nurses his resentments has taken the first step toward a condition which might ultimately degenerate into mania, and, in his voluntary surrenders of reason to passion, he may commit homicide. There is no essential difference, only a difference in degree or in habit, between the furious acts of a sane man and the acts of a raging madman. True, GALLAGHER exhibited traits of queerness. But Dr. JAMES J. WALSH, Professor of Nervous Diseases at Fordham University, declares that insanity in this relation is an exceedingly broad term:

> It shades off on all sides into normal conditions so elusively that it is impossible properly to set limits to it. The expert may not quite agree that "half the world is off and the other half not quite on," nor with that expression of the French that "we are all a little cracked, only some of us conceal the crack better than others"; but he does not like to be pinned down to a formula of words according to which the sanity or insanity of individuals may be judged with absolute assurance.

Therefore the law has very wisely provided a distinction between what is known as "medical insanity," in which the subject may still be held legally responsible for his acts, and the specific types of legal insanity. GALLAGHER'S case is of course abnormal, but is it more abnormal than that of any man who in a fit of envy, hatred, and vindictive malice commits a murder?

The Carrying of Pistols.

Judge HOLT'S article in The Independent on the unlicensed purchase of revolvers and other deadly weapons that can be used without let or hindrance by every insane, drunken or criminally minded man in the community is peculiarly timely. Every State attempts, but with uniform ill success, to regulate or suppress the carrying of deadly weapons, but in each case the ill success is due to lack of provision by which persons violating the law can be detected and punished.

Gov. WILLSON of Kentucky has just refused to pardon a "pistol toter," who happens to belong to a prominent family, and happens, also, to have been detected and convicted. That is a fine thing for a Kentucky Governor to do. But Kentucky, like the rest of the States, fails to license persons who engage in the business of selling revolvers, or to require that the dealers sell their weapons only to duly licensed individuals. It provides for no application by a Sheriff or other officer for a warrant to search the premises and persons of suspects. Such provisions, according to competent authority, would not conflict with the Second Amendment or with the Bill of Rights of the several State Constitutions. These relate to the bearing of arms in the militia or in defense of self, home and property. As the courts have ruled, the special reasons of defense may be required to be stated and passed upon by regularly constituted authorities.

Brookins Was Doing "Circus Stunts."

WALTER H. BROOKINS was accomplishing feats that had nothing to recommend them save their hair-raising qualities—that was the prime reason for his crashing into the crowd on the aviation field at Asbury Park Wednesday, with disastrous consequences to himself and with fatal consequences to one of the many others whom he injured. Our dispatch describing the spiral whirl that failed relates that "his effort has been to develop the aeroplane as a showman's device for such air meets as are expected to replace the auto races of a year or two ago." The device has replaced the grewsome features of the auto races with a vengeance.

With the kind of aerial chauffeuring indulged in by WILBUR and ORVILLE WRIGHT no such accident would have occurred, even though more persons had obtained passes to the aviation field. HAMILTON'S long and spectacular dive to earth, useful in cases of accident to the motor, would permit him to select an open space for landing. But BROOKINS'S spiral swoop forbade deliberation when he saw the camera men in his path; he was barely able to point his spent machine upward, only to be borne down again by the wind. Of course, nobody should be permitted on the aviation field, but neither should "circus stunts" be permitted there. The next spiral whirler may alight with force and impact upon the upturned faces in the grand stand, as BROOKINS in this instance narrowly escaped doing. BROOKINS has done good work in demonstrating how high an aeroplane can fly above sea level. It is to be hoped that he will live to advance the art of flying more usefully than in his recent unhappy performances.

The Red Man.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Indian in the East is a vanishing figure, but were I of the Western tribes, a man and a full-blood, and knowing the history of the robbery and degradation of my people, I would gather any fighting men there were, jump the reservation, and declare war on the whites, war without quarter and without hope, a war of extermination, till I was killed. We started with the sainted William Penn swindling us, and finish with a Vice President accused of the same. KITTY MONTROSE.

Grant's Tomb.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"W. J. L." is correct as to the tomb in Riverside Park. His is an artistic temperament, for has he not written verses for THE TIMES? As to the main portion of Gen. Grant's tomb, it is classical and hence satisfactory. It is the "candle-snuffing" top that is unsightly. It should come off and be replaced by a kind of low, classical dome in harmony with the lower portion upon which it would rest. F. G. B.

MARSH ON CONGESTION.

His Summary of an Address on the Needs of the City.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your report of my address at the Labor Temple Tuesday night contains several inaccuracies, which in justice I am sure you will correct.

I paid a warm tribute to Mayor Gaynor, and said that the blood of the Mayor might be the seed of the Governor, and quoted an evening paper's report of his speech, some years ago, on "Who are the real Anarchists and Socialists?" I did not say that I am for him for either Governor or President.

Referring to real estate speculation, I read verbatim from an editorial in a recent Record and Guide the statement, "New York probably more than any city in the world has been the paradise of the real estate speculator and operator, of the man who buys real estate not for the purpose of improving it, but for the purpose of appropriating a probable increase in value," &c., and referred to the increase to assessed land values of New York from 1906 to 1908 of $476,931,851, insisting that we have an unjust system of municipal socialism in New York, under which all this increase created by the 4,500,000 of the city goes to one thousand, more or less.

I sincerely congratulated the present administration on its honesty and efficiency, but expressed my conviction that aggressive honesty would here, as for twenty-five years in German cities, lead the administration to initiate legislation for new systems of taxation on wealth instead of abject poverty, and especially such as would get for the people part of the wealth their labor creates, such as Mayor Gaynor's suggestion to abandon the personal property tax as a first step, and stated that I have asked the Mayor and other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in the coming budget exhibit to show not only how the city taxes are spent but who pays them, and whether they are paid either according to ability to pay or service rendered property owners by the city.

It was suggested to me, I stated, that the Mayor be asked to appoint a city commissioner on congestion, to be financed privately, but I advocated the course now taken, by which the commission is appointed by the Mayor in pursuance of a resolution of the Board of Aldermen, and paid a tribute to the hard and efficient work on that commission being done by the Board of Aldermen members thereof as well as the lay members. I did not state that such men (real estate speculators) prevented the passage of the ordinance providing for paying the expenses of the unpaid commission, but did state that some real estate speculators have told me personally that they would spend hundreds of thousands to defeat legislation suggested by the Congestion Committee, not commission, but agreed with Mayor Gaynor that we are a city of laws, not men, only those laws must be for the benefit of all citizens, not a few. I inclose a copy of my address, prepared several days ago, which you may use if you wish, and thank you for the courtesy of your space.

THE ASSASSIN.

The Type of Man Capable of a Deed Like His.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attempt at assassination of Mayor Gaynor furnishes another illustration of an undisciplined mind besotted with self-love, unconscious or indifferent to its own delinquencies, leading its possessor to believe himself, although incapable of earnestly performing a simple and humble task, to be equal or of greater importance than one who has secured the respect of a discriminating community.

The man has virtually admitted defection in an allotted task, and irrationally resents dismissal, holding the Chief Magistrate of a huge community as responsible for the fault and its penalty. He plunges headlong into a crime for which he knew he would be apprehended and with punitive results, while order is disturbed and the promise of good government is arrested in its measures.

Aside from acts of violence, there is frequently manifested by others in public or private affairs the same protrusion of inglorious self, so persistent in acts as to discourage the well intentioned by throwing obstacles in the path otherwise promising of beneficial conclusions.

We have also among us those who seek out widowed legatees and others inexperienced in commercial matters as objects of attention in order to relieve them of any superfluous or total resources, pursuing the object with all the earnestness of legitimate quest, and when apprehended seek to defend themselves with all the powers of resistance against that which they pronounce, and really feel to be, an unrighteous prosecution because it is an interference with their designs, which, if successful, they regard as creditable performances, irrespective of the losses entailed on others.

Surely, such minds offer a wide and curious field for survey for those who pursue the "straight and narrow path." PERPLEXED.

Gaynor and McKinley.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When President McKinley had been shot and the piteous news was spread from day to day from the patient sufferer's bedside I was affected by a peculiar sense of grief, not the mere feeling that arouses one man's compassion for another, but something deeper, something that fathoms the soul.

Sources and causes of criticism were forgotten; the consciousness alone remained that a leader of his people—my people—had been stricken. The same it is with Mayor Gaynor. Though the compass of his proven usefulness is smaller, the promise has been boundless. Of trifling purpose would it be to say now that I stood among his opposers. The man in changing to meet the measure of his responsibilities has so changed us all.

Our prayer must be that he be spared for still greater things among us. J. W. E.

Government and the Dollar.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am very much pleased by the tone of your leading editorial article, "Popular Government," in this morning's paper. It touches a chord in our civic policy that needs serious attention. Our pioneers and their followers were not self-seekers after jobs, but had unselfish ends in view. It looks as though we had about reached a point where we should pause and think seriously. The almighty dollar is very much on top. It should be relegated to its proper place, which is pretty near the bottom. It is the destroyer of the entire social equilibrium, moral, economic, industrial, and political. GEORGE L. BURR.

Who Are the "Best People"?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We often hear the phrase "the best people" used when we doubt it is justly applicable, as in the case of a society woman of Narragansett Pier, who is said to have remarked that the best people frequent the club where the raid took place the other day. Are the best people of any community the fashionable people, the moneyed people, the exclusive set?

WATER WARNING.

Sprinkle, sprinkle, water cart;
How I wonder where thou art.
Never can I find thee nigh,
When the dust is flying high.

When the streets with rain are wet,
Thou'art certain to be met,
Then, of course, thy stream's in sight,
Sprinkling, sprinkling, left and right.

When I'm dressed up in my best,
That's the time thy power to test,
Then thou tak'st a sudden cue,
Deluging me through and through.

Thou'rt a warning to me, p'r'aps,
To stop drinking beer and schnapps,
So I'll choose the wisest part,
I'll get on thee, water cart.

LA TOUCHE HANCOCK.

DEPORT WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Pitiful Scene on the French Line Pier When the Family Is Parted.

Separated from two of her four children by the immigration law on the pier of the French Line yesterday morning, Mrs. Victoria Schlederer and the other little ones were deported to Hungary on the steamship Bretagne. The two who stayed here were born in this country and therefore did not come under the sentence passed by the immigration officials. They were taken in charge by the father.

Mrs. Schlederer, her husband, and their eldest child, now 8 years old, came here from Hungary five years ago and settled in Claridge, Penn., where the father now is employed. There two children were born, and two years ago the mother and her three children went to Europe, where they since have been living with relatives. Soon after Mrs. Schlederer's arrival there another child was born. This one is now nearly 2 years old.

Early in May Mrs. Schlederer and her children started back, arriving on the French liner Chicago. The father was on the dock to welcome them, but Mrs. Schlederer was taken to Ellis Island, where the surgeons found her suffering with trachoma and ordered her deported. The children were ordered sent back with her. The father appealed to Washington, and but a few days ago the order of deportation was confirmed. The father pleaded that he had taken out his first citizenship papers, and that as two of his children were citizens they had the right of entry in spite of her condition. To this appeal the frantic woman added her prayers, but they were told that she must go back.

The woman and children were put on board Wednesday evening. The steamship sailed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Early in the morning Schlederer came to the pier. He demanded that his American-born children be allowed to land. He said that he would pay for treatment for his wife if the authorities would care for her here. His request for his children was granted.

The heartbroken mother sobbed over the two children whom she will perhaps not see again in years. The father also shed tears, and the four youngsters, clinging to their mother, wept loud and long.

At the last minute the father went ashore leading the two crying children. As long as they were within sound of the mother's voice she continued to cry for them. Sorrowfully they stood on the pier watching the Bretagne sailing away with wife and mother.

HUGHES HAS BARLOW CASE.

Massachusetts Accusers of Magistrate Say They Will File Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 11.—Gov. Hughes heard further testimony to-day in the case of Magistrate Barlow, who admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000 each three men charged with burglary, after he had been requested to hold them in $20,000 each.

The men were Harry Rothstein and Jacob and Joseph Goldberg, wanted in Boston on a charge of stealing about $15,000 worth of jewelry from Samuel B. Rulmann, a Boston jeweler. After being bailed the men left and have not been seen since. It is now contended by the Massachusetts authorities that the $15,000 forfeited should go to Rulmann to reimburse him for this loss. It is understood that the three men are also wanted in Philadelphia and New Haven for burglaries aggregating nearly $35,000.

Gov. Hughes received Assistant District Attorney Nott's report in the matter several weeks ago, but he has been pursuing other lines of inquiry since. Mark S. Reinstein and Representative Freeman O. Emerson, of Massachusetts, conferred with the Governor for some time this afternoon regarding the action of Magistrate Barlow and they said they would file charges against him. Both left for New York to get additional facts for their charges.

The request of Gov. Draper of Massachusetts to Gov. Hughes that he look into the matter will receive prompt attention, Gov. Hughes said this afternoon. He has asked the District Attorney of New York County for the facts leading up to the fixing of the bail and the prisoners subsequent getting outside the jurisdiction of this State. Gov. Hughes, later in the day, informed those interested that perhaps their best remedy would be to call the attention of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to the proceedings before Barlow.

TESTED ICE SCALES.

Driscoll Had All His Inspectors on the Work—Bread by Weight Later.

The scales of every ice company and dealer in the city were tested by the Bureau of Weights and Measures yesterday following the arrest on Wednesday of an ice-wagon driver who delivered an order for two tons of ice nearly 25 per cent. short. Commissioner Driscoll sent out his entire staff to investigate, and from now on every iceman in the city will be required to deliver by actual and correct weight.

After a conference yesterday with the representatives of the largest bakeries in the city Commissioner Driscoll announced that he had given them until Oct. 1 to inaugurate the new system of selling bread by weight. In explaining just what he intends to do about this Mr. Driscoll said:

"I believe there ought to be a commission in this State known as the Bread and Flour Commission, with power to regulate the size, price, and quality of all loaves sold. This commission could do great work in grading the size and price to the cost of flour and fix standard weights."

The bureau will shortly open a mechanical division in the building at 244 West Forty-ninth Street, now occupied by the Taxicab Division of the Bureau of Licenses, where all sorts of tests on scales will be made.

Edward Smith, who was charged with underweighing, was arraigned in the Yorkville Court yesterday. He is employed by the American Ice Company. On the plea that he was not prepared to go on with the case the examination was put off until next Monday.

GRESSER SUSPENDS CROWELL

Removes Head of Highway Department's Topographical Bureau.

Another step toward cleaning out the Queens Borough Hall, as advised by Mayor Gaynor, was taken yesterday, when Borough President Gresser announced the suspension of Robert R. Crowell, engineer in charge of the Topographical Department and the Bureau of Highways, and the appointment of Dr. Walter G. Eliot in his place, and of John H. Weinberger in charge of the Engineering Bureau of Highways.

Ever since the report by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick on the Topographical Bureau, the suspension of Crowell has been expected. The charges against Crowell are based on the Fosdick report, in which it was alleged that the bureau was being run for the benefit of an engineering company in Queens. It is charged that he showed favoritism and allowed surveyors access to records and information that had not become available for public use. His hearing has been set down for this morning in the Long Island City Borough Hall.

Dr. Eliot, who will take charge of the bureau, was born in New York City in 1857. He was for many years sanitary engineer of the New York City Board of Health, and is the author of sever albooks. In 1891 Dr. Eliot became editor of The University Magazine, but in 1895 returned to his profession.

PLANS FOR BUDGET EXHIBIT.

Committee May Hold It in the Old Tefft-Weller Building.

The committee which has charge of the arrangements for the budget exhibit to be held this Fall has recommended to the Sinking Fund Commission that the ground floor of the old Tefft-Weller Building at 330 Broadway be rented for the purpose for a month. It is estimated that the cost will be some $3,000.

There should have been a meeting of the commission yesterday to consider this and other questions, but on account of a misunderstanding in the announcement it has been postponed until next Monday.

PLAN JOINT TRAFFIC RATE WITH CANADA

Agent from the Dominion Confers with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

TREATY MAY BE NECESSARY

Agreement Possible, However, by Means of Concurrent Legislation —Another Conference.

The first step toward the joint regulation of international traffic between the United States and Canada, which has grown to large proportions in the last few years, was taken yesterday, when a conference between Chairman Martin A. Knapp, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Chief Commissioner Mabee, of the Railway Commission of Canada, was held at the Hotel Manhattan.

They were together practically the whole day, and last night Mr. Knapp said that though this meeting was but preliminary to others to come later, satisfactory progress was made. He and Mr. Mabee have under consideration these aspects of the general question of international rate regulation:

Whether existing legislation in the two countries is adequate for the effective control of through traffic, and whether joint control of such traffic would be mutually advantageous to the business interests of both countries.

Whether it would be necessary to the end in view to negotiate a treaty between the two countries, or whether the result could be accomplished by concurrent legislation.

Whether under a treaty or such concurrent legislation joint control could be enforced through the separate administrative or judicial authorities in each country respectively, or preferably by the creation of a new joint tribunal in the nature of an International Traffic Commission.

Whether such joint control should include not only through railway rates and regulations, but also express companies, telegraph companies and telephone companies operating between the two countries.

Mr. Knapp said last night that no statement could be made regarding the results of his meeting with Commissioner Mabee, but let it be inferred that they had found common ground and would go into a second conference in the early Fall, with every prospect of making rapid progress. He and Mr. Mabee are requested to investigate the situation for both Governments and make a recommendation for legislation or a treaty.

Chairman Knapp said the growth of through freight and passenger traffic between the two countries had been exceedingly rapid in the last five years, making a joint regulation almost imperative.

SEES GOOD IN CANTEEN.

Army Chaplain Says Soldiers Could Not Drink to Excess There.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Although he did not directly advocate the re-establishment of the army canteen, the Rev. George J. Waring, Chaplain of the Eleventh Cavalry, U. S. A., implied that its abolishment was a mistake in an address before the National Convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union here to-day. Father Waring defended the reputation of the soldier and declared that he was driven to drink largely by the fact that he was practically barred from high-class places of amusement and refreshment. He added:

"He has been deprived of a canteen where he was accustomed to get a glass of pure beer without going away from his home, and where he could neither meet bad company nor drink to excess. He is shunned by all respectable people. His self-respect is crushed within him and he naturally enters the only open door—that of the saloon."

Father Waring urged that more active effort be made to increase the number of total abstainers in the army.

BALLINGER STARTS ON TOUR.

Will Speak on Conservation and Inspect the National Parks.

SEATTLE, Aug. 11.—Secretary of the Interior Richard A. Ballinger has started on a two weeks' tour of Oregon and California. He is accompanied by Assistant Secretary E. C. Finney and Private Secretary McCabe.

Secretary Ballinger will spend two days in Portland, Ore. Friday he will be the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Portland Commercial Club and will deliver an address on conservation. The tour is chiefly for the purpose of inspecting reclamation projects and the National parks.

From Portland he will go to Klamath Falls, remaining there until Aug. 17. The Thursday and Friday following he will spend in San Francisco and from Aug. 20 to 23 he will inspect the Yosemite National Park. He will return to Seattle on Aug. 25.

Assistant Secretary Finney will not stop at Portland, but will proceed direct to Colorado, where he will inspect reclamation projects. From Colorado he will go on to Washington, D. C., where he expects to arrive on Sept. 1.

TEMPLARS SELECT DENVER.

Conclave of 1913 Will Be Held There —Grand Officers Chosen.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—With the selection of Denver on the third ballot for the conclave of 1913 and the election of officers, headed by William B. Melish of Cincinnati, as grand master, the business of the thirty-first triennial conclave of the Knights Templars was to-day practically concluded. Los Angeles and New Orleans were the other contesting cities.

Other officers elected were: Deputy Grand Master, Arthur MacArthur of Troy, N. Y.; Grand Generalissimo, W. F. Pierce of San Francisco; Grand Captain General, Lee S. Smith of Pittsburg; Grand Senior Warden, Joseph Kyle Orr of Atlanta, Ga.; Grand Junior Warden, Jehiel W. Chamberlain of St. Paul.

J. G. CARLISLE LEFT $40,000.

Real and Personal Property to be Divided Among Grandchildren.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The will of John G. Carlisle, former Secretary of the Treasury, has been filed here for probate. To his grandchildren, John G. Carlisle, Jr., and Jane Carlisle Allen of New York City, and Laura Carlisle Pitkin of New Haven, Conn., is left his real and personal property, to be divided share and share alike.

The estate is valued at approximately $40,000.

SPECIAL CUTTER FOR McADOO

Government Takes the Tunnel Builder from a Ship—His Wife Ill.

William G. McAdoo, the tunnel builder, arrived home yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic. He returns at this time because of the serious illness of his wife. The Federal authorities showed Mr. McAdoo special consideration. The revenue cutter Manhattan with a Customs official on board met the Majestic at Quarantine and took him off to enable him to reach his wife with all possible speed.

MUCH THAT IS QUAINT IN 'THE BRASS BOTTLE'

Also Vast Stretches of Unnecessary Dialogue in Which Interest Is All at Sea.

ARABIAN NIGHTS MODERNIZED

Some Good Acting That Helps and Some Slipshod Stage Management That Doesn't.

THE BRASS BOTTIE, a romantic comedy, in four acts, by F. Anstey. Lyceum Theatre.

Horace Ventimore ..... Richard Bennett
Fakrash-el-Aamash ..... Edwin Stevens
Prof. Anthony Futvoye ..... Fuller Mellish
Mrs. Futvoye ..... Mrs. Thomas Whiffen
Sylvia Futvoye ..... Irene Fenwick
Spencer Pringle ..... Ivo Dawson
Samuel Wackerbath ..... Louis Massen
Mrs. Wackerbath ..... Cecilia Radclyffe
Jessie ..... Grace Crowley
Rapkin ..... Sebastian Smith
Mrs. Rapkin ..... Carrie Perkins
A Dancing Girl ..... Adelaide Orton
Zobeida and Head Efreet ... Arthur P. Hyman
A Waiter ..... Harry Lang

There is so much that is quaint and amusing about Mr. F. Anstey's play, "The Brass Bottle," that it is too bad that some one did not undertake the task of editing it. For if ever a play needed the stage manager's blue pencil this one does.

Mr. Anstey had a delightful idea. He sought to visualize an Arabian Night's tale, to get the fun out of it which naturally results from modern skepticism as regards the occult, while retaining something of the illusion and the mystery. And in many respects he succeeded admirably. There are a number of very laughable scenes, some surprises, several appealing and interestmg characters, and a considerable amount of picturesqueness. Also—and this is a pity—there is a sea of words so vast and expansive that interest in the whole affair at times comes perilously near being submerged in it.

Briefly the story is of one Horace Vettimore, a young architect, who buys an antique bottle, uncorks it, and finds himself confronted by Fakrash-El-Amash, the Genii of the Jinn, who insists upon rewarding him, as is the fashion of such spirits, and who, to Horace's intense disgust, proves to be a sort of original and Simon-pure Mr. Fixit, with that gentleman's familiar propensity for making trouble.

He transforms Horace's modest rooms into an Oriental palace, forces the young man to feed his unsuspecting guests upon queer-tasting and queerer-smelling viands, and otherwise discommodes him and them. He finds for Horace a client who wants a home built, then builds one over night, much to the chagrin of the would-be patron, who is looking for modern conveniences, and doesn't appreciate the antiquated Oriental architecture of the new dwelling.

Further, he turns the dignified Prof. Futvoye, Horace's prospective father-in-law, into a wall-eyed mule, and then, offended at Horace's ingratitude, leads the family to believe that the action has been instigated by Horace, who, in consequence, naturally enough comes very near losing his sweetheart. But eventually, through awe of a stronger power than his own—the spirit of progress—the Genii is led to ask for imprisonment anew in his brass bottle, and Horace gratifies the desire after having forced the spirit to bring forgetfulness of the incident to practically all of those who have had a part in the experiences.

Now obviously this is a very fanciful tale, presenting opportunities for a good bit of fun. And a good bit there is in it, so that the average spectator is pretty certain to be interested in seeing the developments as they occur, and to have that what-will-happen-next sort of feeling that really is a very good thing to have in the playhouse.

It is too bad, therefore, that the general interest should be retarded by so much that is both inconsequential and unnecessary. Moreover, in a piece of this kind, no effort should be spared to create and sustain every possible illusion.

But there was much that was slipshod last night in matters of stage management and in the handling of lights. With the best intentions in the world, one could not get very much excited over the disappearance of the Genii's gleaming scimetar, when the hand of a husky stage hand was plainly seen reaching out to grab it, whereas it was supposed to disappear by magic.

Then cover such a blunder as having an entirely foreign voice from the one belonging to the person who has been transformed issue from the inside of the donkey seems unpardonable. It is possible, of course, that such things as these will be amended before many nights, and in the meantime much more may be done for the general interest by liberal pruning.

Mr. Anstey has a decidedly agreeable vein of humor, but in this case not only the brass bottle but the author was in need of a cork. If the flow of language could have been dammed much more entertainment would have resulted.

In most respects the piece has been admirably cast, though that excellent artist, Mr. Richard Bennett, is rather wasted in a rôle which forces him to act as "feeder" a good part of the evening. He has some charming moments, and is always agreeable. A comedian of a lighter and wholly different method might have done more, though at best the rôle does not seem worth much.

As the genii Edwin Stevens was highly interesting, both pictorially and vocally. He brought a good deal of sly fun to bear on the part, and preserved at the same time a certain sense of mystery and dignity in the figure.

The surprise of the night was the charm and grace and really delicate playing of Irene Fenwick, who, from comparative obscurity, becomes an agreeable prospective leading woman. Lousi Massen played excellently, and Mrs. Whiffen as usual added the value of dignity and ease. As the old professor, Mr. Fuller Mellish was amusingly fussy. Ivo Dawson provided a neat figure, as did Cecilia Radclyffe. It is impossible to share the genii's enthusiasm as regards the houri evoked by him from space. Good dancers are so common nowadays that there seemed every reason for Horace's guests to complain of their entertainment in this respect.

MARIE DORO RETURNS.

Henry Blossom and Four English Dancers Also on the Majestic.

The White Star liner Majestic, which arrived yesterday, was full of actor folks and other theatrical people returning to New York for the beginning of the season. One of the first to come down the gangplank was Marie Doro, who has been resting at Bad Kissingen, and who is to begin work on the star part in William Gillette's new play, "Electricity." While abroad Miss Doro met several of her fellow-stars of the Frohman management, notably William H. Crane and Otis Skinner. She will open in Boston in "Electricity," and in May she will go back to England to appear in a tour with William Gillette in repertoire. "Electricity" will also be put on in London, and she will play the principal rôle there.

Henry Blossom, composer of several musical plays, was another passenger on the Majestic. He was accompanied by Mrs. Blossom, and brought with him the score and manuscript of his latest work, "The Slim Princess," that is to be produced at the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, on Sept. 5. Four English dancers, Norah Gourlay, Dorothy Germaine, Violet Beryl, and Babs Beresford, who are to appear in this play, were fellow-travelers with Mr. and Mrs. Blossom. They are of the type called "flappers" in the London vernacular.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Price, who is Catherine Countiss on the stage, were also on the Majestic, as well as Frank Goldsmith and his wife, whose stage name is Isabella Lee. Mrs. George Baxter, who was Dorothy Usner, and Austin Hurgon, an English stage director, who is to stage "The Slim Princess" for Charles Dillingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Borden, who have been spending the Summer at Oceanic, N. J., motored to New York yesterday.

M. J. DRUMMOND, BRIDEGROOM

Public Charities Commissioner Wed Mrs. Bissett Last Monday.

It became known yesterday that Commissioner of Public Charities Michael J. Drummond had married, last Monday, Mrs. Helen M. Bissett of 510 West 144th Street, and on Tuesday they sailed for Europe on the steamship Rotterdam. The Commissioner announced to the members of his family his intention of marrying only a few days before the wedding. He took out the license on Monday, marrying the same night in the Roman Catholic Church of the Sacred Heart in Fifty-first Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues. The wedding was followed by a supper at Delmonico's.

Mr. Drummond is an iron manufacturer. He is the head of the firm of M. J. Drummond & Co., is President and Director of the Drummond Iron Works, of the Nassau County Water Company and the Shawmut Clay Manufacturing Company, and is a Director of the Broadway Trust Company, Glamorgan Pipe and Foundry Company, the Green Island Water Supply Company, and the Jamaica Water Supply Company. He is a Trustee and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank.

The first Mrs. Drummond died four years ago. Since her death Mr. Drummond has kept up his home at 148 West Seventy-sixth Street and a Summer home at Monroe, N. McDERMOTT—FLANNERY.

At the Church of St. Frances de Chantal, Borough Park, Wednesday night, Miss Maud Lucille Flannery became the bride of William Joseph McDermott, the Rev. Father McAdam, pastor of the church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Father McMahon. Miss Flannery is the daughter of John R. Flannery of the Standard Oil Company, and has been a familiar figure in the social life of Manhattan and Brooklyn. Mr. McDermott is a young lawyer and member of several clubs. Owing to the death of the bride's uncle, which occurred at Norwalk, Conn., last week, only the immediate families were present. Harold V. Flannery, a brother of the bride, acted as best man and Miss C. Augusta Stuurmann as bridesmaid.

WHO TO MANAGE TETRAZZINI?

Prima Donna Again Says Leahy—Hammerstein Claims Contract.

Another shot was fired in the Tetrazzini versus all the impresarios in America case yesterday, when the prima donna, through her press agent, issued another statement from London, in which she said that the announcement that she had signed for the coming season with W. H. Leahy of San Francisco was quite correct, and that she did not consider that she was under contract to Mr. Hammerstein.

When the matter was brought to Mr. Hammerstein's attention he said: "I have told my side of the story once, and I can only repeat it. When I sold my interests to the Metropolitan Company Mme. Tetrazzini wrote me that she did not want to go to the Metropolitan. I wrote her a letter telling her that in that case I would consider her still under contract to me, and that letter I sent back to her by William Guard. She is to tour the country in concert under my management, and when the Fall arrives I shall send her an advance and her steamship fare."

The statement from London reads: "Mme. Tetrazzini signed a contract on July 26 with her former manager, William Leahy of San Francisco. She will come to America the first of December and remain until the end of March, making an extensive concert tour.

"Any announcements made now or in the future in contradiction to this statement are, and will be, absolutely unfounded and without authority.

"In order to make plain her position to Americans, Mme. Tetrazzini further wishes to state that on his latest visit to London early in July Mr. Dippel sent word that he wished to see her and explain matters which could not be explained in writing, but Mme. Tetrazzini did not wish to make any contract with him for this reason:

"Early in May Mr. Dippel, together with Arthur Hammerstein, visited her in London, drew up a contract agreeable to both parties guaranteeing her thirty opera performances, and informing Mme. Tetrazzini that he had no power to sign the contract, but must return to America to secure his Directors' consent, and asked for an option until a certain date, which would give him time to arrive in America. To this she consented, but to her surprise instead of receiving a definite reply she received a number of different propositions, from various persons, none of whom had authority to sign a contract.

"As to the existence of any contract between Mme. Tetrazzini and Mr. Hammerstein for the season of 1910-11 there is not and never has been one. Mr. Hammerstein never renewed or made a new one."

William Gillette to Begin Rehearsals.

William Gillette has returned to New York from his houseboat Aunt Polly to begin work on rehearsing his répertoire of plays for his tour this Fall and Winter. The sixty-four actors he has engaged for his company will assemble this morning and will receive the parts they will have in the group of plays. Mr. Gillette's season in New York will follow that of John Drew at the Empire Theatre, taking the time that is usually reserved for Maude Adams, who will be appearing at the Knickerbocker Theatre in "Chantecler." Mr. Gillette's répertoire will consist of "Sherlock Holmes," "Secret Service," "The Private Secretary," "Too Much Johnson," "Held by the Enemy," and "Clarice."

Post Office Clerk Arrested.

Edward A. Daily, the inquiry clerk at the Madison Square Post Office station, who has been in the postal service fifteen years, was arrested yesterday. A test package containing two pairs of silk hose, which had been mailed in the regular way, was watched by inspectors, and it vanished just about the time that Daily left the station for his home, 2 East 128th Street. Soon afterward Inspector Jacobs paid Daily an unexpected visit, and in the clerk's room found the test package, which had just been opened. The prisoner when arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields waived examination, and was held in $1,000 bail to await the action of the Federal Grand Jury.

BARRYMORE GETS A LICENSE TO WED

BUT THEY'RE NOT MARRIED

At Least They Say the Ceremony Is Not to be Until Her Return from Canada.

Another chapter in the Jack Barrymore-Katherine Harris romance was enacted yesterday when the two principals appeared before Clerk Scully of the Marriage License Bureau at the City Hall about noon and applied for a marriage license. Young Barrymore gave his name as John Barrymore Blythe, his father's name as Herbert Blythe and his mother's as Georgiana Drew; his age as 28, and his residence, Murray's, in Forty-second Street. Miss Harris gave her age as 19.

When Clerk Scully asked Mr. Barrymore when the wedding was to take place the young actor had what he declared was his first case of stage fright. He did not answer at first, but later declared that the date had not been decided upon.

A report that the marriage had taken place in the Little Church Around the Corner was quickly disproved. Both Mr. Barrymore and Miss Harris are Catholics and will be married in a Catholic church.

Mr. Barrymore was with Miss Harris in her apartments at the Brayton, 62 Madison Avenue, yesterday. About 4.30 o'clock Mrs. Harris returned to the hotel to learn for the first time that her daughter had a license to be married.

Miss Harris made a statement in which she said that the getting of a license did not imply an immediate marriage.

"I'm going to Canada to-morrow," she said, "and we will not be married until I come back in about three weeks. No, I don't know the date, nor where it will be, but it will be in a Catholic church, because we are both Catholics. No, I don't know whether it will be a large or a small wedding."

At this point Miss Harris was rejoined by her mother, and the two went to the Harris apartment. Later Miss Harris, with Mr. Barrymore, walked toward Fifth Avenue, followed at a respectful distance by a group of eager reporters. After a short stroll they returned to Twenty-seventh Street and into the Prince George Hotel, and later to the Brayton.

In the evening Mr. Barrymore appeared at the Gaiety Theatre in "The Fortune Hunter," and after the second act he received a reporter for THE TIMES in his dressing room.

To the question, "Are you married?" he smilingly answered "No."

"As a matter of fact," he continued, "Miss Harris left for Canada at 6:30. I'd rather not say where she has gone because she has had a great deal of bother since this engagement was announced, and she wants some rest. However, it is planned that she shall return in three or four weeks, and then we are to be married.

"You see, we took out the license because it has been announced in some of the papers that the engagement had been broken because Miss Harris's parents did not approve. We have no intention of breaking the engagement, and we shall get married at once upon her return."

"Has Mrs. Harris gone to Canada with her daughter?"

"No, she has gone somewhere else. I was with Miss Harris all the afternoon and took her to the train."

"Will you have a large wedding?"

"I hope not!"

AT NARRAGANSETT PIER.

"Stage Struck," a One-Act Opera, Presented at the Mathewson.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 11.—In the ballroom of the Mathewson to-night "Stage Struck," a one-act opera by Dr. Jules Jordan of Providence, was presented before a large audience. Preceding the operetta a concert was rendered with vocal selections by the Arion Quartet. Dr. Jordan, composer of the opera, conducted. The story of the opera relates to the adventures of John Crumpet, a retired comic opera singer, and his wife, Sally, who longs to return to the stage. Other members of the family are also stage struck.

There are several effective numbers in the operetta. The principal rôles of John Crumpet, the baritone, and Sally, contralto, were sung by Thomas Rehan and Mrs. Katharine Bosworth, Miss Marjorie Culverwell played Phoebe, and Tom, a member of the family, was rendered by Joseph Alexander.

A feature of the concert preceding the opera was the duet "Close Curtain Rose" from "The Palace of Liberty," by Dr. Jordan, which was sung by Mrs. Evelyn Johnson and Walace Reynolds. The baritone solo, "Vision Fugitive" from "Herodiade" was rendered by Charles Bertram Peacock, baritone soloist of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. The instrumental numbers were played by the Mathewson orchestra.

Among those present were Mrs. Marshall J. Allen, Miss Garnryck, Dr. and Mrs. William Francis Honan, Mrs. George W. Carr, Stuart Davis, W. F. Forbes, Miss Margaret E. Gale of Washington, Mrs. L. Gasquet and party of New Orleans, S. W. Mathewson, Mrs. R. C. Chambers, Miss Mathewson, P. G. Hazard, Mrs. T. F. O'Gorman, Charles Rundell, Miss Katharine Wardwell, Mrs. W. D. Weeden, Miss Lydia Nicherson, Thomas P. Egan of Cincinnati, W. G. Heard, and Dr. George Rauling of Baltimore.

Mrs. Robert G. Dun of New York gave a dinner followed by bridge to-night at Dunmere.

Rene La Montagne, Jr., gave a luncheon at the Casino to-day, and among his guests were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Reynal, William A. Hazard, and Mrs. Johnston Livingston, Jr., of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton W. Smith gave a luncheon at their villa for Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Loudes of Maryland.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman sailed over from Newport to-day on the Sultana, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey.

Richard McGrann gave a luncheon at the Casino to-day for Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Brown.

At the Café Chantant to-morrow night in the Casino "A Midsummer Night's Scream" will be presented by Burr McIntosh. The proceeds from the entertainment will be devoted to the Parish House of St. Peter's Episcopal Church-by-the-Sea. Most of the tables and boxes in the ballroom have been reserved for the occasion.

Mrs. G. S. Rodman of Waterbury, Conn., and Mrs. Charles Smith of Warwick Neck, R. I., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Chase at Miramer.

Late arrivals at the Imperial include Dr. Samuel G. Tracy of New York, Mrs. William Waring, Miss Clara Waring, and Miss Eleanor Fisher of Baltimore.

Among recent arrivals at the Mathewson are Thomas P. Egan, Cincinnati, Ohio; John D. Hage, Mrs. B. A. Chamberlain, Mrs. J. K. Gibney, New York, and Randolph S. Warner, second, Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. F. B. Wilcox gave a luncheon at the Casino to-day for Mrs. E. C. Moulton of St. Louis.

Casino registrations include Mr. and Mrs. C. K. D. Walsh, St. Louis; Henry B. Pancoast, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. McGrann, Mrs. E. N. Nugent, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wooley, Hartford, Conn.

Richard P. McGrann of Philadelphia is registered at the Gladstone.

James Whitcomb Riley Seriously Ill.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 11.—James Whitcomb Riley, the "Hoosier poet," is seriously ill at his home in this city. He was able to sit up only a few minutes to-day. Mr. Riley, who is said to be suffering from a mild form of paralysis, has not been able to leave his home for several weeks, but his condition has not been regarded as crucial until recently.

Duc de Montpensier at Fire Hall.

Duc de Montpensier, brother of le Duc d'Orleans, and next to him head of the House of Bourbon in France, who is visiting this city, called at Fire Headquarters yesterday and was shown through the building. After the inspection Commissioner Waldo took his guest to see the workings of the fire boats and the operations of the water towers.

"Tillie Nightmare" Resumes Its Run.

Marie Dressler in "Tillie's Nightmare" resumed her interrupted run at the Herald Square Theatre last night. Miss Dressler and her company appeared to have been benefitted by their vacation and were in fine form. At the end of the first act, in response to a number of curtain calls, the star made a speech of thanks, and then aroused her hearers to enthusiasm by a reference to Mayor Gaynor. She said: "And I know that you will be more than gratified to hear that I have just received word that he who may be our future President is regaining his strength."

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

At the Jardin de Paris last night Lillian Lorraine introduced a new song, "I Am in Love With You," in "Follies of 1910."

Consuelo Bailey has been engaged to play the part of the daughter in "The Marriage of a Star," in which Clara Lipman is to appear at the Hackett Theatre Monday night. Miss Bailey played this part during a short tour of the comedy last season.

A semi-public dress rehearsal of "Miss Patsy" will be given at Maxine Elliott's Theatre this afternoon. Monday afternoon the comedy will open at Atlantic City, and after a two weeks' tour, will return to New York.

Frances and Hilda Keenan, the daughters of Frank Keenan, the actor, have begun a season in vaudeville under the direction of Byron Chandler, in a musical act called "The Matinee Maids."

Jameson Lee Finney, who has been playing in London in "The Dawn of a To-morrow," with Gertrude Elliott, has returned to New York, preceding the rest of the company by several weeks.

Cyril Keightley and Miss Keightley, who are to play in Henry W. Savage's production, "The Little Damozel," will sail from London on the Campania to-morrow. Frank Lacy and Mr. Fitzgerald, who are to appear in the same play, will arrive here next week. Another Savage importation announced is Gustave Bergman, a German tenor, who will have a leading role in a new operetta.

Engagements for Lulu Glaser's company in "The Girl and the Kaiser," include John Slavin, Edith Decker, Amelia Stone, Flavia Arcaro, Melville Stewart, Bertram Grassby, and Joseph Phillips; and for Sam Bernard's company, Amelia Summerville, Adele Rowland, Winona Winter, Lottie Kendall, Louis Harrison, Arthur Stanford, George Anderson, and Louis Foley.

F. C. Whitney will return to London next week to present "The Chocolate Soldier" at the Lyric Theatre in that city with an entire English cast. While he was in New York he arranged for the production here early in October of the romantic comic opera, "Baron Trenck," for which he has engaged Ugo Columbini to sing the title rôle.

The Murray Hill Burlesque Theatre will begin its regular season on Saturday, Aug. 20, with Sam Howe's "Love Makers" as the attraction. The regular season at the Columbia Theatre will open the following Monday with Hurtig & Seamon's production, "The Girls from Happyland."

QUEEN ELIZABETH IN MARINE PAGEANT

With Members of Her Court She Leads Illuminated Flotilla at Long Branch Fete.

DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS

Beautifully Decorated Boats and River Is Lighted for Two Miles—Trotting Races on Ocean Front.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 11.—With an illuminated marine pageant and display of pyrotechnics surpassing any demonstration of the second anniversary on either the North or South Shrewsbury, the second day's festivities of Long Branch's annual carnival was brought to a successful close at Pleasure Bay to-night. The flotilla was made up of beautifully decorated motor boats, sailboats, canoes, and rowboats, and was headed by the carnival launch bearing Queen Elizabeth II. and the members of her court. Following the imperial launch was another with a band, and then came the four divisions of the parade.

For two miles the river on either side was illuminated for the fête. The line of march was down the river to Great Meadow and return, passing the judges' stand opposite Fort au Peck. Prizes were awarded the first, second, and third boats in each division. The display of fireworks was made from the Fort au Peck shore. The river was crowded with pleasure craft, and a great throng of interested spectators fringed both shores.

In the matinée attractions on the ocean front to-day roadsters had the centre of the stage, offering a double bill. Part I. of the programme was a parade of trotters to driving sulkies by members of the Long Branch Road Drivers' Association. The roadsters were driven over the ocean drive from Brighton Avenue to Broadway. Robert W. Reid's Defender, driven by Henry A. Muhlenbrink, received the blue ribbon. Second honors were won by Henry Joline's "T. T. D.," J. H. Campbell's Kate was third, and R. W. Reid's Scuffler fourth. At the conclusion of the parade four trotting events were held over a half-mile course on the Ocean Boulevard. The starting point was just south of Sea View Avenue, with the finish in front of the grand stand.

Samuel Hinckley Lyman.

Samuel Hinckley Lyman, who died at Nauheim, Germany, on Aug. 9, was born in 1839, and was graduated from Yale in 1863. Immediately after leaving college he enlisted in the United States Coast Survey under Prof. Bache, and in that service accompanied Gen. Banks's expedition to New Orleans. After the war he went through Columbia Law School and commenced practice in New York City with Ebenezer B. Convers. In 1879 he accepted the clerkship of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. He held this office under Judge Choate and his successor, Judge Brown, for about twenty years. During the same period he acted as Commissioner of the Circuit Court of the United States. Failing health compelled him to resign these offices and all active business about ten years ago.

Obituary Notes.

ROBERT TREAT PAINE DEAD.

President of American Peace Society and Noted for Philanthropy.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 11.—Robert Treat Paine, President of the American Peace Society and widely known as a philanthropist, died at his home here to-night as the result of a stroke of paralysis suffered some time ago.

Robert Treat Paine, great grandson of the signer of the Declaration of Independence of the same name, was born in Boston 74 years ago, the son of Charles Cushing and Fanny Cabot (Jackson) Paine. He was graduated from Harvard at the age of 19 with the class of 1855, among his classmates being Phillips Brooks, Alexander Agassiz, Francis C. Barlow, Theodore Lyman, and Frank B. Sanborn.

The young man put in a year at the Harvard Law School, gave two years to traveling in Europe, and returned to begin the practice of law with the firm of Richard H. Dana and Francis E. Parker. In 1870, after eleven years practice, Mr. Paine retired, being then only 33 years old. He had made considerable money as the counsel of several mining companies. Besides, he had inherited not a small fortune.

Mr. Paine was married in 1862 to Lydia Williams Lyman, daughter of George Williams and Anne (Pratt) Lyman, her father being the son of Theodore Lyman, a distinguished and well-to-do Boston merchant at the beginning of the last century.

Since his retirement in 1870 Mr. Paine had given his time to practical philanthropic work.

Upon the organization of the Associated Charities of Boston in 1878 he became its first President.

In 1879 Mr. Paine organized the Wells Memorial Institute, a workingmen's club, including a loan association, two co-operative banks, and a building association.

The Workingmen's Loan Association, organized to protect the workman against the chattel mortgage shark, owes its inception in America to Mr. Paine.

In 1884 Mr. Paine was a member of the Massachusetts Legislature from Waltham, where his country home was situated. He was a Republican and Free Soiler until the nomination of Blaine in 1884, when he became a Mugwump.

SHARP BREAK IN SMELTING

Only Incident of Otherwise Featureless Market—Excellent Earnings of Harriman Roads—English Bank's Strength.

A sharp rise in wheat prices and an unfavorable statement of domestic exports for the month of July may have had something to do with the further reaction in stocks yesterday, but in the main they appeared to be responding, as on Wednesday, to technical conditions, including diminishing purchases for long account and tentative operations on the selling side by traders on the flor of the Exchange. At the end of the day the losses in the principal issues were confined to fractions, while the volume of business for the entire session ran to little more than 300,000 shares. The only feature of the trading was the weakness of American Smelting; the loss of 3 points found no explanation in the day's news, although it served as a depressing influence upon other industrials.

For the rise in wheat cabled reports of bad crop conditions in Europe, particularly in France, were responsible. The grain trade assumes that an early call may be made upon our own exportable surplus to make good any deficiency abroad. Advices as to the weather in both wheat and corn territory were excellent, but complaint was again heard of the lack of rain in a large part of the cotton Texas belt. An unusually large batch of railroad earnings statements, covering the month of June and the fiscal year closing with that month, was submitted in the course of the day. Among the roads reporting for the year were Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, the former noting increases of $11,477,000 in gross operating revenues and $1,794,000 in net and the latter $14,500,000 and $6,300,000 for the same items. In the case of Union Pacific the surplus applicable to dividends exceeded 19¼ per cent., while for Southern Pacific the figure was 13 per cent. These are remarkable showings in every respect, but it is a fair question if such excellent results can be obtained in the present fiscal year considering the many factors making for higher costs. St. Paul's June report was the best monthly return made by the road in some time, showing increases of $582,000 in gross and $458,000 in net. Missouri Pacific's statement for the same month and also the fiscal year afforded ample evidence of the improved position of that property, while the 'Frisco showing for June was hardly so good as in the other cases mentioned, the road operating under very heavy expenses. As for the report on our sales of domestic products in July, it is to be said that the return is the poorest for that month since 1904. The loss compared with June is nearly $14,000,000, with July of last year over $6,000,000, and for the seven months of the present calendar year about $56,000,000. The disposition of bankers South and West to force products of the farms into the market and thus avoid further loan expansion may help within a reasonable time to restore our exports of these articles to more substantial volume.

Owing to the demands which we are now making upon London for gold the position of the Bank of England from week to week is a matter of much importance, and it is a satisfaction therefore to note that it continues to hold its ground in spite of this and other drains. For the week which closed yesterday the bank increased reserves by $3,820,000 and bullion by $1,830,000, bringing its proportion of reserve safely above 50 per cent. and thus affording satisfactory comparison with the percentage at this season in other years. The weekly return of the Bank of France was also favorable.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The local market opened steady, and prices advanced some during the early trading. The weakness which later developed in the New York market, however, soon made itself felt in the local shares, and the undertone became soft. Amalgamated declined to 64¾. North Butte to 27, Indiana to 18¼ and Arizona Commercial to below 18. Toward the latter part of the session there appeared to be but few stocks offering, and the market closed steady at some recovery.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

June Railroad Returns.

The Harriman lines, in connection with the declaration yesterday of the regular dividends on the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific stocks, issued the statements of these two systems for the last fiscal year. The Southern Pacific reports an increase of $8,646,246 in its total income, including income from other sources than operation, and the Union Pacific an increase of $3,020,297. The Union Pacific, moreover, reduced its fixed charges by $1,000,901, so that the balance available for dividends increased by $4,111,262. The St. Paul, another of the roads which issued reports yesterday, made a less favorable showing. Its gross earnings increased $4,949,480, but its operating expenses increased by a still larger amount, so that its net earnings, (operating income,) amounting to $17,734,144, showed a decrease of $1,183,088. To the earnings of the old St. Paul, however, it is necessary to add those of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, the St. Paul's extension to the Pacific Coast. The operating income of this company for the eleven months ended June 30 amounted to $5,293,312.

The Rate Increase Campaign.

The comment is being heard in the financial district these days that the showing which some of the railroads are making will not furnish the best sort of argument for the increases in freight rates for which the railroads have been contending. When such roads as the Erie can show large increases in net earnings, not to point to the record of such strong properties as the Union and Southern Pacific, the demand for an increase in rates, it is suggested, carries less force than it would were the returns made by the railroads less. It is also pointed out that the increases in wages did not begin to affect the showing of the railroads until the last three months of the fiscal year, so that the showing for the full year does not furnish a fair indication of what the railroads can earn under the conditions now prevailing.

Two Sides of Curtailment.

In a market such as yesterday's traders' gossip sways quotations. The same information of copper curtailment on which the stocks of the copper mining companies have gone up since the news from abroad of an understanding between the big mining interests was applied yesterday, with reverse effect, to Smelters. A reduction in copper output, argued the traders, means less business for the smelters, and although action on the dividend is not due for some weeks guesses were current that a reduction might be looked for. Such gossip stimulated trading in the shares and made them the most active on the list with the exception of Steel, Reading, and Union Pacific. In range Smelters far outdistanced everything else in the narrow market. From the opening at 68⅛ the price dropped to 64⅞, within 3½ points of the low record for the year, and the close at 65¾ represented a net loss of 2¼ points. Copper curtailment, according to trade estimates, has now reached a point equivalent to a 15 per cent. reduction in the world's output.

Canadian Crops Better, Too.

The latest crop reports from the Canadian wheat fields indicate the same overstatement of damage earlier in the season which the later returns from the wheat districts on this side of the border have proved. Reports from Winnipeg yesterday told of harvesting with the yield running from 15 to 20 bushels per acre. In Southern Manitoba 60 per cent. of the wheat is said to have been cut to date.

***

Look Hopefully at Steel Figures.

Taking the tonnage of unfilled orders on the books of the Steel Corporation July 31 in its relation to the figures shown in the quarterly report for the three months ended June 30, those who watch trade conditions found reason for satisfaction yesterday in the fact that the shrinkage of 286,863 tons indicated was at a lesser rate than that which occurred in the period between April 1 and the end of June. Converting the July showing into quarterly terms, it may be shown that the falling off for the month was equal to 860,589 tons per quarter. In the quarter ended June 30 the decrease in tonnage was 1,144,720 tons.

PACIFIC ROADS PROSPEROUS.

Large Increases Reported for Both Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Large increases in both gross and net earnings for the last fiscal year were reported yesterday by the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. An increase of more than $14,500,000 in the Southern Pacific's gross earnings brought them up to $135,000,000, while the Union Pacific reported gross earnings of $90,220,092, an increase of $11,400,000. The Union Pacific showed $41,727,839 available for its common stock, equal to 19.27 earned on that issue. The Southern Pacific's net earnings were largely increased this last year by the extra dividend of $4,500,000 received on its holdings of Wells, Fargo & Co. stock. These figures show the earnings of the two systems, with the increases over the previous year:

Derived as follows: $22,765,232 from transportation operations, equivalent to 10.51% on the common stock, and $18,962,606 income from investments, equivalent to 8.76% on the common stock.

*Decrease.

The Directors of the two roads declared yesterday the regular dividends on the stocks of both companies.

B. R. & P. EARNINGS INCREASE.

Surplus of Buffalo Line Also Swelled After Dividends Are Paid.

The Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, in its annual report issued yesterday, shows gross earnings of $8,936,117, an increase of $1,764,220 over the previous year; net earnings of $3,032,212, an increase of $525,486, and net corporate income of $1,527,374, an increase of $484,951. The surplus for the year after the payment of dividends was $419,677, compared with a surplus of $160,738 the previous year.

The revenue tonnage moved by the road was the largest in its history. The average rate per ton per mile for freight was 4.81 mills, compared with 4.82 mills the previous year. The passenger rate per mile, on the other hand, increased from 1.976 cents in 1909 to 2.063 cents in 1910. The following paragraph from the report gives the terms of the agreement for the use of thirty miles of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg's line by the Lake Shore:

"Your company is to receive $42,000 annually, a sum equivalent to the interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on one-half the estimated value of the line over which trackage is granted. The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway Company is also to pay its proportion of maintenance and operation over the line used.

"The agreement extends over a period of twenty-five years, and is to continue thereafter until canceled by two years' notice from either party. Trains began moving under this agreement on Sept. 26, 1909."

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Money was abundant and discount rates were quiet to-day.

The stock market was generally quiet, with a smart rise in rubber shares on covering the feature. Mining and British shares received the attention of investors, but foreign securities were easy.

American securities opened a fraction above parity, but the United Stataes Steel Corporation's report on unfilled orders checked the improvement during the first hour. Trading thereafter was limited, and the market closed dull and easy.

There was much excitement among rubber dealers in Mincing Lane. Hard Para jumped 18 cents a pound.

Bar silver, steady, 24½d per ounce.

Money, 1@1¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2¼ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 2⅝ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 7.70; at Lisbon, 7.50.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The trading on the Bourse to-day was dull and featureless.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 22 centimes for checks.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—Prices were slightly lower on the Boerse to-day.

Money, 3½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 3¼ per cent.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

There was a strong, active market in wheat, influenced by foreign conditions. Cables were higher and decided uneasiness and anxiety were shown over the weather conditions. It has been very wet in France during harvest, and reports showed that the rain was interfering with harvest in Germany. The total crop on account of the bad weather has been materially reduced in France and the quality has been seriously affected. Fear of damage in Germany has enterd into the situation quite materially. As a result of the recent developments the Continent has been a strong buyer of cargoes in the off-coast market abroad, and prices have been bid up sharply. There has been evidence of increasing foreign interest in the American markets for some days, and reports of large buying of wheat for foreign account for future delivery. There have been reports of some demand for cash wheat, but the actual volume of transactions has not been very large. There has been export business in the market, however, and some business has been effected. Recently some of the demand was credited to France. The French market has been very strong the past week. Receipts West were again heavy, and in four days the total, while 800,000 bushels less than last week, has been 2,300,000 bushels more than a year ago, and interior suipments have decreased 1,200,000 bushels from last year.

There has been accumulation in Western stocks and pressure on the near deliveries as the result of hedging and widening of carrying charges. Weather conditions in the Northwest are good for harvest. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.08, nominal, to arrive. c. i. f.; No

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Demand for West Side Apartment House Property Continues Strong—Manhattan Railroad Acquires Additional Harlem River Frontage—Astor Estate Rumor—Bronx and Suburban Sales.

Apartment house property on the upper west side was again the leading feature of the realty market yesterday. Investors gave evidence of the demand for substantial houses of this character by purchases of completed structures. Among these was Schuyler Arms, in West Ninety-eighth Street, recently owned by the Robert Hoe estate, and the Adlon, a new house, in 112th Street.

Daniel Renton & Son made two good sales in the busy Washington Heights section, one being a plot 50 by 100 on the south side of 144th Street, 150 feet west of Broadway, the buyer being a builder who will erect an apartment house at once. The seller was the Nacran Realty Company, William Toby, President.

The second sale made by the same brokers in this locality was the northwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 156th Street, a plot 25.10 by 99.9, occupied by a five-story apartment. It was purchased from Julia Leffler by a client for investment.

Adlon Apartment Sold.

The eight-story apartment house at 533 West 112th Street, known as the Adlon, and occupying a plot 100 by 100, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue, has been sold for the Hennessey Realty Company, Joseph Polstein, President, to a client of Edward J. Thompson for investment. The Realty Company acquired the plot last year and erected the house at a cost of about $200,000. Miss Mary Monahan acted as the broker in the sale.

Buyer for Schuyler Arms.

The sale of the Schuyler Arms, an eight-story apartment hotel on plot 120 by 100, at 305 to 311 West Ninety-eighth Street, was announced as virtually closed by the Robert Hoe estate. The buyer, who acts as attorney, is Lewis S. Posner of the firm of Dos Passos Brothers. The property was bought by the late Robert Hoe from W. H. Beard in 1903, and is assessed at $300,000.

Manhattan Railroad Effects Trade.

The Manhattan Railway Company, now controlled by the Interborough system and Peter Duffy, President of the Schubert Piano Company of 1 West 139th Street, have just effected an interesting exchange of property whereby the railroad acquires additional ground for its improvement projects on the west side of the Harlem River and east of the Speedway and just above the Jerome Avenue Bridge. The railroad acquires a large plot with extensive water frontage adjoining the property it has owned for many years to the south of this tract.

To acquire the plot, which the railroad needs, it is stated, for the projected improvements in connection with the proposed Jerome Avenue elevated railroad, negotiations were opened with Peter Duffy through Wesselman & Kraus, attorneys, and in part payment Mr. Duffy took the building owned by the railroad at 127 and 129 West Fifty-third Street, a plot 35 by 100.5, west of Sixth Avenue. The consideration was somewhat under $100,000.

Astor Estate Rumor.

A revival of the old rumor was current yesterday that the Astor estate had disposed of a large portion of its property on the south side of 130th Street, between Fifth and Lenox Avenues. The Astor estate owns the entire block front on 130th Street, together with the front on Lenox Avenue, extending to 129th Street. On the 130th Street front is a row of old fashioned dwellings. A few months ago the property was put on the market.

A few years ago the estate sold a large plot on the north side of 129th Street east of Lenox Avenue, and apartment houses were immediately erected there.

More 54th Street Changes.

It is reported that the two private dwellings at 13 and 15 East Fifty-fourth Street, owned by John R. Drexel, have been sold. The signs stating that the houses were for sale have been removed. The residence adjoining, 11 East Fifty-fourth Street, was sold last week by Dr. Weir. The purchaser is believed to be William Rockefeller, who controls the plot to the west.

43d Street Sales.

Post & Reese have sold for the Lawyers' Title Insurance and Trust Company, Samuel W. Andrews and others, 15 West Forty-third Street, a four-story building, on lot 20 8 by 100.5, now occupied by the Dwight School. The same brokers have also sold the abutting property, 10 West Forty-fourth Street, a three-story stable, on lot 25 by 100.5, for the estate of W. F. Cochran.

Chelsea Houses Sold.

Henry Brady has sold two houses in the old Chelsea neighborhood for the estate of James Cameron MacKenzie to James P. Clark. One is at 429 West Eighteenth Street, a five-story stone front tenement, on lot 25 by 93. The second is a three-story dwelling at 432 West Twenty-second Street, on plot 19.6 by 93.

Harlem Residence Sold.

Wilcox & Shelton have sold for Caroline A. Mayer the three-story private dwelling at 348 West 122d Street, on plot 16 by 100.11.

Sells Perry Street Tenement.

S. Osgood Pell & Co. have sold for the Irvine Realty Company 160 Perry Street, running through to Charles Lane, a three-story brick tenement, with two-story stable at the rear, on lot 20 by 80.

Takes Title to Ball Grounds.

Representatives of Frank Farrell and his associates have taken title to the site of the new American League baseball park, lying east of Broadway and north of 225th Street, and extending across the bed of the old Spuyten Duyvil Creek. The land transferred comprises over one hundred lots, but with the area to be reclaimed the new ball grounds will cover between 150 and 200 lots. The greater part of the tract was acquired from the American Real Estate Company and the Charles T. Barney estate.

Bronx Sales.

The Mountain Construction Company have concluded sale of their plot, 87.1 by 75 feet, east side Bailey Avenue, 225 feet north of Albany Road. Edward D. Sniffen, who negotiated the sale, has secured a building loan of $20,000 for the purchasers, the Roma Construction and Engineering Company, for the erection of two four-story double modern flats.

Richard R. Maslen has sold the plot 50 by 100 at the northeast corner of Aqueduct Avenue and Brandt Place.

Ernst & Cahn, in conjunction with Casey & Irwin, have sold to Thomas F. Cave the two-story dwelling, 3,042 Bainbridge Avenue, Bedford Park.

Ernst & Cahn have sold for Rachel Singer the lot 25 by 100 on the west side of Laurel Place, 175 feet from Glenn Road, Wakefield.

460-Acre Sale Near Massapequa.

Ward & Ward, in conjunction with Frederick J. Davison, have sold on the south side of Long Island, within twenty-five miles of the New York City Hall, property consisting of 460 acres, fronting on the Merrick Road and projecting into the Great South Bay, with about three miles shore front on the bay, Carman's River and Jones River.

Staten Island Sale.

Charles Iker has purchased through Cornelius G. Kolff a plot 50 by 150 on Fifth Avenue near Houseman Avenue, Castleton Corners.

Suburban Sales.

The Anderson Realty Company has sold for B. G. Burtnett from the plans a stucco colonial house on plot 100 by 150 on the White Plains Road, Bronxville, to Mrs. M. L. Muhleman of Mount Vernon. Mr. Burtnett takes in part payment the residence of Mrs. Muhleman, 275 Rich Avenue, Mount Vernon. This is the fourth house in this growing section to be built and sold to Mr. Burtnett.

Lewis H. May Company has sold for Henry Hart four lots on the southeast corner of the Boulevard and Meredith Avenue, Arverne, L. I., to Morris Waltish for improvement with brick and concrete stores and apartments.

Herman Frankfort has sold for Neal Sullivan to Miss Blanche Metzger his country home situated on Chanler Avenue, Far Rockaway.

L. N. Nicholson & Co. has sold to Frank Bradshaw an eight-room house on Stuyvesant Avenue, Lyndhurst, N. J., a plot 37½ by 196, for $4,800. Also sold for John H. Burke to Frank Reynolds the northwest corner of Fern and Stuyvesant Avenues, a plot for $5,000.

Loan for McCreery Store.

A building loan of $400,000 has been made by the New York Life Insurance Company to Louis Stewart, acting for James McCreery & Co., on the addition now being built to the Thirty-fourth Street store at 18 to 22 West Thirty-fifth Street, adjoining the present building. The loan bears interest at 4½ per cent for three years.

Important 27th Street Lease.

Frederick Fox & Co have leased for Otto Wagner the four-story and basement building at 113 West Twenty-seventh Street for a term of years to Gross, Engel & Co., who recently bought the adjoining twelve-story building at 115-117 West Twenty-seventh Street, through the same brokers, from the Aurora Investing Company. The building will be immediately remodeled by the lessee into a store and loft building. The leasing of this building will protect the light of 115-117 West Twenty-seventh Street, which is mainly occupied by the firm of Gross, Engel & Co.

Hotel Langham Changes Hands.

The H. S. Clement & Son Company, proprietors of the Hotel Langham, at 103d Street and Broadway, yesterday disposed of all their holdings in the property, including the leasehold, good-will, furniture, and fixtures, to James C. Ewing of Montclair, N. J. Mr. Ewing will operate the property through a manager. Col. H. S. Clement, President of the H. S. Clement & Son Company, who has been well-known as a hotel proprietor for nearly forty years, will retire from active business.

Big Brooklyn Lease.

Walter Lockitt of Charles W. Seitz's office, in conjunction with W. W. Seybel, has leased to Joseph White for a long term of years the Edgett Building, 556 and 558 Fulton Street, extending through to and including 13 and 13A Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. After extensive alterations the building will be opened as a café and restaurant.

Park Avenue Duplex Apartment.

Plans have been filed for a twelve-story fireproof, elevator duplex apartment house to be erected at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street, for the Park Avenue Holding Company, William A. Hayes, President, at a cost of $400,000. The building will have a frontage of 90.5 feet on the avenue by 60 feet on the street. There will be accommodations for nineteen families. The façade of the building will be of Indiana limestone to the fourth story, and brick with limestone trimmings above. The main entrance will be on the avenue, and will be very handsome, being porticoed and ornamented with large Ionic columns. There will be separate laundries for each apartment in the basement. Ernest Greene is the architect.

Trinity Building New Factory.

Plans have been filed with Building Supt. Miller for an eight-story fireproof factory to be built at the northwest corner of Canal and Sullivan Streets for the Corporation of Trinity Church. The building will occupy the site of several old tenements which have been torn down. It will be known as the Brion Building, and will have a frontage of 65.5½ feet on Canal Street by 100.4¼ feet on Sullivan Street, with a façade of brick and limestone. The cost is estimated at $150,000 by the architect, Charles C. Haight.

New Cafe in Forty-second Street.

Plans have been filed for making over the four-story private dwelling on the south side of Forty-second Street, 65 feet east of Ninth Avenue, into a hotel and café for Timothy P. Paddell, lessee. The building will be extended six feet in front to the building line and a new façade built and made fireproof at a cost of $6,000. Louis Brenner is the owner of record. Robert D. Kohn is the architect.

Private Hospital in 71st Street.

Plans have been filed for making over the two three-story and basement private dwellings on the south side of Seventy-first Street, 245 feet east of Lexington Avenue, for Dr. Adrian V. S. Lambert of 29 West Thirty-sixth Street. The interior changes will provide for operating rooms, day nurseries and night nurseries, guests' chambers, and servants' quarters. The alterations are estimated to cost $15,000 by the architects, La Farge & Morris.

Receiver of Rents.

Justice Hendrick of the Supreme Court has appointed Henry Brady receiver of the rents of a five-story and basement apartment building on the southeast corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 136th Street, on plot 50 by 99.11, pending a suit brought by Leo W. Vogel against John Rollman and others to foreclose a third mortgage of $8,750. The prior mortgages on the property amount to $95,000.

Notes.

Harold H. Harding was the broker in the sale of the northeast corner of Macombs Place and 150th Street, 56 by 136, for Richard R. Moslen.

Benjamin R. Lummis was the broker in the lease for the Fifty-seventh Street Realty Company, to Dunstan & Co., 24 West Fifty-seventh Street, for a long term at an aggregate rental of about $500,000. The house was formerly the residence of Oliver Harriman.

Jacob Sassi was the purchaser of the stable at 107 East Seventy-sixth Street, 25 by 102.2, adjoining the northeast corner of Park Avenue. Myrtle Scott was the seller.

Pease & Elliman have leased the dwelling at 254 West Seventy-second Street for the estate of H. Louise Mulford to the Hawthorne School.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—ITALIAN SAVINGS BANK OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, Plaintiff, against CESARE PIANISANI and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 26th day of July, 1910, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 24th day of August, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of the Bronx, City of New York, bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point on the easterly side of Belmont Avenue, distant one hundred and twenty-seven and seventy-nine hundredths (127.79) feet northerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the said easterly side of Belmont Avenue and the northerly side of East 181st Street; running thence easterly, parallel with the said northerly side of East 181st Street, and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred and fifty-six and eighty-six hundredths (156.86) feet to the division line between Lots 6 and 9, as shown on a map entitled "Map of East Tremont," made by William G. Livingston, dated September 1st, 1908, and filed in the office of the Register of Westchester County, March 13th, 1867, as Map, No. 436; thence running northerly at right angles to the said northerly side of East 181st Street, fifty-eight and forty hundredths (58.40) feet to a point where a line drawn through the centre of Lot 5, as shown on said map, would intersect the easterly boundary line thereof; and thence westerly, parallel to the said northerly side of East 181st Street, one hundred and sixty-four and eight hundredths (164.08) feet to the said easterly side of Belmont Avenue; and thence southerly along the said easterly side of Belmont Avenue fifty-eight and eighty-five hundredths (58.85) feet to the point or place of beginning.

Together with all fixtures and articles attached to or used in connection with said premises.

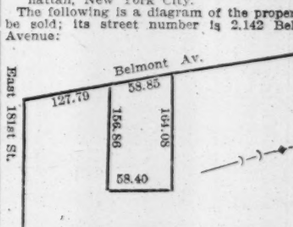
ADELMA H. BURD, Referee.
JOHN ELTON WAYLAND, Attorney for Plaintiff, 258 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 2,142 Belmont Avenue:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is Nine Thousand Six Hundred and Thirty-five Dollars, ($9,635.) with interest thereon from the 26th day of July, 1910, together with costs and allowance amounting to $386.64, with interest from July 26th, 1910, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $243.84 and interest.

Dated New York, August 1, 1910.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.
LUCIUS H. BEERS, plaintiff, against BENJAMIN NATKINS and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 1st day of August, 1910, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey St., in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 31st day of August, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Hugh D. Smyth, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the westerly side of Madison Avenue, distant sixty (60) feet northerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the westerly side of Madison Avenue with the northerly side of 116th Street; running thence westerly parallel with said 116th Street, one hundred ten (110) feet; thence northerly parallel with said Madison Avenue, forty (40) feet eleven (11) inches to the centre line of the block between 116th and 117th Streets; thence easterly and again parallel with said 116th Street, and along said centre line of the block, one hundred and ten (110) feet to the westerly side of Madison Avenue, and thence southerly along said westerly side of Madison Avenue, forty (40) feet eleven (11) inches to the point or place of beginning.

ELMINA SAILS AWAY WITH ASTOR CUP

Brewster's Schooner Wins Trophy Seventh Time—Aurora May Get Sloop Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 11.—For the seventh time in his yacht sailing career Frederick F. Brewster won the Astor Cup for schooners with the Elmina. She crossed the finish line off old Brenton's Reef Lightship to-day twenty-four minutes ahead of the next schooner, the Muriel, owned by Charles Smithers, which she defeated on corrected time by 10 minutes and 51 seconds.

To-day's race was one of the fastest she had ever sailed. She covered the thirty-seven and one-half miles in 3:29:30, and won from the Muriel by 10:51, corrected time. In the sloop class Cornelius Vanderbilt's Aurora was beaten on corrected time by the yawl Polaris, owned by Louis Alberger, by 34 seconds, but the owner of the Adventuress has protested the Polaris for passing inside a buoy off the Sakkoonet River, and the prize is likely to go to the Aurora.

On elapsed time the Aurora won from the Istalena by 41 seconds and from Winsome by 2:14. There is much dissatisfaction to-night among some of the owners of the racing yachts because the course was not laid so that their boats could be able to do some windward work.

All the sloops were ready to start when their signal was given at 10:55. William Butler Duncan, Jr., at the wheel of Cornelius Vanderbilt's sixty-five-foot sloop Aurora, had that yacht coming under good headway for the line when the whistle sounded. She crossed in the weather close up to the Noma. The Winsome, steered by her owner, H. F. Lippitt, crossed beam and beam with the Aurora, and just a few yards off her weather quarter the little Dorello, with her owner, George Batchelder, at the wheel, was coming fast. The Adventuress, C. G. Rumrill's tidy sloop, followed close in the Dorello's wake, and the Istalena was far enough astern so that her owner, George M. Pynchon, was able to luff her across the wakes of both the Adventuress and the Dorello in the effort to get from under their lee and gain a weather berth. The thirty-foot sloop Windward, handled by Jerome Monks, the Shimna, with Addison Hanan at the tiller; the yawl Polaris, steered by Burton Hart, and Stuyvesant Wainwright's Cara Mia were the last away of the sloops.

Harold S. Vanderbilt obtained the weather berth with his Vagrant at the whistle for the schooner start. E. W. Clark's Irolita from Philadelphia was next away, then Charles Smithers's Muriel and F. F. Brewster's big Elmina, traveling faster than either of the others, was the last away. She was carrying a small main topmast staysail and a No. 1 reaching jib topsail. Immediately after the start the Winsome attempted to go through the lee of the Aurora, but that yacht heeling over until her lee rail was awash at times in the squalls held her own and gained a little if anything. Off West Island, thirty-five minutes after the start, the Aurora was still the leader of the sloop division and the Elmina of the schooners. The Muriel had passed the Vagrant, and the Irolita was making fast time for the first mark, the Hen and Chickens Light vessel. The Istalena was slowly but surely overhauling the Winsome, and the Shimna holding all three of the larger sloops.

The black lightship, with its name "Hen and Chickens" in great white letters, was in plain sight at 12 o'clock, and the Elmina, sailing like a witch, was fast approaching it. She dropped her spinnaker boom to port a few minutes before reaching it, and the three big sloops followed suit as they came along. The Istalena passed the Winsome about fifteen minutes before reaching the mark.

The wind had now changed to the north-northwest, making it a close fetch on the starboard tack to the finish off Brenton's Reef Lightship, seventeen miles. To the westward the Elmina was at her best. She covered the disiance in 1 hour 37 minutes. The next yacht to finish was the Aurora, eighteen minutes later. The Istalena finished 1 minute 14 seconds astern of the Aurora, and the Winsome 8 minutes 4 seconds after her.

The dozen or more steam yachts gathered at the finish gave the Elmina a hearty salute when she crossed the line. Summary:

DUDIE ARCHDALE IN FRONT.

Black Mare, Guided by Geers, Captures Ohio Stake in Grand Circuit Races.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 10.—Dudie Archdale, winner of the $10,000 Merchants and Manufacturers' Stake at Detroit last week, landed the $5,000 Ohio Stake, the biggest feature of the programme at North Randall track to-day. It took only two heats for the Geers mare to capture first money, though the veteran driver was compelled to use the whip in both heats. Bervaldo and Billy Burke crowding her all the way. Hailworthy, which pushed her hardest in the second heat and was only a scant nose behind her at the finish, was placed ninth for swerving in the stretch.

HOYT SUCCEEDS SHAW.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Garage Owners' Association of New York, held yesterday at the office of the association, 102 West 107th Street, P. V. Hoyt was elected President to serve the unexpired term of G. Eduard Shaw. Mr. Shaw had served as President since May 12, when it was incorporated.

During the past week the association has received many letters of congratulation concerning the manner in which it exposed an east side garage that sold gasoline at short measure. The association is now working on several other cases, and is doing all in its power to put the garage business on a sound commercial basis.

Mr. Hoyt appointed a committee to make arrangements by Oct. 1 for a lease of larger quarters. The association now represents over 75 per cent. of the garage capacity of Manhattan.

HARMSWORTH TROPHY TRIALS

Motor Boats Getting Ready for Elimination Races at Larchmont.

The elimination trials to select a trio of racers to defend the Harmsworth trophy, the blue ribbon of motor boating, from the British challengers that are being sent over by English yachtsmen will be held on Aug. 15, 16, and 17. The races will be over the same course as the cup races were decided two years ago. This year, however, the contests will be held over a thirty-mile triangular course, laid off in Larchmont Harbor. The entries for the races are rather indefinite, as it is supposed that some late entries will be made. However, it is practically certain that at least five boats will await the gun on Monday.

The best known of the starters is F. K. Burnham's Dixie II., the boat that, sailing under the colors of J. H. Schroeder, beat the British challengers two years ago in Huntington Harbor. Mr. Burnham may also enter his new Intruder, which, although a new boat, has been consistent by winning at the Thousand Islands. Intruder has a 200 horsepower engine, while Dixie II. has a 250 horsepower special engine. It is contended that Dixie has never been shown her limit and that she is capable of doing forty miles per hour.

Restless, owned by Robert A. Chesebrough of New York, is another new boat specially built to compete, and has already shown 35 miles an hour. Two hydroplanes, called Hurry and Skimmer, and a regular displacement boat owned by Commodore August Hecksher of Huntington, are possible entrants, although the engine for Hurry has been delayed by the builders, and it is doubtful if it will arrive in time to be installed and smoothed up for the trials.

OLDFIELD WINS TWICE.

Lowers Track at Worcester with 200-Horse Power Benz Car in 1:09 4-5.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 11.—Barney Oldfield was the star of the Worcester Automobile Club's meet at the Greendale track here to-day, establishing a new track record in his 200-horsepower Benz, and taking the five-mile race for cars under 600 cubic inches piston displacement in a Knox. The new record for this two-lap track was set at 1:09 2-5 from a flying start, lowering Marriott's mark of 1 minute 11 seconds. Oldfield's time in the five-mile race was 6:52 1-5.

Louis Strang was a winner with a Bluebird in the three-mile pursuit race in 4:06 2-5, beating Orndorf in a Chalmers 40. In the three-mile handicap for stock cars Oldfield was on scratch with his Knox Giant, Strang in his Bluebird (handicap of 12 seconds), Orndorf in his Chalmers (17 seconds), and George W. Largess in a Huptomobile (50 seconds). Orndorf was first, Oldfield second, Strang third, and Largess fourth. Orndorf's time was 4 minutes 11 3-5 seconds from a standing start, with Oldfield 1 second behind. The latter had trouble with his ignition.

Orndorf, with a handicap of 40 seconds, won the three-mile handicap race from a standing start in 4:50 1-5. Strang in a Bluebird, with a handicap of 35 seconds, was second; Oldfield, with a handicap of 10 seconds, in a Knox, was third, and Largess, in a Huptomobile, with a handicap of 70 seconds, was fourth.

OARSMEN READY TO RACE.

Start of the National Regatta at Washington To-day Promises Keen Racing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11.—With nearly all of the seventy-four entries, representing twenty-six competing clubs, on the scene, the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which is to be held on the Potomac River here to-morrow and Saturday, promises to be one of the most successful aquatic events of the year. Seven races are scheduled for to-morrow.

The meet will be marked by lively rivalry between the Canadian and American representatives. From north of the boundary line have come oarsmen from the Ottawa Club of Ottawa, including the eight that won the championship at the Canadian Henley last Saturday at St. Catharines; the Argonauts of Toronto, and Fred Lepper of the Don Rowing Club of Toronto, who won both the junior and the intermediate singles at St. Catharines.

Representatives of clubs from Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Cambridge, Waltham and Springfield, Mass.; New Orleans, La.; Richmond, Va.; Detroit, Mich.; St. Paul, Minn., and Washington, D. C., are here.

Reo Far Ahead of Record.

L. L. Whitman, who is driving a 1911 Reo from New York to San Francisco to establish a new transcontinental record left Council Bluffs yesterday morning after covering 1,505 miles since midnight Sunday. Whitman was delayed five hours by rain and heavy roads, but was sixteen hours ahead of his schedule. E. I. Hammond is alternating with Whitman at the wheel, and since the start not a single adjustment has been made on the car. The only stops to be made during the trips will be for gasoline and oil.

The New York Times.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR BY THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, AUG. 11, 1910.

"Situations Wanted—Females." The following advertisement appeared in THE TIMES of Aug. 3:

HOUSEWORKER.—Situation wanted for an exceptionally qualified young Irish woman to do general housework; the young woman is now employed by the advertiser, who reluctantly has to part with her, and it is in appreciation of her excellent and loyal service that this effort is made by her employer to secure a good position for her; the young woman is neat, intelligent, and trustworthy, and untiring in her efforts to please. Address Employer, Box T 132 Times.

Within seventy-two hours "Box T 132 Times" was stuffed to overflowing with forty-eight eager responses from housewives who wanted the qualified services of this young woman. She had a choice of many excellent positions; she is now filling one of them acceptably and to her own satisfaction. The advertisement appeared during the stagnation of the dull season. But there seems to be no let-up in the demand for able workers. How extraordinarily foolish it is for a capable man or woman to feel that, on account of hard or dull times or untoward political conditions, or because of some other external circumstance, his or her field for profitable usefulness is thereby straightened! A direct and vigorous appeal will almost invariably bring to his or her notice more opportunities than he or she can take advantage of.

But—mark well—the appeal must be direct and vigorous, it must convey a message. The stereotyped advertisement of "thoroughly competent, best of references," means nothing, because it gives no notion of the special and individual qualities of the advertiser. A little personal tang in an advertisement, a note of sincerity and straightforwardness will go far with its readers.

YOUTH KILLS GIRL, SHOOTS HIMSELF

PUTS BULLET IN OWN HEAD

Her Family Sees Frances Mengler Shot Down—Kindle, Seriously Hurt, Is in Presbyterian Hospital.

As she was clearing away the supper dishes Frances Mengler was shot and instantly killed last night at her home, 90 East End Avenue, by Frank Kindle of 335 East Seventy-first Street, a rejected suitor. He fired three shots, all of which struck her heart, and before any one could interfere fired a bullet into his right temple. He has no chance to survive.

Frances Mengler was 18 years of age, tall, a blonde, and very attractive. She was a stenographer in the employ of the American Bank Note Company, and was one of a family of four girls and two boys. Her father, John Mengler, is a tailor employed in a big shop on Fifth Avenue.

The Menglers and Kindle are Bohemians. Kindle was brought to this country four years ago by Mengler. He learned the machinist trade, and up to two days ago he was in the employ of a sewing machine company at Elizabethport, N. J.

Mengler liked the young man and encouraged him to visit his family often, but he was amazed, two weeks ago, when Kindle said he was desperately in love with Frances and wanted to marry her.

"Why, Frank, the girl is not for you," Mr. Mengler said. "Of course, if she wants you I won't stand in your way, but you must win her consent yourself."

Frank proposed to Frances but she laughed at him.

"Whatever put such a crazy notion in your head," she asked. "I not only do not love you, but I do not even like you."

But Frank was determined, and every night he called to press his suit, until the girl complained to her father that his attentions were obnoxious. Mengler and his wife remonstrated with the young man and told him that unless he desisted they would have to forbid him the house. Broken-hearted he agreed to let the girl alone.

On Wednesday night he stayed away, but it was learned he had given up his position and had been drinking heavily. Last night he arrived while the family was at supper. Around the table were Mr. and Mrs. Mengler, the murdered girl, her brother John, sister Emily, and the younger children, Bernard, Anna, and Rose. Frank was invited to have supper, and it was a merry meal. At its conclusion Mrs. Mengler asked Frances to clear off the table and wash the dishes.

"Certainly, mother," said the girl, as she sprang to her feet. Kindle rose at the same time and went into another room.

Frances had gathered up the dishes and was carrying them to the sink, when the door was pushed back and a shot rang out.

The girl staggered back and her brother John rushed to catch her; the rest of the family sat stupefied. Kindle stepped into the room and fired two more shots in rapid succession. Each took effect in her heart. Then, as Mr. Mengler caught up a chair and swung it at Kindle's head, the young man turned the revolver upon himself and fell with a bullet in his temple.

Policemen Stevens and Werner summoned an ambulance from the Presbyterian Hospital, but Dr. Evans found the girl dead. He took Kindle to the hospital dying.

CLOAK MEN SEE MITCHEL.

Acting Mayor Promises to Protect Them and Their Factories.

A committee of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association called on Acting Mayor Mitchel yesterday and received his assurance that no effort would be spared in giving them and their employes protection in running their factories during the period of the strike, and he promised that he would procure it elsewhere if he found the police unable to provide such protection. The committee had laid before Mr. Mitchel the matter of the death on July 31 of Herman Lebowitz, a cloak operator employed in a factory at Hunter, N. Y., opened when the strike began.

There was a slight disturbance in West Twenty-sixth Street yesterday morning in which strike pickets indiscriminately pounded strikebreakers and some of their own men.

BARON WEDS STENOGRAPHER

Urban, Formerly of Austrian Army, and Bride Met in Boarding House.

Charles Urban of 175 West Seventy-eighth Street, a Baron, he says, son of the late General Charles Urban, an Austrian Field Marshal from 1848 to 1883, was married yesterday afternoon in the City Hall to Miss Olive Carmichael, a stenographer employed by the Du Pont Powder Company at 90 West Street. An Alderman performed the ceremony, but the bride said later in the afternoon that she would see to it that there is a church wedding later on.

The couple leave to-day for Niagara Falls and Canada, and upon their return will sail for Europe to see the Baron's relatives in Styria, Hungary. After a short visit they will come back to this country to live. The Baron has already taken out his first naturalization papers, meaning to become an American citizen.

"That's my work," said the bride yesterday afternoon in her room at 230 West Thirty-fourth Street. She was born in Elizabeth, N. J. She is 27; he is 25.

"This is not a money match," declared the Baron.

"Well, I should say not," corroborated the bride.

"This is an international love match," went on the Baron, "because we are both poor like church mice."

The Baron, who was a Sub-Lieutenant in the Austrian Army, said he came here two years ago to study American customs and the English language. He met Miss Carmichael in a boarding house, and after that the English language came to him without any trouble.

For a while the Baron was employed by a publishing company. Asked what his business was now, he answered gallantly, "To make money and kiss my wife."

MRS. BULL'S CASE GOES ON.

Grand Jury Hears Further Evidence Against Qualey and Corbett.

Additional evidence in regard to the transactions between John A. Qualey and Harvey Wiley Corbett, promoters of the Magnesia-Asbestos Company, and Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull, widow of the famous surgeon, Dr. William T. Bull, was presented to the Grand Jury yesterday. Mrs. Bull was present and added to her testimony of Wednesday.

The Grand Jury will continue to investigate the charges made by Mrs. Bull against the two men to-day. Mrs. Bull charges that she was induced to invest $35,000 in the company under false pretences. The accused promoters declare that the charges against them are the result of a conspiracy.

Among the witnesses before the Grand Jury yesterday were Leon Kresser, the young engineer, who invested $3,000 in the company on the promise that he was to be made engineer at $50 a week, and was later dropped. Kresser began civil and criminal actions, which he failed to continue after getting $1,000 of his money back last fall. Charles L. Craig, Mrs. Bull's attorney, also testified. Arthur Rosenberg, Kresser's lawyer, and James A. Jacobs, a lawyer of 61 Park Row, also testified.

MANY VISITORS TO TAFT.

Weeks Reports Middle West Swinging Into Line for the Administration.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 11.—The Mexican Ambassador, Señor De La Barra, visited President Taft for half an hour at Burgess Point this afternoon. The Ambassador, who is returning to Mexico soon, said after his visit: "It is an inspiration to my people to know that Mexico has such a warm good friend as President Taft."

It is understood that the President sent a message of felicitation to President Diaz, whom he met and with whom he exchanged visits at El Paso and Ciudad Juarez last October.

Representative John W. Weeks of Massachusetts reported to Mr. Taft this afternoon the impressions he had gained from a recent trip through Minnesota, Montana, Washington, California, and other Western States. Mr. Weeks declared that despite the recent events in Kansas and Iowa, the Middle West is "swinging into line for the Administration, and will give a good account of itself."

Secretary of the Navy Meyer was another caller at Burgess Point, and had a preliminary talk with the President regarding his trip to Panama in November. It seems to be settled that the President will sail from Charleston, thus avoiding the treacherous waters around Cape Hatteras.

The new schedule of seeing visitors only on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays goes into effect next week. The President will devote the off days to office work and the rough draft of his message to Congress.

ROOSEVELT LIKELY TO BACK INSURGENTS

On Good Authority It Is Said He Decided to Do So After Long Talk with Garfield and Pinchot.

SUPPORTS FORMER FORESTER

Colonel's Western Programme Changed So Garfield and Pinchot Shall Speak in Three Cities with Him.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt indicated strongly to-day that he has decided to throw in his lot with the insurgent wing of the Republican Party and back up his friend, Gifford Pinchot, the Chief Forester, whom President Taft deposed. This probable decision was reached after a long conference between Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Pinchot, and James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior under the Roosevelt Administration, which lasted over night at Sagamore Hill. In more ways than one it was one of the most important political conferences in which Mr. Roosevelt has taken part this Summer. Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Garfield, armed with a mass of documents, arrived at Sagamore Hill Wednesday night and left for New York early this morning. They departed in a much more cheerful frame of mind than they displayed when they arrived.

Upon hearing some inside history from Mr. Pinchot regarding his famous controversy with Secretary Ballinger, besides considerable hopeful news concerning the success of the insurgent cause in the Far West and from Mr. Garfield regarding just what went on in Ohio when the convention there indorsed the Taft Administration and at the same time repudiated Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion for a progressive platform, it is understood here on very good authority that Mr. Roosevelt definitely decided to support Mr. Pinchot and take up the cudgels for the insurgents in all the States in which they are active, even to the extent of making speeches for some of the insurgent candidates who win in their conventions. He will stick to his announced intention, however, of not interfering in State fights before nominations. When Mr. Roosevelt goes West on his trip the latter part of this month he will meet both Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Garfield at several of the cities where he is scheduled to make speeches, and both will deliver addresses from the same platform with him. This important change in plan was joyfully communicated by both Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Garfield when they reached the Oyster Bay station after their all-night stop at Sagamore Hill. This morning Mr. Roosevelt had made all his plans for his Western trip and at no time, save in one instance, did they show that any important individual would share honors with him at the more important places where he is to speak. The one instance is St. Paul, where both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Pinchot were scheduled to address the Conservation Commission which will be in session when they arrive on Sept. 5.

According to Mr. Pinchot, both he and Mr. Garfield will meet Col. Roosevelt at Ossawatomie, Kan.; Denver, and St. Paul, and make speeches from the same platform. Col. Roosevelt's Ossawatomie speech is to be made on John Brown's day. The fact that both Garfield and Pinchot, militant insurgents, will invade Kansas, where the insurgent movement is brisk under the leadership of Senator Bristow and Representatives Madison and Murdock, and speak from the same platform with Col. Roosevelt, who already has said kind words for the Kansas triumvirate, is taken to mean that Col. Roosevelt is in thorough sympathy with the movement in that State.

Mr. Garfield explained that he and Mr. Pinchot were not to travel with Col. Roosevelt in his special car, but would meet him at the points where all were designated to speak. He and Mr. Pinchot told of the change in the plans for the Colonel's Western trip with evident satisfaction. Mr. Pinchot winked slyly when he was asked if Col. Roosevelt had decided to openly champion the insurgent cause.

"I guess you know pretty well where Col. Roosevelt stands on that question," said the deposed forester with a broad smile.

So far Senator Lodge is the only reactionary in whose behalf Col. Roosevelt has promised to speak this Fall. He has promised to speak in the interest of Senator Beveridge, the Indiana insurgent, on Oct. 13 at Indianapolis. He has gone on record, at least in Ohio, as favoring a progressive platform, and now he will tour the insurgent strongholds.

ROOSEVELT ON EXPLORING TRIP

Goes Through Long Island Back Country on a Sociological Quest.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Col. Roosevelt had another sociological adventure to-day. Accompanied by Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad, he made a trip in a special train about twenty-five miles from home and investigated the experimental farms which the Long Island Road officials have established at Medford and Wading River. The Colonel had read all about these farms in a magazine article, and he wanted to see with his own eyes just what was being done.

It had occurred to him that here was a plan whereby the congested population of cities might be relieved, and if any opportunity for the mass of the people was right at his back door, so to speak, he wanted to know all about it. Incidentally it was remembered that he is to deliver an address before a meeting of up-State grangers at Utica this month, and it was suggested that he might have been looking for lecture material.

It was an eventful trip, for when he had abandoned Mr. Peters's private car to journey across country from Medford to Wading River in an automobile, he narrowly escaped being dumped into Artist Lake in a lonely part of the scrub oak district about fifteen miles north of Patchogue.

In his talk with Harry B. Fullerton, who has charge of the two experimental farms, Mr. Roosevelt took occasion to express his disapproval of the men who make money in Wall Street. He also had something to say in favor of short skirts for farmers' wives.

The Long Island Road established its first experimental farm at Medford, in the heart of Suffolk County, in 1905, and the one at Wading River two years later. Out of a total of 486,000 acres in Suffolk County, only two hours from New York, 250,000 acres are undeveloped. The ownership of most of this region is unknown. President Peters having the idea that much of it might be opened up on squatter rights. He hopes that people in New York may come to this undeveloped territory and make a living as farmers. The farms were established to show that pretty nearly any kind of vegetable and fruit will grow there if properly cultivated.

Each experimental farm contains about eighty acres, but only about twenty acres are under cultivation. On these twenty acres, 180 different kinds of vegetables have been raised, and 62 varieties of fruit are regularly grown and marketed. With an investment of $1,300, according to Mr. Peters, it is possible to clear $1,000 a year.

On the Medford farm there are several temporary structures which Mr. Fullerton and his family and several farm hands occupy. Mr. Fullerton is a middle-aged, white-haired man, a pronounced nature lover, and having a resemblance to Walt Whitman. His wife was formerly a kindergarten teacher.

Taking Mr. Roosevelt by the arm Mr. Peters showed him all over the farm and explained how easy it was for the scrub oak underbrush to be cleared away and productive farms laid out. He said the Government report made two years ago that there was only one inch of subsoil there was entirely erroneous, as there were between five and six inches of good soil where almost any kind of vegetable and fruit could be successfully grown. Leaving Mr. Peters, Mr. Roosevelt got talking with Mrs. Fullerton, who does considerable farm work herself. He suggested that Mrs. Fullerton might move around more easily if she wore short skirts.

"I don't quite like to see a woman in masculine garb," said Mr. Roosevelt, "but for out-of-door life on the farm they should wear something more convenient than long skirts. I would suggest short skirts as being more sensible."

"Why, it is perfectly easy for a man with ten acres of this land to clear up from $200 to $400 an acre besides getting a perfectly splendid living," Farmer Fullerton told the ex-President.

"We grow here with ease apples, pears, bush fruit of all kinds, besides every conceivable kind of garden truck. We raise grapes, kaffir corn, English gooseberries and French artichokes. Calibash gourds, imported from Africa, grow with great rapidity."

Mr. Roosevelt thought it was a great chance for a man with a little money to invest here; even rich men, he thought, might profitably invest some money in the region.

"I haven't anything against a rich man," confided Mr. Roosevelt to President Peters, "if he goes around the country and builds things up, but I haven't any use for the man who speculates with his money in Wall Street."

Farmer Fullerton broke in to tell a story of a man who had come to the region and made a lot of money.

"Where is this man?" asked Col. Roosevelt. "I would like to have a talk with him."

"Oh, he left here and went to speculate in Wall Street," replied Mr. Fullerton. "I hear he made a nice snug fortune there during the last two years."

"Yes, it must have been while I was in Africa," continued Col. Roosevelt. "I am not reputed to be a rich man's friend," he went on. "And I don't want you, Mr. Peters, to make $2,000,000 in Wall Street. If you succeed in making a living as a farmer through such enterprises as this I am with you."

Col. Roosevelt evinced a desire to climb a tall tower with a tank on top of it to see how the thing worked. It was explained that there was some difficulty in getting water, as wells had to be driven so deep. Col. Roosevelt without more ado climbed to the top of the tower and peered into the tank.

"Very interesting," was his comment when he got back to the earth.

Mrs. Fullerton joined the party at this juncture, and Col. Roosevelt gallantly explained how much he thought of a woman who would go out and assist her husband the way she has been doing.

"They used to say," said the ex-President, "that the best citizen came from Boston and lived ten years west of the Missouri. I want to say that the best citizen in my mind is the kindergartner who is become a farmer's wife."

It was high noon by this time and Mrs. Fullerton had a nice luncheon for the party. Col. Roosevelt ate like a hired man and praised everything.

After luncheon Mrs. Fullerton got out the family automobile and took the party across country to the other farm at Wading River. It was fifteen miles distant through a wilderness of scrub oak, with only a thin sandy trail to follow. Mrs. Fullerton was the chauffeur.

The storm of a day before had washed away the road at Artists Lake, and suddenly the wheels of the machine on one side slid into the water. Col. Roosevelt made a flying leap and landed in a clump of bushes. The others scrambled out and then dragged the machine to safety. Col. Roosevelt taking off his coat and working till the perspiration rolled off him.

From wading River Col. Roosevelt and President Peters went to Syosset by train. There an automobile was waiting and the Colonel got back to Sagamore Hill at dusk.

MRS. WESTINGHOUSE, NURSE.

Attends Miss Norman, Who Is Operated Upon for Appendicitis.

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Aug. 11.—Mrs. George Westinghouse, wife of the inventor and ex-President of the Westinghouse Electrical Company, yesterday assisted the daughter of the Superintendent of her estate, Erskine Park, into the operating room of a Pittsfield hospital and watched the patient under the influence of ether and under the knife of Surgeon Charles H. Richardson of Hillcrest Hospital. The operation was for appendicitis.

Miss Annie Norman, who was operated on, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Norman. She is 21 years old. She was born on Erskine Park, and has always lived there. Mrs. Westinghouse has known Miss Norman from a baby to young womanhood, and is interested in her.

Yesterday Miss Norman was taken ill and a surgeon diagnosed the case as an acute attack of appendicitis. An operation was ordered. As Miss Norman was averse to going to the hospital, Mrs. Westinghouse gave her a promise to remain with her at the operation, and took her to the hospital in her automobile.

Few women who have not been trained for the operating room could have shown more fearlessness than Mrs. Westinghouse. When the operation was over she remained at the hospital until she was assured the girl would come out of the influence of the ether all right. To-day she visited Hillcrest Hospital with an armful of flowers from Erskine Park gardens, and remained an hour with the patient.

DYNAMITE BLAST INJURES TWENTY

Explosion Hurls a Shower of Stones Through Windows and Rocks Buildings.

TENANTS FLEE IN PANIC

Two Women and a Man Are Sent to Bellevue Hospital by the Bombardment.

There was an explosion of dynamite in an excavation in East Thirty-second Street yesterday, in which more than a score of persons received minor injuries, buildings shook, hundreds of windows were broken, and huge stones, sand and glass tossed into the air, throwing all the neighborhood into alarm. The excavation work, under a contractor named Trotter, extends from 326 to 330, where a large laundry is to be built. Those injured seriously enough to be removed to Bellevue Hospital were:

Mrs. Elsie Bester, 325 East Thirty-first Street, struck on the arm by a stone.

Andrew Gilibert, 306 East 109th Street, struck on the head and arm by pieces of rock.

Mrs. Lizzie Winter, 332 East Thirty-second Street, struck on the back of the head by a rock.

Mrs. Winter lives on the top floor of the house next to the building site. Following immediately upon the sound of the blast, big rocks crashed on the roof, one weighing more than 200 pounds being embedded there. She had started to her feet when the ceiling fell on her head, and with the shower of plaster there were bits of rock that struck and bruised her seriously.

Mrs. Bester was hurt in much the same way in the rear room of her home in Thirty-first Street. Gilibert was caught in a small downpour of stones as he tried to run from the vicinity of the blast.

On the top floor of 334 Mrs. Laura Campbell lives with her ten-day-old baby. The nurse caught the child in her arms and ran to the street, while neighbors hastily helped the mother out of the house.

The largest rock hurled into the air weighed all of 500 pounds. It crashed against the wall of 336, and two large pieces plowed their way through the roof. Over in Thirty-first Street, all the rear windows of the Phipps Model Tenements were shattered, the tenants pouring into the street in a panic.

The police say that fully twenty persons were hurt by bits of glass and falling fragments of stone, injuries that were dressed by the doctors of the neighborhood. A horse standing hitched to a buggy in front of the excavation, started down the steps of a nearby basement, and would have made his way into the shelter of the cellar if the buggy wheels had not served to hold him in check. He was not hurt, but it was no easy task to get him back on the pavement.

Inspector Egan of the Bureau of Combustibles hurried to the place, and after a short investigation gave it as his opinion that the blast was too large in the first place, and that it had not been properly protected. The workmen told him that no blasting mat was used. The work was in charge of Frank Gallo of 310 East 115th Street.

FARM EXPORTS CUTS.

The Poorest Showing Since 1904, According to Official Figures.

Not in six years have the exports of agricultural products made such a poor showing as is disclosed in the figures for last month made public by the Bureau of Statistics at Washington yesterday.

The July total of natural product exports, which, besides farm products, includes mineral oil, were only $30,063,091, a falling off of approximately $14,000,000 from the June figures, and a decline of approximately $6,250,000 by comparison with July, 1900. The declines were all-embracing, but breadstuffs lead, with a falling off of $2,194,012, in comparison with the showing of the corresponding month in the previous year. Cotton came next, with a slump of $1,744,489 in the value of exports, and mineral oil was a close third, with a falling off of $1,020,310.

Taking the Bureau's report in detail, comparisons with June and with July, 1900, are:

	VALUES.
	July, '10.	June, '10.	July, '09.
Corn	$675,710	$1,397,658	$856,053
Wheat	881,104	553,040	3,300,765
Flour	2,423,709	2,556,164	2,312,512
Other breadstuffs	342,297	767,861	347,502
Total	$4,322,820	$5,274,723	$6,516,832
Meat and dairy products	9,322,963	8,844,186	10,042,716
Cattle, hogs, and sheep	329,000	223,000	894,685
Cotton	8,155,882	22,729,294	10,500,371
Total	$30,063,091	$44,045,429	$36,316,331

For the seven months of the calendar year the exports of natural products of these classes totaled $339,473,416, against $478,221,136 in July, 1900, and $395,820,791 in June. It is the lowest total for the seven months' period since 1902.

WAITED LONG FOR DEAD CHILD

Parents Stayed Weeks at Ellis Island Without Word of Baby Taken from Them.

While a sorrowful father and mother waited anxiously to hear of their baby on Ellis Island the baby died in a city hospital and was buried in Potter's Field. No word came to the immigration officials of the death of the child until yesterday, and now Commissioner of Immigration William Williams seeks to find out who is responsible for neglect.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Suppess and their eight-year-old daughter and Mary Ann, a child of two and a half years, arrived on the Lituania on July 5. They are German-Russians, and come from Libau. The baby was taken seriously ill and the ship's surgeon telephoned the Norwegian Hospital in Brooklyn and the child was taken there.

The family was going to Topeka, Kan. They decided to remain here until the baby recovered. They made inquiry as to the child's condition, but no one seemed to heed them until a German missionary woman promised to ascertain. But before she could do so, she went away on her vacation, and so the family waited weeks to hear of the baby.

Then the missionary returned and started an inquiry. She learned from the Norwegian Hospital that the baby had died in that institution one hour after it was admitted there. She notified Commissioner Williams, and yesterday he wrote a sharp letter to Benham & Boyesen, 21 State Street, agents of the steamship line, asking why the immigration officials had not been notified of the child's death. This letter was the first the agents knew of the death.

Educational Topics By Eminent Writers.

Commencing Saturday, August 20th, and on each succeeding Saturday until October 8th, The New York Times will publish a series of articles on educational progress.

The contributors include:

Chancellor J. R. Day, of Syracuse University.
Professor Henry Bratt Judson, of Chicago.
Professor Ethelbert D. Warfield, of Lafayette University.
Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, of the Carnegie Foundation.
Dr. Abram S. Isaacs, of New York University.

The first article, to appear Saturday, August 20th, will be by Ethelbert D. Warfield, D.D., President of Lafayette College and President of the Board of Trustees of Princeton Theological Seminary, on "The Value of a College Education."

The New York Times is the most effective medium for announcements of scholastic institutions, and in 1909 published nearly 100,000 lines of school and college advertisements, a greater volume than any other New York newspaper.

The New York Times is read by more persons with the means to provide private education for their sons and daughters than any other newspaper in the United States.
